TRUCE PROVIDES ARBITRATION OF WAGE DISPUTE

Losses Thru Tieup Exceed Million.

A new truce, ending Chicago's second and most costly milk strike of the month, was concluded last night. Milk deliveries in the city and in Cook county suburbs will begin at noon today. Dealers and drivers promise that distribution will be complete by nightfall.

The strike lasted eight days. It cost farmers $480,000. Strikers lost $280,000 in wages. Dealers, who said they were losing money before the strike began, incurred additional losses which put the total strike bill at more than a million dollars. To this was added the cost of the first strike May 1-3.

Yesterday's agreement was reached in two sections. At 4:30 p. m. members of the Milk Wagon Drivers' union voted to return to work at the prestrike basic wage of $48 a week, pending further negotiations. At 10:30 p. m. the Inside Dairy Workers' union agreed to the truce.

Agree to Eventual Arbitration.

Both unions assented to eventual arbitration if new negotiations are fruitless. Archbishop Samuel A. Strich, head of the Chicago Catholic archdiocese, or his authorized representative, will be asked to arbitrate the dispute.

With only 300,000 quarts of the Sunday supply available, dealers hurriedly called receiving stations in the Chicago milkshed, where 1,000,000 more quarts were waiting. The first tank trucks were rolling toward Chicago before midnight.

The agreement signed for the Inside Dairy Workers was similar, with minor exceptions, to the one approved by the milk drivers in an afternoon session in the Coliseum.

Seven Point Proposal.

There was a chorus of "Ayes" and only a few dissenting "Nays" from the drivers on this seven point proposal:

1. Men to return to work immediately at the prestrike basic wage.

2. Negotiations with the dealers to be continued until June 10.

3. Members of the Teamsters' Joint council, headed by Leslie G. Goudie, to sit in on negotiations. [The drivers' union is affiliated with the teamsters' council.]

4. If no agreement is reached by June 10, disputed points are to be discussed within 48 hours at a meeting with Mayor Kelly and State's Attorney Courtney.

5. There will be a 54 hour week.

6. Seniority rights will be limited, with actual provisions subject to negotiation.

7. If all negotiations fail, an arbitration board of two dealers and two union members is to be set up. If the board cannot agree, Archbishop Stritch or some one named by him will be asked to be the final arbitrator.

850 Drivers Already Back.

Approximately 850 of the 4,300 members of the drivers' union already had returned to work under contracts signed by the union with small dairies. About 450 of the 2,000 inside workers also had returned. The inside workers' agreement with the dealers differs in the time limit and in a few minor respects. Negotiations are to be continued to June 14. A Kelly-Courtney conference again is specified, with submission to arbitration, if necessary, on June 16.

Any eventual settlement, in the case of both unions, is to be retroactive to June 1. If the final new contract is at a lower basic wage, drivers and inside workers will return the difference to their employers. If it provides a higher wage, employers will pay the difference to the employés.

The union contracts expired April 30. After a truce ended the first strike May 3, negotiations toward new contracts lagged. A week ago yesterday the dealers posted new basic wage scales of $30 a week.

They said this, with commissions, would bring the drivers $40 a week. They had been making $52 with commissions. At the same time, a new scale posted for inside workers cut wages between $8 and $14 a week. Their pay under the old scale ranged from $35 for clerks to $54 for foremen.

PRESIDENT SAYS HE'D SPEND ANY SUM ON DEFENSE

Calls for Big United Arms Program.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 26.—Asserting that the United States is no longer secure from attack by enemies beyond the seas, President Roosevelt tonight appealed for national unity in development of an invincible national defense.

Addressing the American public in a radio "fireside chat," the President outlined the steps now being taken to strengthen the country's sea, land, and air forces at a present cost of 1¼ billion dollars and gave notice that he would "not hesitate at any moment to ask for additional funds when they are required" for an even greater measure of defense.

"Forces of Destruction."

With the world, including "our own western hemisphere" threatened by "forces of destruction," said Mr. Roosevelt, he and the country are resolved to build our armed defenses "to whatever heights the future may require" and "rebuild them swiftly as the methods of warfare change."

The President warned the country particularly to be on its guard against the menace of the Trojan horse, "the fifth column that betrays a nation unprepared for treachery." We must "deal vigorously," he said, with spies, saboteurs, and traitors.

It is important for the people, Mr. Roosevelt added, to understand the cunning technique of the fifth column, which is to promote discord by encouraging sectional, racial, or political groups "to exploit their prejudices thru false slogans and emotional appeals."

Creating "State of Panic."

"The aim of those who deliberately egg on these groups," said the President, "is to create confusion of counsel, public indecision, political paralysis, and eventually a state of panic." Thru such "clever schemes of foreign agents," sound national policies "come to be viewed with a new and unreasoning skepticism."

The President again flailed those who contend that "what was taking place in Europe was none of our business."

Some, he said, have closed their eyes to the danger, assuming that we could go on living safely in the midst of our vast resources behind our ocean bulwarks. Some, he charged, had closed their eyes because they were "determined to be opposed to their government's foreign policy." These illusions, the President averred, have been shattered by the turn of events in Europe in the last two weeks.

Denies Charges of Waste.

The President was at great pains to deny the charges of waste in the expenditure of 7 billions on national defense by his administration up to date. He enumerated the various items of the expansion of the land and sea and air forces in the last seven years as a result of which the army and navy are today "the largest, the best equipped, and the best trained peacetime military establishment in the history of this country."

Mr. Roosevelt made the number of airplanes and the quantities of arms and other equipment possessed by the army and navy appear larger by adding to the number actually on hand the number "on order." The latter cannot be delivered for several years at the present rate of production.

At some length but in vague generalities the President described how he expects to speed up mass production of armament.

He said the program must be carried out without weakening the minimum wage and maximum hours of labor laws, without "retreat from any of our social objectives."

TEXT OF SPEECH

The text of President Roosevelt's speech follows:

"At this moment of sadness thruout most of the world I want to talk with you about a number of subjects that directly affect the future of the United States. We are shocked by the almost incredible stories that

Student Pilots Are Potential Defense Arm

BY WAYNE THOMIS.

There was abundant proof in the skies over Chicagoland yesterday that America has thousands upon thousands of men available for an air fighting reserve force.

One rain squall after another swept across Cook county, making driving difficult and flying both uncomfortable and hazardous. Yet from 28 little civilian flying fields in the area, a fleet of more than 500 small monoplanes—yellow, red, silver, and cream—buzzed thru the skies most of the day.

The ships were flown by some of the thousands of civilian pilots who are active in the air winter and summer, rain or shine. Weather never keeps them on the ground as harried airline pilots, shepherding a load of passengers down to Chicago airport thru low clouds and rain.

"Puddle Jumper" Flyers.

These are the puddle jumper flyers who, year in and out, fly more miles and passengers than the country's airlines and military squadrons put together.

A preliminary survey of the flying in and around Chicago indicates that 8,000 persons in all are active in flying these ships or some of the slightly larger craft. Yet official statistics from Washington show that only 800, or less than a tenth of this total, are recorded there as holding pilot's certificates. The TRIBUNE yesterday began a survey to discover an answer to the question that naturally arises: "Why?"

Spend Last Dimes to Fly.

"We have more students at this field than at any other civil airport in the county and nearly every one of them spends his last dimes to fly—maybe once or twice a month."

Shumaker said there are more than 600 students on his own lists and those of David Bishop, Dewey Biggs, and Arthur J. Lapointe Jr., who operate instruction schools on the field.

Many of these students, Shumaker said, go along for years without getting a license. They fly so infrequently that their log books are relatively empty, and they can scrape up only enough money to continue dual instruction. Shumaker said that in his 12 years of operating a flying school, there never was such a volume of business as today.

He said many students formerly held certificates and allowed them to lapse, and that others never had been rated as pilots officially. He said there has been a sharp increase in the number of student flyers since the European war began last September.

Has 150 on His Books.

Ham Maurer, operator of flying schools at both Stinson airpost on Joliet road and 55th street, and Ashburn airport at 87th street and Cicero avenue, said he has more than 150 students on his books. Maurer operates Stinson exclusively but there are three other student schools on Ashburn field where an additional 80 students are given instruction and rent small airplanes.

At Lockport, the Lewis Holy Name School of Aeronautics has 70 students receiving instruction under the Civil Aeronautics authority civilian flying program and an additional 70 in the commercial aviation school operated by John Wilson. Wilson is also superintendent of the Lewis school.

"I think the pilot training program now before congress will be based entirely on military requirements," said Wilson yesterday. "Most of the young men who fly here think so, too. They come with the idea that they will be more readily acceptable to the army if they have had some previous flying experience."

STEUBEN SOCIETY ASKS BERMUDAS BE TAKEN IN LIEU OF WAR DEBTS

Rochester, N. Y., May 26 [Special].—The Steuben Society of America today recommended that the United States acquire the Bermuda Islands in lieu of war debt payments to avoid incidents that might bring war to the western hemisphere.

Theodore H. Hoffman, national chairman, lauded the United States policy of paying for new territory and castigated the attitude of debtor nations toward this country.

"If we want to safeguard our Monroe Doctrine," Hoffman said, "we must find ways and means to prevent warlike actions of any kind of this hemisphere. The safest way of accomplishing this is to get rid of other sovereignties in this hemisphere. The Bermudas should be transferred to the United States."

Debt Increase Plans Studied by Roosevelt

Washington, D. C., May 26 (AP).—President Roosevelt was reported in informed circles today to be studying the advisability of asking congress for a $5,000,000,000 increase in the federal debt limit to assure uninterrupted financing of the nation's extraordinary defense program.

Congressional leaders, emphasizing that there appeared to be little disposition to press for enactment of additional taxes at this time, disclosed that there had been discussions at the White House regarding the possibility of an immediate increase in the treasury's $45,000,000,000 statutory borrowing power.

Suggest Five Billion Boost.

The President was said to have been advised that, if any enlargement in the debt limit were asked, it ought to be for at least $5,000,000,000. Then there would be no need of bringing up the question again at any special session that may be called because of European war developments or at the next regular session in January.

Despite an increase of about $850,000,000 in direct appropriations for the army and navy, brought about by President Roosevelt's expanded defense program, some financial experts had believed that the treasury could run along until early next year without the necessity of raising the borrowing limit.

Time Margin Is Small.

However, it was pointed out among administration leaders in congress that an intensive speedup in defense purchases, calling for tremendous cash outlays, might make the margin of time for congressional action rather narrow if nothing were done about the debt limit before the regular session in January.

The possibility of levying additional taxes, a bugaboo of politicians in election years, was said by administration supporters to have been discarded for the present on two grounds: Fear that any tax increase might retard the immediate expansion of industrial facilities needed to implement the defense program, and mechanical difficulties of getting a revenue bill thru congress before expected adjournment about the middle of June.

ARMY STAFF SHAKEN UP AS NAZIS CLAIM CALAIS IS WON

Ironside Replaced by Dill and Given Home Defense Job.

BY JOSEPH CERUTTI.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, May 26.—Great Britain shook up its high command tonight, elevating Lieut. Gen. Sir John Dill, 58 years old, to the supreme command of the imperial general staff.

Gen. Ironside.

Gen. Dill, who only a month ago was named vice chief, replaced Gen. Sir Edmund Ironside, 60, who was given the home defense command. It is Gen. Ironside's task to perfect British defenses against the assault expected from Adolf Hitler's armed forces. Gen. Ironside took Gen. Sir Walter Kirke's place. Kirke will retire.

News from the Front.

The British public today was given the following belated report on the activity of its fighting forces across the channel:

British troops, fighting "magnificently" with their allies, were holding the Germans at bay at Calais [Germany claims the capture of Calais]; there had been no serious attack during the day against the British troops had been dispatched to the aid of Belgium troops on their left after the Germans launched a strong offensive against the Belgian sector, and the royal air force, during yesterday and today shot down 60 German planes.

The admiralty news was not so cheerful. It acknowledged the loss of a destroyer by German bomb action and the sinking of a mine sweeper by a mine.

Highest Place in Army.

Gen. Dill now holds the highest appointment in the British army. His authority embraces the dominions and colonies and he can attend war cabinet meetings to advise on military affairs.

Described by military writers as the "best British general since Marlborough," Gen Dill achieved an outstanding reputation in cleaning up terrorists in Palestine in 1936 when Arab leaders offered $2,500, for his head.

12th Destroyer Loss.

The destroyer sunk by bombs was the Wessex, of 1,100 tons. It was attacked off the coast of France, with a loss of six men. It was the British navy's 12th destroyer loss of the war. The mine sweeper sunk was the Charles Boyes, 270 tons. Fifteen men perished in this sinking.

Additional hospital ships carrying wounded from the battlefields of France and Belgium arrived in British ports today. Three ships reached a south coast port. A seaman aboard one ship said German planes dropped bombs within 300 feet of where the vessels were being loaded. Fourteen of the "several hundred" aboard the ships died en route.

Others of the wounded arrived at a city in the western area of England. The men were taken to three hospitals in the area.

Work in War Factories.

Britain's war machinery whirred today in ceaseless activity for the first time on Sunday in 22 years. Every arms and munitions factory in the country disregarded the Sunday break and continued production in full blast.

Industrial experts estimated the output of munitions in the past seven days was the highest since the war started. Men and women were working side by side in 12 hour shifts.

Hint Air Invasion of England Will Be Launched Soon.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, May 26.—Calais, French port only 22 miles across the English channel from the chalk cliffs of Dover, has been captured, the German high command announced tonight.

[Residents of the southeast coast of England watched gun flashes of a battle in progress in France across the channel last night and reported they saw three separate glows suggesting gigantic fires.]

It was hinted that a land, sea, and air invasion of England may begin soon and German military sources boasted that the English shore would be within easy range when Germany's big guns are placed near Calais.

It is only an 8 minute hop across the channel for German bombers. Germans pointed to Friday night's bombing of British airfields as a forerunner of what the English may expect.

Italy Expected to Join.

Also some Nazi sources asserted tonight that plans have been worked out to such a degree that the Nazi government expects its ally, Fascist Italy, to step into the war the day Germany's main attack on England starts.

[Calais remains in possession of the allies despite German claims of its capture, authorized British sources declared last night.]

On the other hand, one obstacle remained—the British, French, and Belgian forces, numbering close to 1,100,000 men, encircled in southern Belgium and northern France, but still fighting to break out of the encircling German ring.

The Germans admitted that the encircled troops, with their backs to the sea, harassed by German armored divisions and hounded day and night by the dread Stukas [dive bombers], are "offering stubborn and desperate resistance at several points."

Sides Being Compressed.

The crack French, British, and Belgian divisions are being pressed together in an ever narrowing space in Flanders and Artois [around Arras]. To break their resistance, the German air fleets are launching mass attacks. Besides the Stukas and bombers, the Germans are employing pursuit and strafing planes in great numbers to harass enemy positions and marching columns.

While Col. Gen. Walther von Reichenau's forces in Flanders were said to have advanced 10 miles beyond the Lys river to the town of Iseghem, German forces attacking from the southeast now have advanced beyond the lines of Lens and are driving a wedge toward La Bassee, of world war fame, it was stated.

The distance between the two German fronts thus was reduced to 20 miles. The fortress of Lille, which lies between these two fronts, seems to be in imminent danger of being encircled.

Draw String on Small Circle.

Closing the gap at Lille would draw the string on a small circle within the larger German iron ring. This would isolate allied troops within the area bounded by Lille, Valenciennes, Cambrai and Lens from larger forces to the northwest.

South of Lille, the Germans declared, France's crack motorized divisions were reported desperately attempting to break thru the German lines.

"They have only a slim chance of escaping to the coast, where our bombers are taking care of the allied transport fleet," Germans said.

Mass air attacks were made by the German air force on the channel ports of Dunkirk, Ostend and Zeebrugge. At Ostend, the Germans reported, the powder magazine and the naval depot were set afire by aerial bombs and a transport ship was damaged.

Damage Five Enemy Ships.

In the English channel area off Calais German bombers were stated to have damaged "a war vessel," two merchantmen displacing 5,000 tons each, and two smaller merchant vessels. Eyewitnesses reported that the German bombers attacked in such close formation that "the wingtips of the planes almost touched."

Refugees Reach Guernsey from Bombed French Port

LONDON, May 27, Monday (AP).—French refugees, fleeing German bombs, arrived in two fishing smacks at St. Peter-Le-Port, capital of Guernsey Island in the English channel last night. They told of an escape from a large French port while it was being bombed. [Cherbourg is the nearest large port to Guernsey.]

GERMANS CLAIM CALAIS; ENGLAND 22 MILES AWAY

Hint Air Invasion Will Be Started Soon.

ing the fall of Namur and Liege, by going around stoutly resisting points and holding them in a pincers until their resistance collapsed.

The high command said that Calais was seized after "fierce fighting." The harbor had been encircled since Saturday, it was said. German troops pushing northward from Abbeville and Montreuil and around Boulogne had headed northeastward to Calais. One part of the German force laid siege to Calais, while another pushed 12 miles northeastward along the coast to Gravelines, which is halfway between Calais and Dunkirk.

Reduces Chance of Escape.

This leaves only the bigger ports of Dunkirk, in France, and Ostend and Zeebrugge, in Belgium, in the hands of the allies. The capture of Calais further reduced the chances of the trapped troops in Flanders to escape by the sea route.

A number of foreign observers here believe that because an "imminent attack" on England is being mentioned with such insistence by the Nazis, that the main drive may turn in another direction—either on Paris or southward to cut off the Maginot fortified areas from France. Others, however, insist the attack will be in the direction of England and that Italy will come into the war.

Referring to the German raids on British air fields the night of May 24-25, authorized German military sources declared that "all our attacks in Poland, Norway, Holland, Belgium and France were initiated by mass attacks on enemy airfields."

Pick Out Jump Off Fields.

British air fields in the east and southeast of England were bombed "with good effect," it was said. "We picked out the airfields which, according to our reconnaissance planes, served the English as jumping off bases for raids on Germany."

The German war communique claimed that 59 allied planes were destroyed yesterday. The Germans admitted the loss of 11 planes.

[A Belgian communique broadcast from London last night said 255 German planes were brought down within the Belgian lines since the start of the invasion. It was said 500 prisoners were taken yesterday.]

German authorized sources announced the "intensification of submarine warfare and a campaign against English shipping and neutral shipping sailing for England. The warning was repeated to neutral shipping not to sail in allied convoys "because in so doing the neutral ship proves its lack of neutrality and its destruction can be expected."

Claim British Navy Depleted.

According to the estimate of the German naval expert, Rear Admiral Dadow, 40 per cent of the allied fleets has been sunk or disabled. He added, "Britain and France soon will lack sufficient naval forces to protect their convoys."

Newspapers generally boasted today that Germany had seized Britain's blockade weapon and had turned it against her in a "catastrophical" manner.

"Reinforcement of our forces, seen in the widest sense, is assured," said the Hamburger Fremdenblatt, "while England, cut off from all Scandinavia, Holland, Belgium and a great part of France, will have to suffer under a scarcity of all important materials of food and war."

England's Endangered Channel Coast

Map gives the principal towns in the English counties south and east of London. German experts say their guns can drop shells from French coast as far as the naval ports at Chatham and Sheerness.

NAZIS CLAIM ENGLISH SHORE WITHIN EASY RANGE OF BIG GUNS

BERLIN, May 26 (AP).—German long distance guns are capable of dropping shells on the English seaport of Dover as well as the naval harbors of Chatham and Sheerness from positions on the French coast, Lieutenant Commander Pochammer declared today. Writing in the Essener National Zeitung, a newspaper close to Field Marshal Hermann Wilhelm Goering, Pochhammer said:

"From the French bluffs near Cape Gris-Nez [50 to 350 feet high] the chalk cliffs of Dover are only 21 miles, and the naval harbors of Chatham and Sheerness something more than double that distance. They lie, therefore, inside the range of our long distance guns."

The commander belittled the effectiveness of large warships in this area, claiming that German mines, submarines, speedboats, and destroyers would be far more effective in the restricted waters of the English channel.

FRANCE WARNED, DO NOT ACCEPT A SEPARATE PEACE

LONDON, May 26 (AP).—Information Minister Alfred Duff Cooper, broadcasting in French, warned the French people tonight against being "beguiled" into accepting a German peace.

"Germany," he said, "has never kept the terms of any peace treaty."

He declared that "everything is at stake. . . . United we are bound to conquer, separated we might be destroyed. All Germany's efforts now are centered upon effecting a separation."

John Kroll, 23 years old, 4724 South Elizabeth street, and Alexander Kudzia, 26, of 4723 South Racine avenue, were held yesterday by New City police and accused of stealing baking supplies from a bakery at 5359 South Hermitage avenue.

BOMBED YANKEES PAINT RED CROSS OFF AMBULANCES

PARIS, May 26 (AP).—An official of the American Field service, which operates in conjunction with the French army, said today the service had ordered the red crosses on 20 ambulances painted out because they "only attract the attention of German pilots" and "do not protect our men."

"For the last 10 days our cars have been bombed and machine-gunned, sometimes by planes flying as low as 50 feet," the official said.

BRITISH ARMY'S NEW HEAD NOTED AS A STRATEGIST

LONDON, May 26 (AP).—The new British imperial staff commander is said once to have had a price of $2,500 on his head.

For the rebellious Arab chieftain who offered the prize, $2,500 was probably a lot of money, so he apparently put a high value on Lieut. Gen. Sir John Greer Dill, then supreme commander of the British military forces in Palestine.

The story serves to illustrate the character of the man chosen today to replace Gen. Sir Edmund Ironside as head of Britain's army and chief strategist.

Native of Belfast.

Gen. Dill is an Ulsterman, born 58 years ago on Christmas day to John Dill of Belfast and his wife, Jane.

He studied at Cheltenham college and at Sandhurst, the famous military school, and entered the army in 1901. While serving against the Boers in South Africa he won the queen's medal with five clasps.

A tall, well made man, with trim mustache and smiling eyes, he became a captain in 1911, a major in 1914. He served in the world war and was decorated with the distinguished service order for bravery.

Moves Steadily Higher.

Dill became a colonel in 1920, a major general in 1930, and a lieutenant general in April, 1936. After the world war he commanded the 2d infantry brigade, spent two years as army instructor at the Imperial Defense college, and was later commander of the staff college at Camberley. He also served one year in India as principal staff officer at Quetta.

Fellow officers have described him as one of the most brilliant men in the British army and a master strategist. For a time he was director general of military operations and intelligence, serving in that capacity from 1934 to 1936, when he resigned to take supreme command in Palestine, where he remained for a year.

He later commanded Britain's huge infantry base at Aldershot, and last October went to France as commander of the 1st corps of the British expeditionary force. Last month he was appointed vice chief of the imperial general staff to relieve the strain on Gen. Ironside.

FRENCH ADMIT HITLER TROOPS TAKE BOULOGNE

Other German Attacks Reported Repulsed.

PARIS, May 26 (AP).—The ancient port city of Boulogne on the English channel fell to the German invaders today after a bitter siege and fighting in the streets. A military spokesman, however, declared stubborn allied resistance had stalled at least temporarily the German surge thru France and Belgium.

The French high command's night communique acknowledged that Boulogne was captured after the garrison there held out for days against overpowering German forces massed around the stronghold.

German armored columns led the assault. They rushed thru their narrow corridor to the sea, assembled on the fine sand beaches and charged into the streets of the city.

Hold Out in Citadel.

French troops still held out this morning in the old citadel dominating the city, which was fortified in the 17th century by Marshal Vauban, builder of Verdun and other celebrated forts. The small band of French soldiers prevented the Germans from completing occupation of the port.

The fate of the garrison was not announced. The Germans reached the Boulogne region Thursday.

British forces then withdrew to a new line farther north but the French resisted to the end, fighting in the ancient slate roofed stone houses and on the narrow, winding streets.

The loss of Boulogne was a heavy blow. The city, a British base in the world war, was an important port for traffic between France and England. Its 60,000 inhabitants thrive on the fishing industry.

20 Mile Bottleneck.

Calais, the next German objective to the north, was reported here to be still in allied hands. [In Berlin, the German high command announced that Calais had been occupied by the Nazis.]

In the fighting between the Aisne and Meuse rivers the French reported, "entire sections of German infantry" were "mowed down" by the French artillery fire.

The allied forces are attempting to close the 20 mile bottleneck, bounded by the Bapaume and Peronne sectors, thru which the Germans rushed to the sea. The military picture drawn here by authorities indicated that the general position of the lines running from Belgium to northern France had not changed materially in the last day.

Earlier the military spokesman said that three allied armies had hurled back a series of high powered German attacks on strongholds in northern France and Belgium.

New Belgian Positions.

The German thrusts were directed against allied forces extending from the new Belgian position at Courtrai, on the Lys river and about 15 miles north of Lille, France, thru the Flanders battlefields of Valenciennes and Cambrai to the Somme river.

The situation as summed up by the military spokesman follows:

1. Belgian troops at Courtrai not only defended their positions successfully against heavy German attacks but counterattacked to force the enemy to halt the offensive at least temporarily. The final result was that the Germans "gained nothing."

2. Farther south in the Flanders battlefields French troops were in contact with enemy units in "real defensive action." At Valenciennes, two strong German attacks were repelled.

Fire Breaks German Attack.

3. The same determined resistance blocked German attempts to take new territory on the extreme western sector extending roughly from Arras to Boulogne. French and British detachments met Nazi outriders with heavy fire which broke their attacks.

4. On the Somme river in the Amiens region French troops ousted their German opponents from an additional bridgehead. The French advanced along other parts of the river bank.

5. Germans attacking near Montmedy, at the northwestern extremity of the main Maginot line, threw about one division [between 12,000 to 15,000 men] against French positions in an unsuccessful attempt to force a crossing of the Chiers river. The Germans lost heavily under the strong French artillery and machine gun fire.

Weygand Is "Confident."

The stonewall defense against heavy and repeated German attacks was said by the spokesman to have given Gen. Maxime Weygand much satisfaction. He described the generalissimo as "confident and full of hope" as a result of the operations.

An intended German air raid on Paris was reported beaten off when nine Nazi bombers were intercepted by French pursuit craft and six bombers shot down.

Premier Reynaud made a hurried trip to London for conferences with the British prime minister, Winston Churchill, and the British war cabinet. Reynaud's visit was disclosed only after he returned to Paris.

262 GUARDSMEN FINISH COURSES IN SMALL ARMS

Two hundred and sixty-two officers and men of the 33d division, Illinois National Guard, yesterday completed four day courses in the division's sixth annual School of Small Arms at Camp Logan, on the shore of Lake Michigan north of Zion, Ill.

The soldier-students, who were selected to attend the school from National Guard units in all parts of the state, received instruction in the use of the new Garand semi-automatic rifle, the Browning automatic rifle, and .30 caliber machine gun, and various types of trench mortars and howitzers. They were trained to act as instructors in the use of these weapons upon their return to their own companies.

Of 114 officers and men assigned to the course on the Garand rifle, 103 qualified as marksmen yesterday in slow and rapid fire tests on the camp rifle range. Maj. R. W. Barbour of the 132d infantry was in charge of the Garand course.

CARS IN SWISS STREETS GATHER BLOOD FOR WAR

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BASEL, Switzerland, May 26.—Laboratories in cars for the accumulation of blood donations were put in operation in Geneva today. Several days ago hospital authorities advertised for volunteers to give blood for later transfusion to war victims. The response was negligible. The doctors then decided to take the hospital to the people. They established the car laboratories and the response has been spontaneous. People are standing in line for the privilege of donating their blood.

Reported Safe

PARIS, May 26 (AP).—The three children of Leopold III., king of the Belgians, were reported safely installed in a château "somewhere in France" today while the Belgian army commanded by their father fights against German encirclement in Flanders. Crown Prince Baudouin, 9, was said to be asking constantly for news of his father.

The other two children are Princess Josephine Charlotte, 12, and Prince Albert, 5.

FRANCE RUSHES ENLISTMENT OF 'WOMAN'S ARMY'

Auxiliary Must Obey Military Discipline.

BY DAVID DARRAH.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, May 26.—French women of all classes, but particularly intellectuals with college diplomas, are flocking to the recruiting stations established last Friday for enlisting "feminine auxiliaries of military formations."

To date, more than a thousand women had filled out the long and intricate questionnaires with replies which will decide their rank, place and kind of service.

Must Wear Uniforms.

Altho the conditions of enlistment are somewhat different, these auxiliaries will be just as much in the army as any soldier. The members must wear uniforms and will be subject to military discipline. Further, their service may take them to the battle zone.

However, there is one difference. If married the women first must obtain the consent of their husbands before they can enlist.

Can't Be Used in Factories.

An endeavor will be made to place these auxiliaries where they can render the best military service to France, since it is stipulated that they are not to be used as factory girls or office workers.

Each auxiliary will be given a definite rank. The lowest rank will be the auxiliaries of the first and second class, roughly equivalent to army privates. Next will come "team chieftains" and "section chieftains," approximating sergeants and lieutenants.

OKLAHOMA WOMAN KILLED.

Sparta, Ill., May 26 (AP).—Mrs. J. Stewart Smith of Tulsa, Okla., was struck by a truck and injured fatally last night when she was standing on state highway 13, six miles north of Sparta, while her husband was trying to drive his automobile out of a ditch.

WAR IS OLD STORY TO CALAIS; LONG HELD BY BRITISH

Calais, nearest to England of any city on the European continent—22 miles by boat and eight minutes by bomber—served the British as a world war base against Germany but now it may serve the Germans as a springboard for attack on England.

War is an old story to this fortified seaport and manufacturing town whose population in peacetime numbered about 68,000. Calais figured prominently in the early struggles between England and France. For more than 200 years, overlapping into the 14th and 16th centuries, Calais was in British hands. It came again into British hands in the world war, after the failure of the Germans to reach the channel ports, but then the British and French were allies, as now.

Calais was important to the British world war campaign as a port of entry for supplies shipped across the narrow channel. It was bombed often and heavily in the last two years of the war.

The town is divided into two main parts—old Calais and a new section called St. Pierre which was the center of the city's industries before the shadow of German invasion fell across the town. The leading industry was lace making. Other products ranged from artificial ice and hosiery to telephone cables and silk tulle. Fishing also provided a livelihood for many of the inhabitants.

Ramparts surround the city, including seven forts and batteries with a strongly fortified citadel. The neighboring countryside is flat and adaptable to flood defense as an emergency measure.

SHEER NUMBERS HELD KEYNOTE OF NAZI AIR SUCCESS

Blitz Planes Pave Way for Slower Ships.

BY WAYNE THOMIS.

Military experts here who have received reports from the European battle fronts said yesterday that the sheer weight of numbers of Germany's pilots and airplanes has been the deciding factor in giving the Nazis air supremacy.

Furthermore, these observers say, once supremacy has been obtained the Germans do not hesitate to send obsolete types of planes on all sorts of duties. The fact that they are willing to use both old and new types tends to increase their superiority because it gives them many more effective airplanes than would otherwise be available, air experts report.

These watchers assert that the blitzkrieg technique has not varied since the invasion of Poland last September. That technique calls for one supreme effort by the air force in the zone of the thrust. Every available airplane and pilot apparently is gathered and prepared for the zero hour. When it arrives they fly out in groups of hundreds instead of threes or nines—the limit of most formations.

Ground Bases Are Objectives.

None of these ships is intended for combat with enemy planes. Their first purpose is to strike at the enemy ground bases. In Poland, in Norway, in Holland, Belgium, and now in France the targets were the same—the enemy air bases on the ground. Once these are destroyed, along with any planes that happen to be on the ground at the time of the air stroke, the supremacy of German ships in the air is assured.

Polish pilots who escaped to England and France reported that the bombardment of the Polish air dromes began an hour before the first German troops crossed the Polish borders. When efforts were made to foil the raiders by shifting to different fields, the German reconnaissance planes hunted down the new bases and bombed them.

Within 48 hours after Poland was invaded there were no planes other than German in the sky. This made it possible for the Nazis to use such planes as the Junkers Ju52 trimotored ships for transport, supply, observation, and bombardment. The Ju52 is a reliable old type that has been built in thousands in Germany for more than 13 years.

Still Using Speedy Planes.

Air corps officers here say this does not imply that Germany is not continuing to build high performance airplanes. These ships are used for long-range reconnaissance and for bombing of targets such as the British fleet bases at Scapa Flow. These high performance types are used only when the Germans expect to encounter strong resistance.

Thus the first raiders over England were the Heinkel 111 twin motored bombers that had a top speed of almost 300 miles an hour. Over France the long range reconnaissance flyers used Dornier 215 bombers with top speeds of 320 miles an hour. These were the best of their kind in the German forces. More recently they have dispatched to England small formations of Junkers Ju88 bombers that fly at 325 to 330 miles on hour.

But these fast machines are not the blitz aircraft. The backbone of the blitzkrieg air force is the short-range, relatively slow bomber. Two types are used—the Junkers Ju87 dive bomber and the Henschel 115 dive bomber. Neither requires highly trained pilots. Both kinds are available by the thousands.

Huge Formations Reported.

A few dispatches say British and French fighter pilots flying 350 miles an hour fighters were unable to prevent these slow ships from accomplishing their missions. A group of nine fighters, on a number of occasions just after the break thru at Sedan and Longwy, reported encountering formations of more than 100 of these dive bombers.

The allied pilots sailed into the formation and, according to official accounts, knocked down as many as 20 of these ships from a single formation. Nevertheless the majority of the formation of bombers would get thru.

American correspondents with German front line units say masses of men and military materiél choke the roads behind the Nazi lines, but there never is an attack by an allied bomber. Air force authorities here say this is proof of the German air supremacy.

Now the Germans are using the Stuka dive bomber—top speed 190 miles an hour at sea level—and the Henschel dive bomber—top speed 180 at sea level—to bomb Calais, Dunkirk, Dieppe, and the other channel ports. London and the entire south of England is within range of these slow ships, that have a maximum range of only three hours' flying.

Shell Rail Center

BASEL, Switzerland, May 26 (AP).—Heavy artillery of the French Maginot line literally pulverized the important rail junction at Weil, Germany, just north of the Swiss frontier at Basel, in seven hours of intensive shelling this afternoon.

Guns of Germany's Rhineland Gibraltar at Istein replied by pounding the French branch line connecting Maginot river forts with the strategic Burgundian gate, a gap between the Jura and the Vosges mountains before Belfort.

It was apparent that the German artillery scored hits somewhere along the line, for thick clouds of black smoke rose from a point behind the village of Wentzwiller.

There was no doubt about the French hits, however, for they could be seen from here.

It was apparent the Weil rail junction, which links two important German Rhine lines—one from Karlsruhe by way of Freiburg southward along the river and the other from Konstanz via Schopheim and Lorrach westward along the Rhine—was smashed beyond hope of repair for some time.

GERMAN TROOPS MASS IN NORWAY; RAID ON BRITAIN?

Claim Aircraft Carrier Is Sunk Near Narvik.

BY DONALD DAY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, May 26.—Movement of large numbers of German troops toward ports in southwestern Norway was reported by Americans arriving from Oslo today.

Arrow indicates where aircraft carrier was reported sunk.

The concentration of German soldiers in Norway in far greater numbers than is necessary to garrison the country at first caused anxiety in Sweden, but reports from Oslo, Stavanger, Bergen, and other harbors said the Germans were preparing an expeditionary force to invade Britain. The reports also said the Germans were talking about the possibility of landing in Ireland.

After a terrifying sea trip from Germany, many Nazi soldiers were said to be unwilling to embark on another expedition. Minor mutinies were reported, especially among Austrian soldiers.

Claim Plane Carrier Sunk.

BERLIN, May 26 (AP).—An unidentified aircraft carrier was claimed in German radio reports today to have been sunk off Harstad, in the Narvik region of far northern Norway, as a result of bomb hits on Friday and Saturday.

Nazi flyers, finishing off the job started on Friday, hit the carrier with three more bombs, including one of the "heaviest caliber," yesterday and sent it to the bottom, the broadcaster said.

[Informed sources in London denied that an aircraft carrier had been sunk off Norway.]

Report Ships Hit.

The German communique said:

"A great battleship as well as a cruiser received one heavy hit each in the Narvik district. Fire was observed.

Allied Guns Guard Railway.

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, May 26 (AP).—Allied troops have reached Nygaard on the north shore of narrow Rombaks fjord with heavy artillery which can be used to dominate the Narvik ore railway and prevent the German garrison from escaping by that line to Sweden, Norwegian sources reported today. Ten miles of the railway are controled from the new allied position, these sources said.

IRELAND, FEARING INVASION, ACTS TO SAVE OLD SOD

De Valera Calls for Volunteers.

DUBLIN, May 26 (AP).—Ireland, suddenly awakened to the possibilities of invasion and treachery within, is expected to order extraordinary defense measures, including a blackout, before the week is out.

Premier de Valera.

Discussion of Europe's troubles until now has been academic in this capital where so much blood has been spilled.

Premier Eamon de Valera sounded the death knell of complacency last night, when he said in a speech: "There is danger over the country, particularly today, and there is but one safeguard—to be prepared to defend the liberties we won against any one who might try to invade them."

Calls for More Volunteers.

He called today for more volunteers to help police run down "any indication of treachery" and asked for more men to join the colors.

"We really are within the war zone," he said. "It is necessary to get thousands of young men to see that liberties won in the past should not be lost thru negligence."

Other defense measures expected are a form of martial law and an enlarged force to guard the east and west shores.

Application of the blackout would be notable, for the Irish detest it—more because Britain once requested it than because of its inconvenience.

The danger to which Premier de Valera referred, politically minded citizens say, is indicated by such incidents as the recent finding of parachutes, foreign currency, and codes and ciphers in houses known to harbor elements so anti-British that they might become pro-German.

Poet's Wife Haled Into Court.

Mrs. Iseult Stuart, wife of an Irish novelist and poet, was charged in Military court yesterday with assisting a German parachutist who still is at large. Mrs. Stuart's husband is believed to be in Germany.

Another arrested was Stephen C. Held, in whose house was found a parachute, German air force badge, and documents about harbors, bridges, and airdromes.

"Unfortunately," De Valera told constituents at Galway today, "there is a very small group which appears to be meditating treason."

Puts German Plane Output Far Ahead of U.S. Capacity

Washington, D. C., May 26 (AP).—Germany is producing airplanes at the rate of 36,000 annually, and in all the history of American aviation only 46,000 have been manufactured, John Jouett, president of the Aeronautical Chamber of Commerce, told the National Aviation forum tonight. In the next 12 months, he said, the United States is expected to produce 15,000 bombing and fighting planes and the figure may go as high as 20,000.

GERMANS KEPT IN DARK ABOUT NEW SECRET WEAPON

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, May 26.—No mention was made by the German press or radio today of the Nazis' secret weapon of which the foreign press was told yesterday.

THE TRIBUNE correspondent was told that this mention was omitted in Germany "lest the population be tempted to think the war is less dangerous than it actually is. In view of Germany's spectacular successes they might forget the grimness of the conflict."

Authorized German sources said the new weapon was not "the bomb of Jericho" of which soldiers spoke occasionally. These bombs have been used repeatedly in recent battles. The secret weapon referred to was said to be "absolutely new." The term Jericho was applied to a type of bomb because its terrific detonation deafened and frequently paralyzed the opponent who was not equipped with protective devices.

Indians Pray for Allies at Temples and Mosques

BOMBAY, India, May 26 (AP).—Prayers in churches, mosques, and temples were offered thruout India today for the success of the allies. The marquess of Linlithgow, viceroy of India, in a broadcast urged the Indians to give unstinted support to Britain, France, and their allies.

BRITISH DOWN 20 NAZI PLANES IN FOUR HOUR FIGHT

Battle Rages Over French Coast Near Calais.

LONDON, May 26 (AP).—A four hour air battle in which 20 German bombers and fighters were shot down and 20 others put out of action was reported today by the British air ministry. The battle raged from 5:30 to 9:30 o'clock this morning over the French channel coast between the ports of Calais and Dunkirk, the ministry's communique asserted. It added that the British lost only five planes.

"A continuous air battle was fought over the French coast between Calais and Dunkirk," the communique continued. "Pilots reported that the sky was filled with aircraft. A squadron leader spoke of encountering large masses of Messerschmitt 109's.

"One formation of Junkers 88's was trying to bomb ships when a Spitfire squadron approached. Five Messerschmitt 110 twin engined fighters protecting the bombers were put out of action and one of the bombers was destroyed. This brought the squadron's bag of enemy aircraft since Friday morning to 32.

Five Out of Action.

"Twenty Messerschmitt 110's were surprised 17,000 feet above Calais approaching from the sun. British fighters broke up defensive circles which the Nazi fighters tried to form. The Messerschmitts twisted and turned in the air in their efforts to maneuver into a more favorable position, but the British fighters put five of them out of action.

"An hour and a half later, the same squadron destroyed five more Messerschmitts, damaged another five and brought down an army coöperation aircraft. The fight, starting at 10,000 feet, ended low over the French fields with Junkers 87 dive bombers hedge hopping in all directions as they tried to escape from the attacking Spitfires. Before their protecting Messerschmitts could arrive, the Spitfires shot down five and damaged three more."

Bombs Blast Gasoline Dump.

The ministry asserted that a British bomber blew up "another" ammunition and gasoline dump in raids before dawn in the Rhineland and behind the German lines on the western front.

"The attacking aircraft made several runs over the target," the communique said. "Bombs were dropped and from the explosions that followed it was evident that most of the bombs had found their mark. Before the raider departed the whole wood was well ablaze.

"A hundred miles away from this target another bomber arrived over a bridge just as German troops were crossing. Direct hits were scored with the first salvo of bombs, the bridge almost breaking in two. The pilot then came down low and gave his gunner a chance to disorganize that part of the column which had been missed in the first assault.

Troop Train Derailed.

"A third aircraft successfully attacked another bridge and later did considerable damage to a railway junction.

"In other target areas in the rear of the German army a troop train and goods [freight] train were derailed. The troop train received the first direct hit and within a few minutes flames spread from the engine to the rear guard's van. The goods train was stationary near a railway siding which was set on fire by bombs which fell alongside and fires were also started in the goods yard.

"In Germany attacks were made on two airdromes and on a convoy of 12 motor vehicles which was machine gunned from a height of 100 feet after the rear of the convoy had been thrown into confusion by a direct hit by a heavy bomb."

The ministry admitted the loss of two heavy bombers during "further extensive operations against the enemy" thruout the night.

"Medium bombers operating from both Britain and France again made successful attacks by day and by night on enemy armored vehicles, ammunition dumps, and artillery," the ministry continued. "Four of these aircraft are missing.

"Reconnaissance aircraft of the coastal command found oil tanks at Rotterdam still burning this morning after the recent bombing attack. They took the opportunity to bomb several more and set them on fire."

Lawrence Queen

RUTH GRAY.

Appleton, Wis., May 26 [Special].—A Chicago girl, Ruth Gray, of 6759 Bennett avenue, was crowned May queen of Lawrence college today before a large crowd. She is a senior and a member of Kappa Alpha Theta sorority. Mary Young of Appleton, maid of honor; Grace Strong of Evanston; Ruth Lundin of Ironwood, Mich., and Barbara Rounds and Betty White of Appleton were in her court.

POISON GASLESS WAR LINKED TO GERMAN TANKS

PARIS, May 26.—There is increasing speculation here over why poison gas has not been employed by either side in the war.

Experts said mustard gas is among the most effective forms of protection against tanks and other mechanized units. Laid in bands, they declared, gas can seep into a tank and immobilize it for eight days until the gas is cleaned out. It is believed that is one of the reasons the Germans have not employed it.

Rather than take the risk of provoking the retaliatory use of poison gas, it is believed, Germany preferred to rely on dive bombing by her superior air force and on her mechanized columns.

France's high command has been criticized here because it did not use poison gas in an attempt to keep the Germans from crossing the Meuse river. The reply to this is that in the present fighting its use is impossible, or would at least be disadvantageous to both sides.

ROUTS BANDIT WITH GUN.

Ben Cutrone routed a bandit from his tavern at 4207 Elston avenue yesterday by firing three shots from a revolver which he had concealed in a rear room. The bandit fled before he had time to loot the cash register.

BRITISH SHORT OF AMMUNITION FOR POM-POMS

Need Shells for Fighting Off Bombers.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 26.—Military authorities here have been advised by foreign observers that British forces have almost exhausted their stores of pom-pom ammunition.

This ammunition is fired by the Vickers-Maxim one pounder automatic cannon. It is fed from a looped belt attached to the gun.

The weapon, which is popularly called the pom-pom because of its peculiar drumming sound in action, has been widely employed against German dive bombers.

Swoop Near Targets.

Thus far the dive bombers have confined their attacks largely to men of war, swooping down to within a few hundred feet of their target to release their bombs.

The great amount of ammunition used by war vessels against the Nazi planes has, according to reliable reports, virtually exhausted reserve stores of this ammunition, with the result that London defenses against air attacks have been weakened.

Curbs Antiaircraft Defense.

British stores were none too great at the outbreak of the war, as that nation was not prepared for a conflict. Unless production of this ammunition is speeded, experts here feel, a valuable antiaircraft weapon will be enforcedly idle in the event England is subjected to an air blitzkrieg which is expected.

Uruguay Subversion Quiz Expected to Hit Germans

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay, May 26 (AP).—Informed sources said today the parliamentary committee investigating foreign activities in Uruguay was expected to recommend the expulsion of a number of Germans for alleged subversive activities.

Helps Guard Canal

Map shows location of Ecuador (black), which is reported to be co-operating with United States on Panama canal defense.

Washington, D. C., May 26 (AP).—Co-operation between the United States and Ecuador on measures to safeguard the Panama Canal was indicated today by disclosure that military and naval officers of the two countries had just concluded a series of conferences.

State department officials said an army officer and a naval officer had been sent to Ecuador at the request of that government. The conferences were described as a part of the general western hemisphere defense picture.

Dispatches from Guayaquil reported the officers had submitted a memorandum on methods of unifying Ecuadorean land, sea, and air forces, which was said to involve reënforcing both the South American country and the outlying Galapagos Islands with planes, pilots, instructors, and fast naval craft.

The islands are situated in the Pacific less than 1,000 miles from the canal and proposals are pending in congress now for their acquisition by the United States.

Officials noted that altho legal authorization exists for advising governments of other American nations, there is no act to permit the transfer of United States aircraft, ships, or weapons to other countries unless they have been declared to be surplus.

BRITISH FIND NEW HOPE OF ACCORD AS ITALY ARMS

Fascist Youths Ask Duce to Begin War.

BULLETIN.

ROME, May 27, Monday (AP).—War tension continued unabated in Italy today in the face of Great Britain's overtures to relax her contraband control. Italians contended such concessions would fall far short of their "aspirations" and were a last minute effort to deprive Italy of a powerful motive for entering the war.

ROME, May 26 (AP).—The possibility of an agreement between Italy and Britain over the vexatious question of contraband control in the Mediterranean struck a faint note of peace today amid Italy's intensified preparations for war.

A disclosure in British circles that negotiations to soothe Italian irritation over the allied blockade showed promise of success contrasted, however, with Premier Benito Mussolini's conferences with his military chiefs and spectacular demonstrations in Il Duce's presence to whip up popular war spirit.

Youths Plead for War.

Several hundred Fascist youths, a section of a crowd of 10,000, appeared before Mussolini in a war demonstration. As Il Duce stood before them the youths raised great banners bearing such words as "War! War!" and "Duce, we want to march!"

Machine guns and light artillery fire set up a deafening din that caused some astonished spectators to believe war was at the gates of Rome.

The demonstration started as Mussolini began to congratulate the youths on a gymnastic exhibition in Mussolini forum. Mussolini was accompanied by the German ambassador, Hans-Georg Viktor von Mackensen, and members of a Japanese mission that has been in Rome several days.

No comment was available in authoritative Italian circles on statements of the British ministry of economic welfare that Italian authorities had made proposals in the contraband control controversy that were regarded as "affording a very satisfactory basis" for an agreement.

British circles indicated optimism and said negotiations over contraband control, which were begun here by Sir Wilfrid Greene, are continuing, as well as trade talks. Greene has left here for London.

Ready to Waive Sea Control.

Informed Italian circles interpreted the fact that the liner Rex was permitted to pass Gibraltar without inspection on its last voyage, the first time since the war began, as evidence that Britain was prepared to waive her high sea control.

The immunity of the Rex from contraband control has not yet been revealed to the Italian public and some informed Italians insisted that any allied concessions were doomed to failure because of "insufficiency."

Italy to Save Gas.

After Mussolini had conferred with army chiefs, directors of mobilization, and arms producers, orders were issued to expand Italian production of artillery and to conserve the nation's gasoline supplies by suspending civilian motor traffic after June 1.

FLEET OF 4,489 AIRPLANES IN U. S. ARMY AND NAVY

Officers, Enlisted Men Number 70,000.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 26.—The combined air fleets of the United States number 4,489 planes. Of these 1,800 are in the navy and slightly more than 2,600 are in the army air corps.

To man and maintain this air fleet the army, navy, and marine crops have 70,000 officers and enlisted men detailed to the air force.

How this air force compares with that of the other great world powers is shown in the following table, based on the best estimates available to military observers. The table gives the number of planes and the number of men in world air forces.

Nation.	Planes.	Men.
United States	4,489	70,000
Germany	18,000	300,000
Britain	7,000	245,000
Italy	5,000	120,000
France	4,000	85,000
Japan	3,500	40,000

Navy Has 400 Bombers.

The army has 500 bombers, 430 combat planes, 170 observation planes, and 130 reconnaissance planes. The rest of its air fleet is in reserve and training planes. The navy numbers 400 bombers, 350 combat planes, 140 observation planes, 100 reconnaissance planes, and the balance of its force is also in reserve and training planes.

The German air force is estimated to have 4,000 bombers. Russia is believed to have 1,500.

The army air corps today would have been near a strength of 5,500 fighting planes had its expansion program not been sidetracked to rush planes to France and Britain. American plane orders were canceled so that the allies could build up their air forces.

The current air expansion program, authorized under the expanded defense program, would give the nation an air force of 10,000 planes by July 1, 1941, which will be more than enough to defend the nation, experts say.

Call 50,000 Too Many.

In his defense message President Roosevelt suggested the air force be built up to 50,000 planes. Experts consider such a force too large for the job of protecting the western hemisphere.

Of Germany's estimated 18,000 planes, almost none are capable of flying the Atlantic. The Nazi ships were built for war in Europe and not America. There is no danger of an air blitzkrieg directed from Berlin.

Furthermore German planes are built for a maximum of 40 hours in the air. Nazi factories are rushing production of planes of various metal alloys built for a short military life. American planes are built to last for years.

Altho almost none of the army's planes are last minute models, they can be modernized with the addition of armor, bullet sealed gasoline tanks and like improvements.

Produce 10,000 a Year.

American planes are better than any, except those being used by the Germans, as allied purchases bear witness. American plane production has been stepped up to over 10,000 a year.

Assistant Secretary of War Louis Johnson estimates American production will be stepped up to 30,000 planes a year by Christmas. President Roosevelt has fixed a production goal of 50,000 planes a year for the nation.

Such a goal would surpass German production, which is estimated to turn out a maximum of two to three thousand planes a month. Many military experts believe this estimate is far too high.

The army's air corps has been expanded greatly during the last year. The air corps personnel was increased by 25,000 during the year to 45,000 officers and men.

At present 2,400 pilots and 8,000 mechanics are receiving training at various schools. Under the expanded defense program the army plans to step up the pilot training to 7,000 a year.

The nation's air forces have a vast reserve in commercial planes and pilots. The United States leads the world in flying. These planes and pilots will be available for military service in the event of war.

In addition the army and navy will be able to benefit from the Civil Aeronautics authority flying program. This program graduates 11,000 student flyers in the next two months.

With comparatively short military training, these pilots can be trained to fly military craft. The army and navy also have a sizeable reserve of civilians who have taken up flying as a hobby.

[The above is the seventh and final of a series on America's strength on land and sea and in the air.]

RAIDS THRUOUT NATION ROUND UP FRENCH TRAITORS

BULLETIN.

LONDON, May 27, Monday (AP).—Ted Bramley, leader of the London communist party; several pacifists, and 20 British Fascists were arrested yesterday in the drive on potential "fifth columnists," Scotland Yard disclosed today. In all, 70 Fascists are in jail.

BY DAVID DARRAH.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, May 26.—France continued today to take drastic defense measures on the home front, and defeatists, saboteurs, spies, and fifth column suspects were rounded up thruout the country.

Reports from Perpignan, Angouleme, Belfort, Colmar, and other cities indicate that the police crusade to rid France of enemies is not restricted to Paris, where 500 suspects were arrested and 334 sent to concentration camps in the last week. Raids are being made almost everywhere. Foreigners are compelled to show their identity papers, and spreaders of false and alarming news are being arrested.

Officials Are Punished.

Georges Mandel, minister of the interior, also is taking severe action against officials who left their posts of duty in northern France without being ordered to do so. Prefects, police commissioners, and other officials have been transferred, suspended, pensioned, or discharged.

Perpignan reports that Mme. Gabriel Peri, wife of the former communist deputy, has been sent to a concentration camp. Mme. Andre Marty, wife of the so-called "Black sea traitor" and former deputy, and her mother have met a similar fate. Peri and Marty have disappeared, failing to report for military service.

Near Colmar, the police arrested Charles Prevost, editor of La Gazette des Ardennes, which was published by the Germans in occupied French territory during the world war.

Proprietors Held Responsible.

In Belfort, the prefect has warned café proprietors, barbers, restaurant keepers, poolroom owners and others that they will be held responsible for defeatist or alarmist statements made publicly in their establishments [here 31 words were deleted by censor].

Military and civil courts are working overtime in trying the persons caught in the police dragnet. Slightly more than a tenth of the defendants are women, generally wives or sweethearts of communist leaders.

Sentences Up to Five Years.

The prisoners range from 18 to 60 years of age. In most instances the accusation is "communist and defeatist activity."

Over the week-end, in Le Mans, Nancy, Versailles, and Paris, 12 persons were tried for the offense. The lightest sentence was one year, the stiffest five years in prison. At Le Mans, six [one word censored here] were condemned to prison terms of two years for giving up their work without permission.

"Sabotage is a form of treason and therefore punishable by the death sentence" is the substance of a recent decree law. Six persons accused of sabotage will come before the Paris military court tomorrow and may be sentenced to the gallows.

Roger Langeron, prefect of police, has issued a new decree regarding the sale of military uniforms. Military tailors are forbidden to sell allied uniforms except to persons who can prove they are entitled to wear them. This measure is taken to prevent spies or fifth column men from masquerading as allied officers.

In an attempt to round up fake refugees, the ministry of interior has ordered that all persons who have come into France since May 10 must present themselves to the police for questioning.

Couple Robbed of Cash, Gems as They Park Car

William Greenside, 429 Roscoe street, and his wife were held up by two bandits early today as they were parking their car in front of 520 Roscoe street and robbed of $40 in cash and jewelry and a fur valued at $2,300. Greenside, a radio salesmanager, told police the jewelry was insured.

BRITISH PREPARE FOR TERROR THAT HITLER PROMISED

Provisions Made to Care for the Dead.

BY DONALD MACKENZIE.

[Staff writer, New York News, formerly news editor London Daily Mirror, who has just arrived in New York.]

New York, May 26.—Thruout eastern Britain army engineers, soldiers, and home defense volunteers are working day and night mining roads, bridges, and railway lines, strengthening coastal defenses, digging trenches and stretching barbed wire entanglements in the path of the army which Adolf Hitler has declared will occupy London before June is out.

Since Saturday morning the broad highways which lead from London and the coast to the west and southwest of the island have been closed to all traffic except army transports and 5,000 buses commandeered by the government for the compulsory evacuation of women and children from the danger zones.

The Second Exodus.

This is the second exodus. At the beginning of the war some 700,000 children were moved from London to the country safety areas in 48 hours. As many more were taken away from the large cities of the midlands and the north.

Big businesses, government departments, and great public utility corporations went west in that great trek at the start of the war. But fear abated as the weeks passed without raids. Homes gloomily silent in the absence of mothers and children, reawakened to the trickle home of the evacuated vanguard. It soon became a torrent, and, before Christmas, 90 per cent of the exiles were back in the cities.

The pleas of Sir John Anderson, minister for home security, could not dam the flood. There were several reasons why. Most important was the inability of most fathers to support two homes. The evacuees came chiefly from slum or impoverished suburbs where the adult wage level averages less than $10 a week—as it does for the great majority of the British working population.

Cruelties Charged.

The majority of the evacuated youngsters found simple, kindly foster parents among those compelled by law to billet them. But there were too many cruel persons who abused the unwelcome waifs. One such repeatedly burned the palms of a 10 year old boy with the butt of a lighted cigaret. Terrified by ill usage, some of the children ran away and some as young as 8 years walked, hitch-hiked, or traveled by heaven knows what means 60 or 70 miles to their homes.

Apprehensive parents promptly brought their families back and the evacuation scheme was scuttled.

Reports began to circulate of grave moral lapses, in which young and irresponsible, evacuated wives, and soldiers from neighboring camps were reported hitting the high spots in village gin palaces. This unsettled many husbands and dealt a final knockout to evacuation.

To safeguard the populated cities the government speeded up air raid precautions and auxiliary fire service. Raid shelters were built by the tens of thousands—several to every quarter mile of street. To every three shelters was allotted a room with tables. These rooms were always kept locked and raid wardens would not speak about them. They are the mortuaries.

Expect Heavy Casualties.

For in the first bombing raid on London, alone, the authorities expect to handle 1,000,000 casualties. All the hospitals were evacuated of every patient it was possible to move and 500,000 beds await the badly wounded victims of bombs. The stalls of one of the biggest markets in the metropolis, closed since last September, are piled high with thousands of papier mache coffins to handle the dead.

It is estimated also that up to 100,000 fires may rage after any large scale raid and that the greater part of big cities may be blaze girdled almost instantaneously. So extensive do experts expect the fires and casualties to be that half of London's taxicabs have been converted into emergency fire engines, trailing pumps; thousands of big private cars have had the bodies cut in half and replaced by rough square wooden ambulance trays that will carry six stretchers. All the big luxury coaches normally plying on out of town runs have had doors cut in the back panels and the seat fittings have been modified to enable stretchers to be slipped in, thus converting the conveyance into a casualty truck.

All these horror pictures have been kept from the English masses. Perhaps it is kinder to keep the potential victims in happy ignorance of the terrors that may lie ahead. That is the official viewpoint, anyway.

NAZI GENERALS ARE CONFIDENT OF VICTORY NOW

Don't Even Bother to Hide Plans for the Future.

BY LOUIS P. LOCHNER.

WITH THE WESTERN GERMAN ARMIES, May 26 (AP).—The progress of the German offensive has imbued army leaders with a buoyancy of spirit and a confidence which make it difficult for an observer to realize a bitterly fighting allied army is not far away.

German army leaders are so cocksure of victory that questions which would have been shunted aside a few months ago as bearing on important military information are discussed today with utmost frankness.

Don't Even Hide Maps.

When correspondents entered staff headquarters no effort was made to hide highly significant maps. One commanding general had an enormous map indicating not only how the pincer movement was to work against the allied forces in northwestern France and Belgium, but beyond that how troops were to move in the offensive on England.

He did not bother to remove it as we entered his private workroom. Nobody seems to care any longer whether the enemy knows the German plans.

Gain 1,000 Bales of Wool.

This feeling of confidence in their arms has been nourished by the rich material booty obtained in Holland and Belgium. One thousand bales of American wool were seized on a dock in Antwerp, and this was but one find.

Large gasoline reserves were another, together with other raw materials.

Dahl Seeks Job Training Canadian War Aviators

OTTAWA, Canada, May 26 (AP).—Harold E. Dahl, Champaign, Ill., flyer who served with the Spanish Loyalist army, arrived here today. He said he hoped to get a position as instructor in the British commonwealth air training program. Dahl was captured by the nationalists during the Spanish civil war, and was saved from a death sentence when his wife appealed to his captor, Generalissimo Francisco Franco.

GERMANS WARN AMERICA: BRITISH WILL SINK LINER

Charge Plot to Get U.S. Into War.

BERLIN, May 27, Monday (AP).—DNB, official German news agency, reported from Boston it had learned on "good authority" that the United States liner President Roosevelt, shortly to return to the United States with Americans from Ireland, "might be subjected to attack by the British in a trick to involve the United States in war."

Dienst aus Deutschland, a commentary close to the German government, at the same time warned the world against "another Athenia incident."

Nazis Accuse British.

German sources persistently have said that the sinking of the British liner Athenia on the first day of the war with the loss of 112 lives was the result of a British maneuver to arouse American indignation against Germany.

Dienst aus Deutschland said the German navy was taking extraordinary precautions to assure a safe crossing of the President Roosevelt.

It added that standing orders to the German navy would be sufficient to guarantee safe crossing so far as Germany is concerned, but that special measures were taken so there would be no hitch.

Alexander Kirk, chargé d'affaires, informed the German government that the President Roosevelt will reach Galway, Ireland, on June 2, and that the ship will travel fully lighted and without convoy. These are Germany's requirements to assure immunity for neutral ships.

[Last October Admiral Eric Raeder, commander in chief of the German fleet, warned President Roosevelt that a British plot to sink the American ship Iroquois had been discovered. American naval units met the Iroquois at sea and escorted it safely to the United States.]

Consulate Issues Denial.

Boston, Mass., May 26 (AP).—A spokesman said tonight the German consulate in Boston had no knowledge of a report carried by DNB, official German news agency, that the United States liner President Roosevelt "might be subjected to attack by the British."

Informed of a Berlin dispatch saying DNB reported from Boston that it had learned on "good authority" that the liner might undergo attack, the spokesman said: "We have no knowledge of that information here."

He said he spoke for the consulate in the absence of the consul, Dr. Herbert Scholz, who was out of the city.

PANAMA SEIZES TEN IN ALLEGED PLOT FOR REVOLUTION

PANAMA, May 26.—The government is reported to have thwarted an alleged plot for a revolution aimed to prevent the holding of elections for president next Sunday.

Ten leaders of the party supporting Dr. Ricardo Alfaro, former president, including Francisco Arias Paredes, former presidential candidate, are said to have been arrested. Dr. Alfaro and 15 others have taken refuge in the Canal Zone.

Dr. Arnulfo Arias, brother of former President Hermodio Arias, is the other presidential candidate.

ARMY WILL BUY 1,000 FIGHTING TANKS FROM A PRIVATE COMPANY

Rock Island, Ill., May 26 [Special].—The army ordnance department will open bids from private manufacturers for 1,000 fighting tanks in two weeks, it was learned at the arsenal here today. The order will be one of the largest to be placed since the army started giving educational orders to private munitions makers.

Bids were opened at the arsenal Friday for 350 carriages for the .37 millimeter antitank gun. Bids will be opened this week for a quantity of armor plate. Representatives of industrial firms report that they are experiencing considerable difficulty in obtaining the services of tool makers and other skilled workers.

Col. A. G. Gillespie, former commandant of the arsenal and now head of the artillery vehicle manufacturing for the U. S. army in Washington, D. C., in a telephone conversation with Col. Norman F. Ramsey, arsenal commandant, made an urgent request to speed up all preparatory work for the coming expansion in manufacturing.

PRESIDENT SAYS HE'D SPEND ANY SUM ON DEFENSE

Calls for a Huge United Arms Program.

come to us of what is happening at this moment to the civilian populations of Norway and Holland and Belgium and Luxemburg and France.

"I think it is right on this Sabbath evening that I should say a word in behalf of women and children and old men who need help—immediate help in their present distress—help from us across the seas, from us who are still free to give it.

"Tonight over the once peaceful roads of Belgium and France millions are now moving, running from their homes to escape bombs and shells and fire, without shelter, and almost wholly without food. They stumble on, knowing not where the end of the road will be.

Asks Aid to Red Cross.

"I remind you of these people because each one of you that is listening to me tonight has a way of helping them. The American Red Cross, which represents each of us, is rushing food, clothing, and medical supplies to these destitute millions. Please—I beg you—give according to your means to your nearest Red Cross chapter. Give as generously as you can. I ask this in the name of our common humanity.

"Let us sit down again, together, you and I, to consider our own pressing problems that confront us.

"There are many among us who in the past closed their eyes to events abroad—because they believed in utter good faith what some of their fellow Americans told them—that what was taking place in Europe was none of our business; that no matter what happened over there the United States could always pursue its peaceful and unique course in the world.

"There are many among us who closed their eyes from lack of interest or lack of knowledge; honestly and sincerely thinking that the many miles of salt water made the American hemisphere so remote that the people of North, Central, and South America could go on living in the midst of their vast resources without reference to, or danger from, other continents of the world.

Blames "Minority Groups."

"There are some among us who were persuaded by minority groups that we could maintain our physical safety by retiring within our continental boundaries—the Atlantic on the east, the Pacific on the west, Canada on the north, and Mexico on the south. I illustrated the futility—the impossibility—of that idea in my message to the congress last week. Obviously, a defense policy based on that is merely to invite future attack.

"And, finally, there are a few among us who have deliberately and consciously closed their eyes because they were determined to be opposed to their government's foreign policy, to be partisan, and to believe that anything that the government did was wholly wrong.

"To those who have closed their eyes for any of these many reasons, to those who would not admit the possibility of the approaching storm—to all of them the past two weeks have meant the shattering of many illusions.

"They have lost the illusion that we are remote and isolated and, therefore, secure against the dangers from which no other land is free.

"Bordering on Panic."

"In some quarters, with this rude awakening, has come fear bordering on panic. It is said that we are defenseless. It is whispered by some that only by abandoning our freedom, our ideals, our way of life, can we build our defenses adequately, can we match the strength of the aggressors.

"I did not share those illusions. I do not share these fears.

"We are now more realistic. But let us not be calamity howlers and discount our strength. Let us have done with both fears and illusions. On this Sabbath evening, in our homes in the midst of our American families, let us calmly consider what we have done and what we must do.

"In the last two or three weeks all kinds of stories have been handed out to the American public about our lack of preparedness. It has even been charged that the money we have spent on our military and naval forces during the last few years has gone down the rat hole. I think that it is a matter of fairness to the nation that you hear the facts.

"We have spent large sums of money on the national defense. This money has been used to make our army and navy today the largest, the best equipped, and the best trained peacetime military establishment in the history of this country.

"Let me tell you just a few of the many things accomplished during the last few years.

"I do not propose to go into every detail. It is a known fact, however, that in 1933, when this administration came into office, the United States navy had fallen in standing among the navies of the world, in power of ships and in efficiency, to a relatively low ebb. The relative fighting power of the navy had been greatly diminished by failure to replace ships and equipment which had become out of date.

"Between 1933 and 1940—seven fiscal years—your government will have spent $1,487,000,000 more than it spent on the navy during the seven years before 1933.

"What did we get for this money?

"The fighting personnel of the navy rose from 79,000 to 145,000.

"During this period 215 ships for the fighting fleet have been laid down or commissioned, practically seven times the number in the preceding similar period.

"Of these we have commissioned 12 cruisers, 63 destroyers, 26 submarines, 3 aircraft carriers, 2 gunboats, 7 auxiliaries, and many smaller craft. Among the many ships now being built and paid for are eight new battleships.

"Navy Far Stronger."

"Ship construction costs millions of dollars—more in the United States than anywhere else in the world; but it is a fact that we cannot have adequate naval defense for all American waters without ships—ships that sail the surface of the ocean, ships that move under the surface, and ships that move thru the air.

"And, speaking of airplanes that work with the navy, in 1933 we had 1,127 useful aircraft and today we have 2,892 on hand and on order. Nearly all of the 1933 planes have been replaced by new planes because they became obsolete or worn out.

"The navy is far stronger today than at any peacetime period in the whole long history of the nation. In hitting power and in efficiency I would even make the assertion that it is stronger today than it was during the world war.

"The army of the United States in 1933 consisted of 122,000 enlisted men. In 1940 that has been practically doubled. The army of 1933 had been given few new implements of war since 1919 and had been compelled to draw on old reserve stocks left over from the world war.

"The net result of all this was that our army by 1933 had very greatly declined in its ratio of strength with the armies of Europe and the far east.

"That was the situation I found.

"Since then great changes have taken place.

"Between 1933 and 1940—seven fiscal years—your government will have spent $1,292,000,000 more than it spent on the army the previous seven years.

"What Did We Get?"

"What did we get for this money?

"The personnel of the army has been almost doubled. And by the end of this year every existing unit of the present regular army will be equipped with its complete requirements of modern weapons. Existing units of the National Guard will also be largely equipped with similar items.

"Here are some striking examples taken from a large number:

"Since 1933 we have actually purchased 5,640 airplanes, including the most modern type of long-range bombers and fast pursuit planes, tho, of course, many of these which were delivered four, five, six, or seven years ago have worn out thru use and been scrapped.

"These planes cost money—a lot of it. For example, one modern four engine long range bombing plane costs $350,000; one modern interceptor pursuit plane costs $133,000; one medium bomber costs $160,000.

"In 1933 we had only 355 antiaircraft guns. We now have more than 1,700 modern antiaircraft guns of all types on hand or on order. And you ought to know that a three inch antiaircraft gun costs $40,000 without any of the fire control equipment that goes with it.

Mortar Strength Increased.

"In 1933 there were only 24 modern infantry mortars in the entire army. We now have on hand and on order more than 1,600.

"In 1933 we had only 48 modern tanks and armored cars; today we have on hand and on order 1,700. Each one of our heavier tanks costs $46,000.

"There are many other items in which our progress since 1933 has been rapid. And the great proportion of this advance has been during the last two years.

"In 1933 we had 1,263 army pilots. Today the army alone has more than 3,200 of the best fighting flyers in the world, who last year flew more than one million hours in combat training. This does not include the hundreds of splendid pilots in the National Guard and organized reserves.

"Within the past year the productive capacity of the aviation industry to produce military planes has been tremendously increased. This capacity today, however, is still inadequate But the government, working with industry, is determined to increase this capacity to meet our needs. We intend to harness the efficient machinery of these manufacturers to the government's program of being able to get 50,000 planes a year.

Seeks "Unity of Control."

"One additional word about aircraft. Recent wars, including the current war in Europe, have demonstrated beyond doubt that fighting efficiency depends on unity of control.

"In sea operations the airplane is just as much an integral part of unity of operations as are the submarine, the destroyer, and the battleship; and in land warfare the airplane is just as much a part of military operations as are the tank corps, the engineers, the artillery, or the infantry itself. Therefore, the air forces should be part of the army and navy.

"At my request the congress is voting the largest appropriation ever asked by the army or the navy in peacetime; and the equipment and training provided by them will be in addition to the figures I have given you.

"The world situation may so change that it will be necessary to reappraise our program at any time. In such a case I am confident that the congress and the chief executive will work in harmony as a team—as they are doing today.

Additional Funds.

"I will not hesitate at any moment to ask for additional funds when they are required.

"In this era of swift, mechanized warfare, we all have to remember that what is modern today and up to date, what is efficient and practical, becomes obsolete and outworn tomorrow.

"Even while the production line turns out airplanes, new ones are being designed on the drafting table.

"Even as a cruiser slides down the ways, plans for improvement, plans for increased efficiency in the next model are taking shape in the blueprints of designers.

"Every day's fighting in Europe, on land, on sea, and in the air, discloses constant changes in methods of warfare. We are constantly improving and redesigning, testing new weapons and seeking to produce in accordance with the latest that the brains of science conceive.

"We are calling upon the resources, the efficiency, and the ingenuity of American manufacturers of war matériel of all kinds—airplanes, tanks, guns, ships, and all the hundreds of products that go into this matériel.

Source: Private Industry.

"The government of the United States itself manufactures few of the implements of war. Private industry will continue to be the source of most of this matériel; and private industry will have to be speeded up to produce it at the rate and efficiency called for by the needs of the times.

"I know that private business cannot be expected to make all the capital investment required for expansions of plants and factories and personnel which this program calls for at once. It would be unfair to expect industrial corporations to do this, when there is a chance that a change in international affairs may stop future orders.

"Therefore, the government of the United States stands ready to advance the necessary money to help provide for the enlargement of factories, the establishment of new plants, the employment of thousands of necessary workers, the development of new sources of supply for the hundreds of raw materials required, the development of quick mass transportation of supplies. The details of this are now being worked out in Washington, day and night.

"We are calling on men now engaged in private industry to help us in carrying out this program, and you will hear more of this in the next few days.

Up to Private Plants.

"This does not mean that the men we call upon will be engaged in the actual production of this matériel. That will still have to be carried on in the plants and factories thruout the land. Private industry will have the responsibility of providing the best, speediest, and most efficient mass production of which it is capable. The functions of the business men whose assistance we are calling upon will be to coördinate this program—to see to it that all of the plants continue to operate at maximum speed and efficiency.

"Patriotic Americans of proven merit and of unquestioned ability in their special fields are coming to Washington to help the government with their training, experience, and capability.

"It is our purpose not only to speed up production but to increase the total facilities of the nation in such a way that they can be further enlarged to meet emergencies of the future.

"Things to Watch."

"But as this program proceeds there are several things we must continue to watch and safeguard, things which are just as important to the sound defense of a nation as physical armament itself. While our navy and our airplanes and our guns may be our first lines of defense, it is still clear that way down at the bottom, underlying them all, giving them their strength, sustenance, and power, are the spirit and morale of a free people.

"For that reason, we must make sure, in all that we do, that there can be no breakdown or cancellation of any of the great social gains which we have made in these past years. We have carried on an offensive on a broad front against social and economic inequalities and abuses which had made our society weak. That offensive should not now be broken down by the pincers movement of those who would use the present needs of physical military defense to destroy it.

"There is nothing in our present emergency to justify making the workers of our nation toil for longer hours than now limited by statute. As more orders come in and as more work has to be done, tens of thousands of people, who are now unemployed, will receive employment.

Concerning Wages.

"There is nothing in our present emergency to justify a lowering of the standards of employment. Minimum wages should not be reduced. It is my hope, indeed, that the new speed-up of production will cause many businesses which now pay below the minimum standards to bring their wages up.

"There is nothing in our present emergency to justify a breaking down of old age pensions or unemployment insurance. I would rather see the systems extended to other groups who do not now enjoy them.

"There is nothing in our present emergency to justify a retreat from any of our social objectives—conservation of resources, assistance to agriculture, housing, and help to the under-privileged.

"Conversely, however, I am sure that responsible leaders will not permit some specialized group, which represents a minority of the total employés of a plant or industry, to break up the continuity of employment of the majority of the employés. The policy and the laws providing for collective bargaining are still in force. And labor will be adequately represented in Washington in this defense program.

"No War Millionaires."

"Also, our present emergency and a common sense of decency make it imperative that no new group of war millionaires come into being in this nation as a result of the struggles abroad. The American people will not relish the idea of any American citizen growing rich and fat in an emergency of blood and slaughter and human suffering.

"And, finally, this emergency demands that the consumers of America be protected so that our general cost of living can be maintained at a reasonable level. We ought to avoid the spiral processes of the world war. The soundest policy is for every employer in the country to help give useful employment to the millions who are unemployed. By giving to those millions an increased purchasing power, the prosperity of the whole country will rise to a much higher level.

"Today's threat to our national security is not a matter of military weapons alone. We know of new methods of attack.

"Spies, Saboteurs, Traitors."

"Spies, saboteurs, and traitors are the actors in this new strategy. With all of these we must deal vigorously.

"But there is an added technique for weakening a nation at its very roots, for disrupting the entire pattern of life of a people. It is important that we understand it.

"The method is simple. First, discord. A group—not too large—a group that may be sectional or racial or political—is encouraged to exploit their prejudices thru false slogans and emotional appeals. The aim of those who deliberately egg on these groups is to create confusion of counsel, public indecision, political paralysis, and, eventually, a state of panic.

"Sound national policies come to be viewed with a new and unreasoning skepticism, not thru the wholesome political debates of honest and free men, but thru the clever schemes of foreign agents.

"As a result of these new techniques armament programs may be dangerously delayed. Singleness of national purpose may be undermined. Men can lose confidence in each other and therefore in the efficacy of their own united action. Faith and courage yield to doubt and fear. The unity of the state is so sapped that its strength is destroyed.

"All this is no idle dream. It has happened time after time, in nation after nation, during the last two years. Fortunately, American men and women are not easy dupes. Campaigns of group hatred or class struggle have never made much headway among us and are not making headway now. But new forces are being unleashed, deliberately planned propagandas to divide and weaken us in the face of danger as other nations have been weakened before.

"These dividing forces are undiluted poison. They must not be allowed to spread in the new world as they have in the old. Our moral and mental defenses must be raised as never before against those who would cast a smoke screen across our vision.

"The development of our defense program makes it essential that each and every one of us feel that we have some contribution to make toward the security of our country.

"My Resolve and Yours."

"At this time, when the world—and the world includes our own American hemisphere—is threatened by forces of destruction, it is my resolve and yours to build up our armed defenses.

"We shall build them to whatever heights the future may require.

"We shall rebuild them swiftly, as the methods of warfare swiftly change.

"For more than three centuries we have been building on this continent a free society, a society in which the promise of the human spirit may find fulfilment. Commingled here are the blood and genius of all the peoples of the world who have sought this promise.

"We have built well. We are continuing our efforts to bring the blessings of a free society, of a free and productive economic system to every family in the land. This is the promise of America.

"It is this that we must continue to build—this that we must continue to defend.

"For All Mankind."

"It is the task of our generation. But we build and defend not for our generation alone. We defend the foundations laid by our fathers. We build a life for generations yet unborn. We defend and we build a way of life, not for American alone but for all mankind. Ours is a high duty, a noble task.

"Day and night I pray for the restoration of peace in this mad world of ours. It is not necessary that I, the President, ask the American people to pray in behalf of such a cause—I know you are praying with me.

"I am certain that out of the hearts of every man, woman, and child in this land, in every waking minute, a supplication goes up to Almighty God; that all of us beg that suffering and starving, that death and destruction may end—and that peace may return to the world. In common affection for all mankind, your prayers join with mine—that God will heal the wounds and the hearts of humanity."

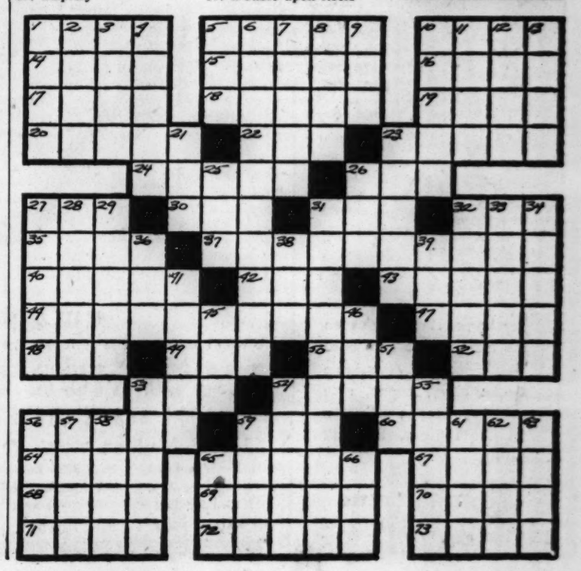
PUZZLE OF SATURDAY, MAY 25, SOLVED



Hindsight and Foresight

By HOLGAR J. JOHNSON

President, Institute of Life Insurance

THE very tips of your fingers and the ends of your toes get blood and nourishment from your heart.

And the way your heart distributes your blood is not unlike the way your life insurance money has gone into the blood stream of business. Its investments put life into a vast coast-to-coast system of human enterprise.

The premiums you have paid—are they now buried away in some safe-deposit vault? No . . . trace them down and you'll find a part is helping make a job for a young engineer in a California power plant. Or you may have helped build the new schoolhouse where your youngsters will get their education.

This is a simplified picture of what happens after an agent sells you insurance and the company invests the reserves behind your insurance in mortgages, public utility or school bonds or other sound securities, so they may earn interest to help pay for your insurance.

YOUR LIFE INSURANCE RESERVES have helped this country enjoy the purest drinking water in the world . . . to increase the mileage of our hard-surfaced roads . . . to equip a splendid transportation system . . . to build homes and expand industry.

Note that these securities are spread all over the country, not just concentrated in any single locality or industry . . . many baskets for many eggs! Strict tests of safety are applied to each investment.

• • •

And note the double purpose the life insurance companies serve. At one end they provide you with security. At the other end—the investment end—they promote private and public enterprise everywhere in America.

NOTE: In this regular Monday column, paid for at advertising rates, the Institute of Life Insurance has asked its president to discuss questions of interest to life insurance policyholders. Inquiries may be addressed to 60 East 42nd Street, New York City.

DEWEY BLAMES ROOSEVELT FOR NATION'S PERIL

Inadequate Defense Laid to One-Man Rule.

St. Louis, Mo., May 26 [Special].—Thomas E. Dewey, candidate for the Republican presidential nomination, charged here today that President Roosevelt was directly responsible for the present inadequateness of the national defenses.

In a brief press conference, Dewey held that the unpreparedness of the nation represented a national disgrace and also a national calamity. The district attorney is en route to Dallas, Tex., where he will speak tomorrow night at a pre-convention rally of the Republican state convention.

Met at the station by newspaper reporters, and asked if he had anything to say about the problem of national defense, Dewey replied:

"I intend to discuss with absolute frankness the condition of our national defenses on a national radio hookup from Dallas, Tex., tomorrow night.

One-Man Government.

"It is a national disgrace and also a national calamity for which the President is directly responsible. For more than two years, until January, 1940, we had no active secretary of the navy and the present secretary is running for governor of the state of New Jersey. It has long been a notorious fact that the secretary of war and the assistant secretary of war are not on speaking terms.

"Under these conditions, no competent national defense is possible.

"For seven years we have had practically no cabinet and we are just beginning to learn the frightful consequences of one-man government. I intend to discuss these consequences and also the way out which must be taken."

Just what plan Dewey would advance for the way out in his speech in Dallas tomorrow night, was a closely guarded secret by Dewey and members of his party.

May Answer Roosevelt.

In addition to the national defense, it is known that Dewey will also talk on the foreign situation and his speech is expected to be a possible answer to President Roosevelt's national defense speech of tonight.

En route here today, Dewey was greeted by a crowd of nearly 200 persons at Terre Haute, Ind., when his train stopped there. Following his customary practice, Dewey left the train and mingled with the crowd, shaking hands with as many as possible.

Dewey will arrive in Dallas early tomorrow morning and will spend the time before he is scheduled to speak in conferences with political leaders and representatives of labor, farm and business organizations.

JAP DRIVE NEAR CANTON STRIKES FOE'S TRENCHES

HONG KONG, May 26.—A recently forecast Japanese offensive in Kwangtung province began Wednesday and now is reaching its maximum effort in the Tsungfa sector with a drive from Liangkow, 60 miles north of Canton. A Japanese column of 6,000 men captured Liangkow Thursday, but now is meeting entrenched Chinese forces to the north.

Meanwhile 5,000 Japanese along the Canton-Hankow railway are thrusting from Sunkai toward Pakong, and 7,000 Japanese in Tsengshing, north of the East river, are driving north to support the Liangkow offensive. Nearly 5,000 Japanese in Sheklung on the Canton-Kowloon railway are reported to be preparing to advance on Waichow along the East river.

It is believed these attacks at several points are intended to split up and confuse the defense, but the Chinese were forewarned and have troops at all threatened points, it is said. The Chinese claim to have inflicted 3,000 Japanese casualties.

ENGLAND PRAYS AMID SUNDAY DIN OF WAR PLANTS

Woman's Shout of 'Peace' Interrupts Service.

LONDON, May 26 (AP).—The chiming of hundreds of bells rose above the strange Sunday clatter of Great Britain's war making machinery today, calling the nation to prayer against the German legions battering allied armies along the French coast, only 22 miles across the Strait of Dover.

While the faithful bowed in supplication over all the country, factories turning out war materials were going at full blast, working a seven day week for the first time since 1918.

Only one jarring note was sounded on this national day of prayer—a woman's shout of "Peace!" interrupted the sermon of Cardinal Arthur Hinsley, Roman Catholic prelate, in Westminster cathedral. She was ejected.

King Leads Prayer.

In gloomy Westminster abbey, filled with memorials to men who overcame other challenges to Britain's existence, King George VI. led the prayer he had requested thruout the empire. Queen Elizabeth and Queen Wilhelmina of the Netherlands accompanied him, and Prime Minister Winston Churchill and many members of the cabinet and their wives were in the congregation.

"The centuries rebuke the fears and calm the anxieties of the hour," said the archbishop of Canterbury. "Here in the stillness of this church, moved by all the memories which surround us, we commit ourselves and our cause to God."

It was in the ancient abbey, where many of England's sovereigns lie buried and where the nation's unknown warrior of the world war lies entombed, that the archbishop crowned King George only three years ago.

Tells of "Darkest" Hour.

"We have been called to take our place in a mighty conflict against the powers of evil and we ask God's strength that we may be found worthy of that high calling," the archbishop said after telling his vast congregation that the present dangers besetting the nation were the darkest in its history.

The king, perhaps to acknowledge the immediate and tremendous importance to Britain of her air force, wore the pale blue uniform of a marshal of the Royal Air force, the highest R. A. F. rank. He carried a gas mask on his shoulder.

Prime Minister Churchill, his predecessor, Neville Chamberlain; Maj. Clement R. Attlee, Lord Halifax, and Arthur Greenwood, all members of Churchill's recently formed cabinet, occupied choir stalls. Sir Dudley Pound, first sea lord, and Sir Cyril Newall, air chief, and the Belgian and French ambassadors attended.

Prayers were offered for the wounded, for all who are fighting, for Britain's allies, and for the countries conquered by Germany.

Big Crowd Cheers Outside.

The archbishop of York and Dr. Leslie Weatherhead, noted nonconformist preacher, delivered broadcast sermons. All synagogues in London held special services, and most of the Sunday street markets, including the famous Petticoat lane, were closed.

Dowager Queen Mary, born 73 years ago today, celebrated the anniversary quietly in the west country village where she has been living since the war started. She went to the village church to join the nation in prayer.

"Murderers" Screams Woman.

The woman who interrupted Cardinal Hinsley's sermon was about 30 years old. The cardinal had just said, "There can be no peace," when the woman shouted "Peace!"

The cardinal repeated: "There can be no peace until . . .," and two men in the congregation lifted the woman, who began to struggle, from her seat and handed her over to an usher.

"Murderers!" she screamed. "My house is a house of prayer, Ye have made it into a . . ."

The usher led her away. The cardinal's sermon was being broadcast by the British Broadcasting corporation, which quickly shut it off and substituted phonograph records for the clamor.

The last previous national day of prayer was on Aug. 6, 1918, three months before the armistice in the world war.

BATTLESHIPS FOR DESTROYERS.

The British have opened negotiations to buy American destroyers.

With the Germans in possession of the Belgian and French channel ports, large British ships easy to hit and slow to replace are excluded from the narrow seas. The naval defense of the British coast devolves upon small, fast moving craft difficult for artillery to range upon and for bombers to hit. Therefore, as large ships lose their value for Britain, destroyers increase in value.

Our navy properly says its ships are not for sale. In a world at war and with the least efficient shipbuilding plants in the world, and these subject to fifth column tactics, we cannot spare a boat.

But need the matter rest there?

Just as destroyers are more valuable than battleships in the narrow seas, battleships are more valuable than destroyers in the oceans that separate us from invaders.

What we need above all is the most powerful battleship fleet in the world.

What England must have is overwhelming superiority in small craft.

Now is the time for a fair trade—say 40 destroyers for 4 battleships.

Such an exchange would make both countries safe.

Is it too much to hope that the burocrats will accomplish this?

SHARE YOUR LILACS.

Of all the plants and shrubs in our Illinois gardens, the lilac is the most generous with its floral riches. We have in this climate nothing that rivals the profusion of its blooms or the delicate fragrance that pervades the whole neighborhood of a blooming hedge.

It is particularly appropriate, therefore, that the lilac should be the symbol of the generosity of the garden owners of the Chicago area to the shut-ins of the community. Last Friday morning 16,000 of them had a breath of the outdoors brought to their bedsides thru the blooms collected by the Chicago Plant, Flower, and Fruit guild and distributed by THE TRIBUNE.

THE TRIBUNE is glad to make its trucks available for the distribution and we know that the railroads are equally glad to carry the blooms to the city. The smooth operation of the collection and distribution of the blossoms is a tribute to the generosity with which hundreds of the members of the guild have given their time, for weeks in advance, to arrange the affair.

Tomorrow is the second and final Share Your Lilacs day this year. In the news columns will be found lists of trains on which the lilacs may be placed, and directions for cutting and caring for the blooms that they may arrive at their destinations fresh. Even the lilac bushes enjoy the generosity of this occasion. They will bear more heavily next year if this year's crop is cut before it goes to seed.

THE TRAP THAT FAILED.

The maneuver by which the New Dealers expected to pocket the Republican party appears to have failed. Mr. Roosevelt seems to have trapped only a few of the more excitable members of the party with his bait of a coalition cabinet. They were for that and some of them were for suspending the election this year. It was in pursuit of this scheme that Mr. Landon was invited to Washington.

Like any good citizen, he regarded an invitation from the White House as a command, but he was careful to make his position on coalition quite clear long before he reached Washington. If politics was to be suspended, it must be Democratic as well as Republican politics.

When that news was received, the invitation was canceled and Mr. Landon was requested to develop a diplomatic cold to explain his inability to appear. Mr. Landon declined to engage in any such subterfuge, and accordingly for the sake of appearances the invitation was renewed. He lunched with the President, but nothing of consequence was said about the proposal to include him or any other Republican in the cabinet. As Mr. Landon left the White House he told reporters that he still didn't know why he had been summoned to Washington.

The reason, of course, is perfectly clear. The New Dealers thought they could maneuver the Republicans into a position where the holding of a convention at Philadelphia would be a mere formality. The presence in the cabinet of prominent Republicans would serve as an advertisment that the Republican party had no real objection to the New Deal or the third term. Fortunately for the country, Mr. Landon and the great majority of the Republican leaders kept their heads.

EFFECTIVE WEAPONS.

The military correspondent of the London Daily Mail has advised the British government to use Thompson guns for defense against parachute raiders. This American submachine gun fires bursts of .45 caliber pistol bullets and is a most effective weapon at ranges up to a couple of hundred yards, as the use of the weapon by police and gangsters in this country has often demonstrated. The French army has ordered several thousand Tommy guns and our army and marine corps have a number of them.

In preparing our defense the army would do well to provide itself with as many of these guns as it can obtain and to encourage the manufacturers to expand their facilities. In fact, the army should buy as many automatic and semi-automatic weapons as it can get. Anything in this line which can be procured now—whether Garands, Johnson, Thompsons, Winchesters, or Remingtons—should be bought. Any of them is more serviceable in modern warfare than the bolt-action gun of the last war.

THE RESOURCES OF THE FRENCH AND BRITISH NATIONS.

King George of Great Britain, speaking to the people of the empire from Buckingham palace, asked all of them thruout the world to understand that in this war it "is no mere territorial conquest that our enemies are seeking. It is the overthrow, complete and final, of this empire and everything for which it stands."

The British people must accept that as the consequence of a defeat, just as the Germans must expect the dismemberment of the reich if their enemies win. What would happen to the Germans would not seem to the rest of the world to be so completely the death of a realm and the end of a history as what would happen to the British, but in the present temper of the belligerents something like a total destruction of empires as they exist could be expected.

The French and British empires, however great the peril which confronts them at the center, are still virtually unimpaired in resources and in man power. Early in September and shortly after the outbreak of the war, Paul Reynaud, now prime minister, then minister of finance, made a speech to the people of the French empire in which he said:

"The weight of the two most powerful empires in the world, England's and ours, has been cast into the balance. We will conquer because we are the stronger." He went on to say that with their financial resources they would be able to buy the raw materials they needed. "We will buy arms. We will buy airplanes." He said that France was better prepared for its war ordeal than was generally believed and that economically and financially Germany was already very vulnerable.

These statements were true at the time and the reserves and the resources of the two great countries have not been exhausted in the two weeks of fighting in which the German forces have captured important, if not vital, military positions.

The combined British and French fleet is still the mightiest in the world. Whatever battleships can do in modern warfare the British and French ships can do. The British and the French are getting all the new model American airplanes as fast as they can be produced and delivered.

What can the United States, a nation untrained and unarmed, add to the defenses of these two countries? Their problem is not one of men and resources, but of using them.

MACHINE GUNNING LEON TROTSKY.

The turbulent life of Leon Trotsky nearly came to the turbulent end expected for it last week in the Mexico City suburb where he has been living under the protection of the Mexican government since his expulsion from Norway. A gang of machine gunners overpowered his guard and, according to the stories, shot up the room in which he and Mrs. Trotsky had been sleeping and nearly got them both. Trotsky's explanation of this attempt to liquidate him is that it was undertaken by the agents of Stalin. There is nothing improbable in the surmise. Such an attempt would be correct in Stalinist theory and familiar to the Moscow practice.

Just why at this time Comrade Stalin should wish to add Comrade Trotsky to the long list of old bolos murdered or executed also can be explained. Recently Trotsky caused a split in his own party, here in the United States, by his defense of the soviet union. It might seem odd that Trotsky, who was one of the victims, should be one of the defenders, but he stood up for the occupation of Poland and the attacks on Finland by saying that in both territories the workers' republic made an advance.

Altho it was a degenerate workers' state under a burocratic tyrant who was doing his best to destroy it, nevertheless certain principles and practices of communism inevitably followed the Red troops. This view was too much for some of the American Trotskyites and after a prolonged discussion the party divided into factions, a common enough procedure with the Marxian theorists. The man who said that wherever there were two Russians there were three political parties, anticipated the rise of the bolshevists.

It would be apparent that Trotsky by condemning the leader but applauding the soviet workers was betraying his thought that his career was not yet ended. Stalin may have informed some of his agents abroad that this careerist had better be disposed of before he had any chance to plan a return at the head of an anti-Stalin revolution.

Editorial of the Day

WHILE WASHINGTON FIDDLED.

[Tulsa (Okla.) Tribune.]

Think of the billions the New Deal spent in "leaf-raking" projects while our pitiful air force grew obsolete and the old wartime field guns gathered rust.

Think of the hundreds of millions that were poured out to fix unfixable prices and to gather in fixable votes.

Think of the unprecedented spending according to political expedience rather than according to plan.

Think of the lengthening "period of emergency," debt rising with taxation, the attempt on the part of left wing theorists to foment strikes and disorder in order to hasten the dawn of industrial socialism, the confusion and fear which effectively halted industrial expansion, the government fostered union labor monopolies which "froze" a faithful few into the best jobs, hamstrung the apprentice system, and which has now actually created a shortage of skilled machinists in a time of national peril.

And then ask yourself if the New Deal has been a help or a hindrance in solving our current problems of national defense.

LIGHT BAGGAGE.

Mr. Smith had been lecturing in a neighboring town.

"How did you get on, dear?" asked his wife, "Did you carry your audience with you?"

"No," he replied. "But I could easily have done so. It was small enough."—San Francisco Chronicle.

QUOTATIONS TO THE POINT.

Tacitus, the Roman historian, wrote in his "Germania" [98 A. D.]:

"They stormed our legions in their winter quarters and even planned the conquest of Gaul. Indeed, we forced them to repass the Rhine, but from that time what has been our advantage? We have triumphed, and Germany is still unconquered."

"Destroyed by German fury, rebuilt by American generosity": This, in Latin, was the inscription that the architect, Whitney Warren, prepared for the Louvain library, reconstructed after the world war. After long argument, it was rejected. The "furor Teutonicus" of Warren's inscription comes out of Latin literature: Lucan, "De Bello Civili."

* * *

Ex-Kaiser Wilhelm's much quoted "place in the sun," forerunner of Hitler's "Lebensraum," may be traced back to his speech on the German acquisition of the Kiaochow district in China, 1901. But he borrowed it from Pascal's "Pensées."

* * *

Sir Oswald Mosley, the British Fascist who is getting a taste of his own medicine, is represented, much to our surprise, in "The Home Book of Quotations." Here is his saying:

"If a man were drowning today, he would have to shout for help in German."

This remark was made in a speech delivered in 1931, when Germany was asking for cancellation of reparations. Apparently Sir Oswald thought that Germany was being coddled too much.

The Duke Gets a Shearing.

Tha mama tells me that now spring is here, it wood be safe fer me to get my hair cut. So here I am at Wally's Barber School. Tha boys was sure glad to see me; Amos remarked he was afraid I was gonna pass him up this season. Last year I pulls a boner; went an bought my straw hat first, and when I gets outa tha chair tha darn thing is too big. Tha tops of my ears got so calloused I hadda use corn salve all summer.

In the old days, barbers made a swell living on 15c hair cuts with a nickel extra fer a neck shave. Today they're singing the blues at 6 bits a throw fer a 5 minute trim. Course you can see where things aint economically sound when eggs cost as much as 21c a doz. an tha poor barber only gets 35c fer an egg shampoo. Another profit leak might be plugged by a 25% boost on the 50c mange-cure act. This item must be a terrible drain on any barber. My ole man kept 3 dogs de-loused all year round on a 2 bit bottle which amply proves tha barber should be subsidized instead of tha farmer.

They tried to hook me for a nickel on a punch-board racket. Chester, the good-lookin barber, had already won the 1st prize of 10 bucks. Seems strange he's so lucky just because his cousin makes tha boards. Tha porter's keen intellect shood earn him a seat in Congress. One of my shoe laces was broke an he tries to sell me a full pair; when I told him I'd buy one, he wants to know what he'd do with an odd lace, so I tells him to take a 2nd pair an throw one of them away an put the odd lace in its place. He thanked me profusely and then did it. Now that they got a big hunk of my dough, I gotta hurry home.

FREEZING AS A METHOD OF HEALING.

MOST of us possess a strong urge to live. In our desire to conquer disease we will submit to all sorts of bizarre procedures. Long ago it was thought that swinging would cure most of the disorders to which flesh is heir. Again, a famous old Bristol physician housed those with tuberculosis in the loft of a cow barn. He believed that the warmth and emanations from the cattle would heal the lesions.

During the last several years many thousands have resorted to the "cooking" remedy—in which the temperature of their bodies has been raised to approximately 107 degrees Fahrenheit. The plan has been found to be helpful in certain stages of syphilis, gonorrhea, and some acute eye conditions. While it has been employed with scores of other maladies—such as arthritis, undulant fever, meningitis, etc.—the results thus far are not promising.

More recently the suggestion has been offered that we may congeal the tissues to the stage where cell activity will be slowed substantially. Plants do not thrive in cold weather. Why not chill ourselves and thus delay the development of cancer? It is argued that we may at least prevent the spread of this dread affliction thru occasional periods of refrigeration and—at the same time—relieve pain.

Following the sailor's dictum, "Any port in a storm," some cancer victims have willingly subjected themselves to ice packs in which they remain from one and one-half to two and one-half hours; or until the rectal thermometer reading reaches 91 degrees—about 8 below normal. The ice is then removed and the temperature of the room kept at approximately 55 degrees—the body level meanwhile continuing to drop until it is around 80. Below this point experience has shown that there is considerable danger and prompt methods of resuscitation may be needed to reestablish body heat. Naturally, constant supervision is essential, as collapse may call for stimulants, blankets, and hot water bottles at almost any moment.

Obviously, a weak person cannot withstand this heroic treatment. If the blood count is low, if there is trouble with the lungs, no attempt is made utilize the measure. On the whole, the amount of reduction varies from 10 to 18 degrees and the most striking effect appears to be alleviation of pain. The influence of cold upon nerves is recognized. A chilled finger always feels numb.

What happens? As we would expect, the pulse rate is slowed, the blood pressure usually falls, and there is complete constriction of all the capillaries of the skin. This leads to some heart embarrassment, occasionally to disturbances of the muscles. Digestion seems to be almost at a standstill and the chemical processes which ordinarily continue day and night are greatly retarded. It is not quite but almost as tho the individual has ceased to live—for the time being. Like the hibernating bear, little energy is used and hence the sense of warmth is lost.

As we can well understand, the treatment is undertaken in a desperate attempt to ease suffering. But we cannot look upon it as foolproof. Pneumonia may come on and extension of the cancer will occur altho the rapidity of growth may not be so great.

The only evidence that is important lies in the fact that these patients wish to get away from the use of large quantities of narcotics, and some aid in this respect has followed.

Strange as this régime may seem, it will probably be tried long enough until some definite conclusion [pro or con] can be drawn. There is not enough evidence as yet to hold out the slightest hope that it will lengthen life or make it more comfortable. In fact, in a series of cases reported from a New York hospital—of 27 patients so managed—13 died within from 1 to 46 days thereafter. One succumbed to pneumonia after 6 days; another to obstruction of the bowel after 2 days.

In all fairness it may be stated that the whole scheme imitates the habits of animals who tuck themselves away during cold spells and who thus spare their tissues.

LACKLUSTER HAIR.

B. W. writes: What would cause the hair to look dull and lifeless when—six months ago—people would compliment me on its luster? Is food a factor?

REPLY.

Certain cosmetics may be at fault. Wash the hair daily, dry slowly at room temperature [do not use hot air], and take a little sulfur with your meals. Ointments are not necessary unless some scalp disease is present. Extreme dryness, however, may call for an oil dressing.

BLEEDING.

F. H. writes: I suffer from vicarious menstruation—hemorrhaging from the mouth just before each period. Do I need an examination?

REPLY.

A careful check-up is advised to make certain that there is no other cause. An X-ray of the chest is suggested. The symptom should not appear at each period. On the other hand, this may be nature's way of relieving congestion.

NERVE CONDITIONS.

W. L. writes: What is the difference between neuralgia and neuritis?

REPLY.

BRITAIN'S DARK HOUR

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

Writers should confine themselves to 200 or 300 words. Give full names and addresses. No manuscripts can be returned. Address Voice of the People, THE TRIBUNE.

WE'RE TRYING TO.

St. Louis, Mo., May 22.—This is from an old friend and reader, my TRIBUNE having followed me from Chicago in 1912 to Iowa, Wisconsin, and now Missouri.

Hysteria is gripping the east. Years ago you stated editorially that the national capital is too far east; it should be in the center of the nation. That is true. Too many of our people have assumed the allies would win and should win; now that things are going a bit contrary they are excited and are shouting for our entry into the mess.

But I appreciate the stand of THE TRIBUNE and urge you to keep it thus. We need sane and cool minds and heads. We are Americans and will give anybody anything he wants if he comes over here, Germany included. But we are not a British colony, as some seem to think. We hold no brief for England, which considers us still just a colony. Let our excited citizens in the east read the histories and recall that there was fought a revolutionary war that freed us from England, even if we had to write a postscript in 1812.

If it is England's turn to take a licking and get a dose of the medicine it gave to dozens of nations, well, that's its due. We do not like Hitler and we disapprove of the course he took; but for us is just one thing important: Get our house in order and keep our head and stay out of the mess; walking easy and carrying a great big stick, as Teddy used to state it.

Gentlemen, use your influence and help America keep its head, counteracting the excited east. N. P. UHLIG, Pastor Holy Cross Lutheran Church for the Deaf.

WHY THE HORSES.

Champaign, Ill., May 24.—The undersigned was present on Military day at the University of Illinois.

Jonathan Turner, one of Illinois' stalwarts, builded better than he knew when in 1862 he persuaded Lincoln to sign the bill for land grant colleges which provides military education along with scholastic studies in most state universities.

As a civilian we liked everything in the way of preparedness shown this year at the annual exhibition except horse drawn artillery and horse cavalry.

We read that in actual conflict a horse lasts three minutes. Why the apparent waste of funds in the maintenance of horse cavalry at most state schools? Horse cavalry, except in Africa probably, is as extinct as the dodo. J. G.

FROM A COLORED MAID.

Chicago, May 24.—In THE TRIBUNE recently Mrs. O. wanted to know what has become of all the "good" colored help. But did Mrs. O. stop to think that the WPA pays living wages and not starvation wages? Some are offering $5 and $6 a week for housework, and they want cooking, serving, cleaning, and laundry. Some offer room and board, and with that the maid must do night work, and watch the kids who have been very trying during the day. There are other races on the WPA besides the Negro, and they get higher wages. I am not on WPA or relief. M. S.

IMMUNITY.

Chicago, May 24.—I am wondering how a motorist, at this late date, escapes a ticket for having 1939 license plates.

Today the officer stationed at State and Monroe streets was directing a motorist, whose car bore a 1939 plate, but I notice that no ticket was given. A. J. C.

THE MAGINOT LINE.

Chicago, May 23.—The Maginot line is a monument representing millions of dollars of taxpayers' money—and the foe didn't come that way.

PARK BENCHES REMOVED.

Chicago, May 24.—Just when people have a chance to enjoy sitting along the lake front the Lincoln park employés take the opportunity to tear up the benches along the Oak street beach and reset them. Already they have worked on the job one week, and have accomplished practically nothing. It looks as if the public would be deprived of the benches for weeks to come.

Large piles of sand and rocks have been thrown on the sparse grass plots, effectually killing the grass for the summer.

Whether this work was necessary or not, certainly it should have been done at some other time than during the few weeks that Chicago weather permits us to enjoy the lake front.

Everything seems to be done for the motorist—how about recognizing those who cannot afford the luxury of a car, of whom there are thousands directly west of this section, who would like to enjoy the lake front. MRS. EDWIN O'NEILL.

SHORT WAVES.

Chicago, May 24.—Regarding the complaint about "a short wave nuisance," let me say that any one troubled with short wave reports on their receivers should write to the Society of Radio Operators, 2431 Farwell avenue, Chicago, and a representative will call and advise whether the interference can be eliminated, or whether the receiver is of modern design with sufficient shielding to eliminate the unwanted signal.

There is no fee for this service.

QUERY FOR THE MAYOR.

Chicago, May 24.—Now that he is back in town will somebody who can command attention PUH-LEEZE ask Mayor Kelly about the political appointees now working as license investigators while men who passed an examination for the above post wait in vain.

Or is Mayor Kelly cognizant of this situation already? Or does he care? Or both? READER.

DANCING IN THE ARMORIES.

Chicago, May 24.—Shall we continue to sit back without a protest to the governor of our state and let our armories be used by private individuals, to operate dancing, wrestling, roller skating, etc., when we need one million armed men trained in operating heavy and light artillery?

The National Guardsmen are vital to our defense program. The armories according to law are to be used for the purpose of training these men.

One north side armory operates roller skating five nights a week and begrudgingly devotes two nights weekly to National Guardsmen. Are these conditions to be tolerated by the taxpayers, who build and maintain these armories?

Telegraph your governor today demanding these armories be devoted to training men and not to be used for the nation's playgrounds.

NORTH SIDE READER.

IS HE HYPNOTIC?

Mattoon, Ill., May 20.—What has happened to the various mysterious submarines, sighted by the President, who personally notified the nation of their presence in the Atlantic?

A high pressure salesman who hasn't much to sell, covers deception with a good story, changes tack frequently, makes absurd claims, and in a moment of confusion gets his victim to sign a check to him.

THE BRITISH FLEET.

Chicago, May 23.—A victorious Hitler would acquire most of the British navy if it were not scuttled before he could lay his hands on it. Before this could happen I suggest at least a part of this navy be turned over to the United States to apply on the present debt owing us from Britain.

The world would be far better off with this navy under our control than under Hitler's. R. M. N.

WAIVER OF APPEARANCE.

Helena, Mont., May 23 [Legal Friend of the People].—I am heir to a part of a small estate. The lawyer for the estate has asked me to sign a waiver of appearance [1] so that he can close the estate without advertising.

2. Will you advise whether the signing of this waiver in any way prevents me from getting my part of the estate in due time? P. P.

1. We would consider this explanation correct. If you do not sign the waiver, he can get along without it by giving the required notice.

2. No, in the sense above stated, but whether the matter is being handled by waiver or by notice, you should satisfy yourself that you are getting your share. You should insist on satisfactory information before signing the waiver, or if this is refused you should be present in court at the time named in the notice.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

DIVORCES.

Chicago, May 24 [Legal Friend of the People].—1. What is the length of time or how long will an individual have to wait for a divorce after a separate maintenance bill is filed?

2 How long before it is a legal ground for divorce? R. M.

1. If desertion is the ground, it must continue a year in order to be a ground. The length of time that will elapse after the filing of the complaint will depend on the condition of the judge's calendar, and on other facts that are not before us.

2. Your assumption that any separate maintenance bill must automatically ripen into a ground for divorce is unfounded.

The Illinois statute provides the following grounds for divorce: [1] impotency; [2] a husband or wife living at the time of marriage; [3] adultery; [4] one year's desertion; [5] two years' habitual drunkenness; [6] attempting life of spouse; [7] extreme and repeated cruelty; [8] conviction of felony; [9] communicating venereal diseases.

TODAY IN HISTORY

May 27, 1863

Union soldiers under Gen. N. P. Banks failed in their assault on the strong confederate batteries which commanded the Mississippi at Port Hudson, La., with a loss of about 2,000 men. Earlier Admiral Farragut had failed in an attempt to run seven ships up the Mississippi past Port Hudson. Another unsuccessful attack was made June 14, and the confederate garrison held out until after the fall of Vicksburg.

FLIGHT OF QUEEN SHOCKED DUTCH, WRITER ASSERTS

Controversy Rages Over Royalty's Action.

BY MAX HARRELSON.

AMSTERDAM, the Netherlands, May 26 (AP).—Holland still is engaged in a bitter controversy on whether Queen Wilhelmina, who is 59 years old, was justified in fleeing the country before its surrender to Germany.

The majority of citizens is keenly disappointed and feels the queen let down her people in a crisis, but there are some who defend Wilhelmina on the ground that she acted in the interest of the whole empire instead of Holland alone.

[The first story of reaction in the Netherlands over the flight of Queen Wilhelmina was told exclusively in The Tribune on May 20. Larry Rue, chief correspondent of the London bureau of The Chicago Tribune, told the story in a graphic dispatch, filed at Bentheim, Germany, on the Dutch border. Rue was in Holland thruout the German blitzkrieg, which led to the Dutch surrender.]

Nation's Spiritual Leader.

It is difficult for the outsider to understand the intensity of feeling on the question in the Netherlands unless he is familiar with the extraordinary position held by the queen.

During her reign of 41 years she not only had maintained her position as one of the few monarchs who actually rule, but she also had become more or less the spiritual and moral leader of the nation. Many had so closely identified her with the state that they could not imagine Holland without Wilhelmina.

Typical reaction to her flight was that of a prominent Dutchman I know. Before the news was announced in Holland he heard it in a British broadcast. He sat stunned for a moment, then shook his head sadly. His only comment was: "It's a shame before God." I never saw a man more profoundly moved by a news announcement, and he was a man who had been in the midst of big events for years.

Refused to Believe It.

Many Dutchmen refused to believe the queen had left the country until it was confirmed officially. Then they knew there was no hope of continued resistance, for if the high command had not already decided on capitulation, it would have been necessary anyway because of the people's broken spirit.

Many believe the queen should have stayed and shared the fate of her kingdom, whatever that might be. The general contention is that the government could have fled, if necessary, but that there was no reason for the queen to leave. Some even suggested she might have abdicated and have allowed Juliana to rule the empire from London or some other place.

Newspapers made no comment on the queen's departure, but an observer could see signs of the popular reaction immediately.

Posters Are Defaced.

One of these was the erasure of the words, "Long live the Queen!" from the bottom of the surrender proclamation which was posted thruout Holland. I saw dozens of these posters on which the word "queen" had been marked thru with a red pencil and the word "Holland" written beneath.

The last time any high official of the Netherlands referred to Queen Wilhelmina officially was in the broadcast by the burgomaster of The Hague several days after the Germans took over the country. He spoke of her as "our respected queen," but his speech was not printed in the newspapers.

["I decided that it was my duty to frustrate attempts of the enemy to take possession of my person," she asserted. "In the hands of the enemy I would have been powerless. No Dutchman could have looked to his queen for hope and resurrection. It is my task freely to carry on the constitutional leadership of those 65,000,000 native inhabitants of our empire." What, if any, circulation this statement received in the Netherlands is not known.]

False Teeth Wearers Often Worst Breath Offenders!
"Need More Than a Mouth Wash" say Authorities... Recommend Polident
A thin dark film collects on plates and bridges. This film soaks up odors and impurities like a sponge! It holds germs and decay bacteria, and it is so tough that ordinary brushing seldom removes it. It gets into every tiny crevice where brushing can't even reach. Almost always it results in "denture breath"—probably the most offensive of all breath odors.
Yet there's a perfect way to clean and purify false teeth without brushing, acid or danger. It is Polident, a powder that dissolves away all scum, stains, tarnish and odor. Makes breath sweeter—and plates or bridges look better and feel better. Tens of thousands call Polident a blessing for comfort, convenience and hygiene. Long-lasting can costs only 30¢ at any drug store. Approved by Good Housekeeping Bureau and dentists everywhere.
Cleans, Purifies Like Magic
Do this daily: Add a little Polident powder to ½ glass water. Stir. Then put in plate or bridge for 10 to 15 minutes—Rinse—and it's ready to use!

ADVERTISE IN THE TRIBUNE

BUGLES BLOW THURSDAY FOR SOLDIER DEAD

Civil War Veterans Will Head Memorial Parade.

On Thursday bugles will blow in 120 cemeteries in Cook county in memory of the nation's veterans of the civil war. Eleven veterans of that war, now in their 90's, will be on hand to pay tribute to their comrades and to the soldiers of the Spanish-American and world wars.

This last remnant of Cook county's Grand Army of the Republic will lead the annual Memorial day parade at 2 p. m. Thursday down Michigan avenue. Riding in open limousines, they will be followed by Legionnaires, United Spanish-American War Veterans, Veterans of Foreign Wars, the National Guard, a detachment of regular army infantry and Sons of the American Legion.

Six hundred fifty-eight units of veterans and patriotic organizations will participate in the parade.

Reviewing Stand at Plaza.

The reviewing stand will be at the plaza opposite Jackson boulevard. The parade will disband at Roosevelt road. Capt. Thomas Ambrose, a member of the George H. Thomas post of the Grand Army of the Republic, will act as grand marshal and C. H. Woodbridge of the American Legion will be adjutant general.

On Thursday also, the Memorial association of the Grand Army of the Republic will collect fresh flowers from schools and place them with an American flag on the grave of every soldier in the county.

Many patriotic and civic organizations held Memorial day services yesterday. In various cemeteries, buglers stood in the drizzling rain and sounded taps. Parades were held in several communities, and churches conducted special services.

One of the observances was conducted by the 122d field artillery of the 33d division, Illinois National Guard, in Rosehill cemetery in memory of Gen. Milton J. Foreman, former commander of the division.

Graves Are Decorated.

Members of Square post of the Legion decorated the graves of their comrades in 19 cemeteries. Six Legion posts from Englewood, Gresham, Grantham, and Roseland communities gathered for services in Holy Sepulchre cemetery. The Logan Square post, No. 405, of the Legion, held services in the Saron Lutheran church.

William McKinley camp, No. 6, of the United Spanish War Veterans, largest service men's unit in the midwest, held its annual Memorial day services at its burial plot in Arlington cemetery in Elmhurst. A granite monument erected at the head of the site was dedicated by the 1,500 members of the camp.

The 8th infantry of the Illinois National Guard observed its eight annual memorial service at 3 p. m. yesterday in Bethesda church, 53d street and Michigan avenue.

U. of C. Medical Student to Receive Ginsburg Prize

The Harry Ginsburg Memorial prize will be given today to Sidney Smith Jr., University of Chicago medical student, for development of a method of blood-vessel surgery which surgeons believe will be an improvement on older methods. Dr. Anton J. Carlson, chairman of the department of physiology at the university, said the new method should prove helpful in accident cases, such as gunshot wounds, and in removing blood clots.

10 COMMUNISTS RELEASED AFTER A NIGHT IN JAIL

Ten communists from Chicago and Evanston who were locked up in the Tazewell county jail Saturday night at Pekin to protect them from a menacing crowd, returned home yesterday. They were taken from the jail under a guard of deputy sherifs and state highway policemen to Peoria, where they boarded a train for Chicago.

The trouble started when the communists, including two women, arrived in Pekin Saturday to distribute communistic literature and to get signatures on petitions to place the communist party on the Illinois ballot in the November election. Groups of men soon collected around the visitors and began hooting them.

When some one struck a communist, the 10 raced to the courthouse and locked themselves in. Later they were taken to the jail by Sheriff Guy Donohue, who called state police. Two cars in which the communists had driven to Pekin were set on fire by the crowd.

CHURCH PENSION FUND FALLS OFF $236,819 IN YEAR

New York, May 26 (AP).—The Protestant Episcopal church today reported its pension fund for clergymen and their families had assets of $34,154,000 as of Jan. 1, with an excess of assets over liabilities of $2,093,327—$236,819 less than the excess a year before.

The stated value of the assets was $1,154,000 less than the market value, the president of the fund, William Fellowes Morgan, said. He reported the fund yielded 3.08 per cent for the year, against the 3.50 per cent reserve basis on which it operates.

"The average interest yield obtainable on high grade investments is beyond the control of the trustees," he explained. "The finance committee is unwilling to sacrifice the high quality of the fund's investment portfolio in an effort to gain, possibly temporarily, a high average interest yield."

Result of Accident

West Palm Beach, Fla., May 26.—Because he fell out of his truck one time while delivering a newspaper, E. Y. Keith, district delivery manager for a newspaper here, invented a gun which shoots the rolled up paper into the box in front of the subscriber's house. Now Keith can sit in his truck and deliver papers without even leaning out, provided his aim is good.

GARMENT UNION HITS LABOR UNIT AS AID OF REDS

New York, May 26 (AP).—The executive board of the powerful International Ladies Garment Workers union [independent] today denounced Labor's Nonpartisan league—the political organization thru which the C. I. O. has exerted much of its electoral strength—as having become "more and more a part of the communist 'transmission belt.'"

The statement, made in the board's report on the eve of the union's 24th annual convention here, was regarded as having significant complications both politically and in regard to the chances for peace between the A. F. of L. and the C. I. O.

A complete breach between the union and the league would withdraw from the league the potential strength of the union's membership of nearly 250,000.

The garment workers union originally part of the A. F. of L., withdrew and joined the C. I. O. when it was formed, and then withdrew from the C. I. O. to become independent.

POLICE SEIZE 6 DISTRIBUTORS OF RED LITERATURE

Rockford, Ill., May 26 [Special].—Four women and two men, members of the Young Communist league, were escorted to the city limits this afternoon by Police Detectives Clarence Read and Russell Forson, after they were seized distributing communist literature in an east side residential section.

The six arrived here from Chicago shortly before 2 p. m. They were picked up within an hour by police after the receipt of dozens of complaints from east side residents. Police said they had been going from door to door distributing communist party literature and seeking names for petitions to place the party on the ballot at the November election.

They were released after being held in custody more than an hour. Several hundred pieces of communist literature were confiscated.

TRAINS TO BRING SECOND LOAD OF LILACS TO CITY

Tomorrow Is Another Day to Cheer Shut-ins.

Sixty-two Chicago-bound suburban trains will be laden with fragrant lilacs tomorrow morning.

The same early morning trains which brought their friendly loads of flowers Friday for the first lilac day in the annual "Share Your Lilacs" campaign will bring them again tomorrow for the final day of the 1940 lilac-sharing. It marks the 12th year the Chicago Plant, Flower, and Fruit guild, in coöperation with THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, has sought thru lilacs to relieve the suffering of the city's sick.

Go to 16,000 Patients.

Friday's lilacs went to 16,000 patients in 90 hospitals and institutions, many of them in charity wards. Tomorrow's lilacs will be distributed in the sick rooms of an additional 58 institutions.

The guild's large organization of voluntary workers, headed by Mrs. Stanley D. Grace of Highland Park, chairman of the guild's general committee, will supervise the work of cutting the flowers and loading them on trains. They will be brought to Chicago on nine suburban lines and whisked from downtown stations to hospitals in Tribune trucks.

Friday's outpouring was the largest in the history of lilac day. Ideal weather, an unusually luxuriant crop of blooms, and precision in cutting and packing the bouquets added to its success.

How to Ship Them.

To ship the lilacs so they will reach the hospitals in the best condition possible, cut them late this afternoon. Cut them preferably just above where they branch from the main stem. Tie in bunches, place the bunches in tubs or pails of water and sprinkle the blooms. Early tomorrow morning wrap each bouquet in damp newspaper and tie.

Coöperating railroads, which provide free transportation for the lilacs, are the North Western [all divisions], North Shore Line [Skokie Valley route], Milwaukee, Aurora and Elgin, Burlington, Rock Island, Illinois Central, South Shore, and Pennsylvania.

GIRL AND YOUTH NAME SLAYER OF TAXICAB DRIVER

Indianapolis, Ind., May 26 (AP).—Don F. Stiver, superintendent of state police, announced tonight that the trussed and battered body of Edmond Davis, 36 year old Jeffersonville taxicab driver, had been found and that a girl and youth under arrest at Owensboro, Ky., had admitted being present Monday night when Davis was killed.

The couple, J. W. Hayden Jr., 20 years old, of Owensboro, and Clementine Luttrel, 18, of Livermore, Ky., are held on forgery charges.

Charges of voluntary manslaughter were filed in Clark county, Indiana, against Hayden and another man, who has not been arrested, Stiver said.

Assistant Police Chief W. P. Morris of Owensboro said Hayden signed a statement that he and the other man planned to rob Davis, but that he did not know the other was going to kill the cab driver.

Acting Police Chief Bernie Bidwell of Owensboro quoted the girl as saying that Davis was killed near Sellersburg, Ind., after she had asked him to stop the cab because she was ill. She said her companions slugged Davis while she was out of the car.

First to tell why Holland fell into German hands in five and a half days

FLIGHT OF QUEEN STARTS BREAK OF DUTCH DEFENSE

Tribune Man Tells How Blitzkrieg Engulfed Nation.

BY LARRY RUE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BENTHEIM, Germany (On the Dutch Border) May 19.—This is the story of how the Netherlands fell into Hitler's hands in five and a half days. The Tribune correspondent was there and saw it happen.

The German blitzkrieg is not a joke. Holland was not caught off guard. She was expecting the attack when it came and had time to prepare for it. She was confident and unafraid. She fought with everything she had and courageously. Yet after 132 hours of war she capitulated and when I left Holland last night life there was practically normal.

Confidence Unjustified.

It is now quite clear that Dutch

At midnight on Thursday, May 9, Larry Rue, chief of the Chicago Tribune London Bureau, was talking on the telephone in Amsterdam.

Over the wires from The Hague, he was told by Gen. Henri Gerard Winkelman, commander in chief of Holland's military and naval forces, that war was expected in the morning.

A few hours later at 3:15 a. m. Friday, May 10, the attack came.

Thereafter, for five and a half days, the Tribune's correspondent saw what happens to a country which becomes a victim of the German blitzkrieg.

How the Germans immediately attacked every airport in Holland . . . how they dropped bombs, opened up with machine guns, crippled the Dutch air force before it could get off the ground—all this he described to Tribune readers on May 20, in the first detailed analysis of the Dutch debacle printed anywhere.

The flight of Queen Wilhelmina . . . the presence in Holland of British demolition engineers to aid in the destruction of oil and supplies of value to the enemy—how these facts contributed to the speedy crumbling of the Dutch defense was made known for the first time in the forthright dispatch cabled by this veteran correspondent.

Here is another illustration of the aggressive enterprise with which the Tribune foreign service keeps readers informed of every significant development in the war.

It provides fresh evidence that when you read the Tribune you get the facts.

Tribune correspondents, with years of experience in gathering the news at first hand, are not taken into camp by the propaganda bureaus. They do their own fact-finding. They are not balked by censorship. They get the truth and the Tribune prints it.

THE NEWS REPORTS OF THESE SEASONED CORRESPONDENTS KEEP TRIBUNE READERS FULLY INFORMED OF EVENTS THAT AFFECT THEIR INTEREST

Good Morning!

Two who are about to die salute one another—at a cocktail bar in Hongkong.

They are Joan Ames, suffering from angina and trying to crowd all that she can of gay living into the short and uncertain time left to her, and Dan Hardesty, an escaped prisoner, who has been caught up with by the law—in the person of Detective Steve Burke, who is returning him to San Quentin—and execution.

Burke is hardboiled and unfoolable—but he IS regular and is willing to forgo handcuffs so long as Dan stays in view and behaves. . . . And so Joan and Dan meet—as might any two people. And it is love at first sight. And parting is a wrench. For there has been no time for confidence and neither knows that the other is sailing for the States. . . .

On shipboard a passionate and tragic romance develops in the shadow of death—which neither knows attends on the other—and beneath the watchful and pitiful eyes of Burke, the terrified ones of Joan's motherly maid, the frustrated ones of the "Countess" de Bresac, an adventuress who has long loved Dan and who would give her life to save him, and the keen ones of "Rocky," a buddy of Dan's . . .

The "countess" and Rocky almost succeed in effecting Dan's escape—but his love for Joan foils plans at the last moment. For, as he is about to leave her, in Honolulu, on a boat obtained to speed him to safety, her heart acts up and, forgetting everything but his desire to get her under the care of a physician, he deliberately returns into the meshes from which he had been released.

And so—in the end—each knows about the other, tho neither is aware that his own secret is out. . . . And they part with a smile—and a promise to meet again the following New Year's eve at a bar in Mexico City.

This picture was filmed in 1932 under the title of "One Way Passage" with Kay Francis, William Powell, Aline McMahon, and William Hymer in the main rôles. . . . I liked it then—but this version, I think, is better.

The film is very moving and superbly acted. You leave it thinking of death as a friend.

See you tomorrow.

Attacked as a "radical," Melvyn Douglas wired California Gov. Olson his resignation as a reserve major. . . . Joyce Matthews, after the separation from Col. Gonzales Gomez, will rush back to Hollywood and Arnold Kunody. . . . Rudy Vallee and Jacquelina Dalya an item. . . . Vallee and the other partners in the "Pirates' Den" each staked $1,000. At the opening, Partner Ken Murray told a gag that got nothing but silence: "Can you imagine buying a night club so you have a place to lay an egg?" gagged Murray, and got the biggest laugh of the night. . . . A long, long time ago, as time is estimated in these hectic days, this correspondent pointed out that a movie star who rated $150,000 per picture was paid that money on the economic basis of world distribution of that particular picture. The war has reduced that world market by at least 25 per cent. . . . The producers aver that the shrinkage has been 40 per cent, but let's settle on 25 per cent to discount producers' exaggeration.

We then are faced with a problem which is fairly simple arithmetic: If directors, producers, stars, writers, agents, technicians, and laborers agree to salary cuts of 25 per cent, the movies can continue on the revenues of domestic markets until such time as conditions return to normal. That Hollywood must tighten its belt is hardly news, but the first formal notification that drastic reductions are at hand is supplied by Darryl Zanuck, in a letter to the Hollywood Reporter.

Said Zanuck: "No major producer has disregarded or ignored the present chaotic condition in which we find our industry, due to what appears to be an almost total loss of our foreign market. . . .

"Careful and intelligent preparation and executive management will prevent chaos, but this only can be accomplished if every individual who is part of this industry will recognize our dependence upon the domestic market. The money we have spent on productions, and the salaries we have paid and received, were based on world market revenues.

"Today this is no longer true and it is entirely wrong to expect producers to single-handedly juggle the situation and protect the industry unless we receive active and sympathetic support from every one in the industry. From here on, the burden of readjustment must be shared by all" . . . Just to make it emphatic, 20th Century-Fox axed several hundred employés. In other words, the panic is on in earnest.

Architect's Goal.

Dr. and Mrs. Jacob Buchbinder have a recently completed house near Fish Creek, Wis. The other day the architect, George Fred Keck, who from the beginning had stressed the idea of "an inside outside house" in such a beautiful setting, received a letter from Mrs. Buchbinder:

"Jake and I were sitting on the west terrace. Jake had the Beethoven 7th on full blast. He went into the house for something. As he started back into the living room from the gameroom I saw him stop dead . . . and then begin to gesticulate to me to look. . . . There in the sun, on the flagstone in the living room on a level with the piano, was a long, graceful, writhing snake. . . . The first thing Jake said when the excitement had died down was: "Well, Fred now has his way. He has brought the outside in!"

Prince Tulip Murphy's Mexican Visit.

From "My Hey-Dey or the Crack-up of the International Set" as told to Virginia Faulkner:

Our first stop was at Mazatlán, where we visited the Popocatapults. Don Cinto Frijole y Popocatapult is one-third Castilian, one-third Aztec, and one-third Tequila—perfectly delicious! His ranch is built entirely of lava, and he has oodles of peons who simply swear by him, as he is not a bit cruel. . . . Also he has a wonderful old mind which he inherited from his grandfather, "The Viejo," who could find his way around a chessboard blindfolded, and invented a rumba step when he was 80. . . .

Most prized of Don Cinto's possessions is his armadillo, named "Bougainvillea in the Morning Sun on the Outskirts of Old Ensenada III.," which he refers to as the "bes' dam' armadillo in all Meh-hi-co." Another favorite pet is his iguana, "James M. Cain," a full champion now, I am glad to say, as he recently won the prize [a ruined church] for the best iguana in the show at Acajutla. . . . Mazatlán [you never pronounce it] is built of pink and blue stucco and would probably export oysters and beer if they weren't all gobbled and drunk up right on the spot. A native game, cricket, takes place every second of the day in all the bars. The object is not to pay for the drinks. It goes on and on until a cruise boat comes in, at which time the players run to don their old guitars and whistle to heel their hired ragamuffins.

★ THRU THE LOOKING GLASS ★

We can't imagine why the foot lotion that soothes and cools isn't better appreciated. Until you've used one you've just no idea of how much better your disposition and even your face looks when you've given your feet a bit of coddling.

Of course, no soothing lotion can take the place of proper care and the right shoes if your feet aren't completely normal and healthy. But the right kind of lotion can make them feel a great deal better when they're hot and tired.

There's a new lotion on the market that has been wonderful to experiment with during the few unusually warm days. It's pink, and there's menthol in it, and it feels cool as snow and twice as welcome when the feet are terribly hot and bothered.

This lovely coolness that is so refreshing is followed a little later by a most pleasant glow. You feel that life is bearable once more—and the whole process of easing your weary feet doesn't take more than a few minutes.

Just pour a little of the liquid in one hand and massage the foot gently, stroking the skin with smooth upward and downward motions. The lotion dries almost instantly; you can don your stocking immediately after using it.

The thing to do when you're tired but have a heavy date is to give your feet a good break. Bathe them if you have time, dipping them alternately in warm then cold water. Then massage with the soothing lotion. You'll feel much less tired—and your feet will be much more capable of brisk dancing for a long evening.

Spanish Dances Stir Audience to Enthusiasm

BY CECIL SMITH.

José Alvarez and Mira Soriano, in a program of Spanish dances, aroused a good sized audience to enthusiasm in the Goodman theater yesterday afternoon. The dance compositions, covering a wide range from classical styles to gypsy material, bore every mark of complete genuineness.

Mr. Alvarez, much more of a virtuoso than his partner, carries himself well and aristocratically. His foot and heel work is extremely brilliant, and some of the cross rhythms created between stamping heels and snapping fingers were both ingenious and exciting. Thru all his dancing there remains an element of aristocratic control. He is never tempted to become merely theatrical at the expense of either taste or authenticity.

While Miss Soriano is technically somewhat overshadowed by the expertness of her partner, she is able to hold her own pictorially and to coöperate accurately—tho without much snap—in the duets. In sum total, the dancing of Mr. Alvarez and Miss Soriano is both valuable and interesting. At the same time, a more personal approach to the audience would brighten the outward aspect of their recitals, and would not need to diminish the authority of their art.

Jean Williams, Chicago pianist, shared the program with the dancers, playing several Spanish works with excellent flair and admirably disciplined technique.

Dorothy Edidin, a lyric soprano of considerable promise, sang in Kimball hall before she was ready to. The difficult pair of first act arias from Verdi's "Il Trovatore"—"Tacea la notte" and "Di tale amor"—showed her in need of much more studio work before her voice can fully attain satisfactory volume, resonance, and stability. In less exacting moments earlier in the program, where, as in Scarlatti's "The Violet," she was not overwhelmed by vocal problems, she showed the sort of interpretative insight that will make it worthwhile for her to continue studying.

Jan Peerce, tenor, was guest soloist last night in a concert at the Civic Opera house celebrating the 40th anniversary of the Workmen's circle. Two choral groups participated—the Workmen's Circle chorus, Paul Held, conductor, and the Workmen's Circle School chorus, a children's group directed by S. Robinowitz. The following report is submitted by Scott Goldthwaite of the University of Chicago music faculty:

In arias from Halévy's "La Juive" and Verdi's "Rigoletto" Mr. Peerce sang with more than his customary restraint, and with excellent diction. A tendency to push high notes was noticeable, and his interpretation suffered somewhat from the absence of discriminating and well pointed accentuation. All in all, however, his singing has improved greatly both musically and vocally. He was warmly received.

The program included a dance composition, "The Arrival of Spring," performed by children under the direction of Pearl Lack, and a pageant apocalyptically entitled "The Day of the Proletariat Approaches."

City Dwellers View Farms

[TRIBUNE Photo.]

Miss Elizabeth Stenson and two pedigreed pigs that belong to Mr. and Mrs. Henry R. Roberts of Barrington. Every child who saw the baby pigs yesterday at "A Day in the Country" wanted to take one home.

Hundreds Attend

BY INDIA MOFFETT.

"A Day in the Country" is a perfect antidote for the thing that ails every one in these harassed days, the several hundred city dwellers who attended a benefit for the Barrington Country Day school discovered yesterday. Fragrant lilac blossoms, white and purple; flowering almond, wild plum, apple, crabapple and cherry blossoms; lush green fields; rich, fertile looking ground that assures us of plenty of the earth's produce during the months to come; contented looking animals; happy fathers and mothers and children, all living peaceful lives in a natural way close to a great city, these are what visitors to Barrington's mammoth open house saw yesterday.

Black clouds and occasional showers may have kept some from going to the benefit, but well in excess of 200 cars had been at the schoolhouse to purchase tickets and to obtain maps before 4 o'clock, so the women in charge pronounced the affair a great success in spite of the weather. Seventy-seven places were on display, and altho the homes were not open the barns were, and after all a barn is more important that a house on any farm.

The great glass barn at Albert C. Levis' was one of the most interesting places we visited. Cows lulled into contentment by constant music and milked every eight hours by hand live in the barn, which is as spotless as a good housewife's kitchen. A two day old calf entranced every young visitor, as did the day old chicks at Dr. Paul Magnuson's farm.

BY ELEANOR PAGE.

Most of the guests whom the directors and officers of the Woman's Symphony Orchestral association invited to a reception and tea for Leopold Stokowski at the Arts club yesterday afternoon came promptly at 5 o'clock. They spent the next hour and ten minutes awaiting the arrival of the famed conductor.

The white haired but young looking musician entered briskly with a word of greeting for Mrs. James G. Shakman, president of the association, who headed the receiving line, and for Mrs. Charles B. Goodspeed, who stood second in the long line. The next minute he was lost in a crowd of admirers, including Alec Templeton and Izler Solomon, conductor of the Woman's Symphony orchestra. The receiving line melted away as did the 160-odd who filled the lounge.

While other guests partook of tea and refreshments on the second floor, Stokowski, Mr. and Mrs. Bitter, Mrs. Goodspeed, Mrs. Shakman, Mrs. H. Comer Winter, and one or two others enjoyed cocktails on the stage at one end of the lounge. Among the few called up to have a word with the conductor was Mrs. Charles Wrigley, vice president of the association, whose lovely lace cloth, silver candelabra, and huge bouquet of white lilacs and stock, Sally roses and delphinium, decorated the tea table upstairs.

With the exception of Mrs. Goodspeed, Mrs. Wrigley and Mrs. William H. Stanley, the members of the receiving line wore long flowing frocks and either tiny flowered hats or huge wide brimmed ones. They included Mrs. Jack V. Spachner, Mrs. John F. Gail, Mrs. Ernest Kruetgen, Mrs. Hugo Dalmar, Mrs. Winter, and Mrs. Ewald Siebel.

Miss Jeanne Miles' Engagement to D. Wendell Fentress Told

BY JUDITH CASS.

At an at home in Evanston yesterday Mr. and Mrs. W. Haskell Miles announced the engagement of their daughter, Jeanne, to D. Wendell Fentress, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Fentress of Winnetka and Sarasota, Fla. Mr. and Mrs. Fentress came north from Florida for the occasion.

Miss Miles, a graduate of Wellesley college, attended Northwestern university during her sophomore year. She is an active member of the Service club and took leading rôles in its last two revues.

Mr. Fentress attended the North Shore Country Day school and is a graduate of the Haverford Preparatory school and Lehigh university. After his graduation in 1936 he spent a year traveling and studying in Europe.

Plan Luncheon Sept. 8 for Two Winnetka Buds.

Two pretty and attractive young Winnetkans who are to share a debut party next fall are Miss Jane Hardy and Miss Mary Macfarland. Their parents, the Francis H. Hardys and the Henry Macfarlands, will give a luncheon for the buds on Sunday, Sept. 8, at the Indian Hill club. Young men and young women will be invited to the party.

Miss Hardy and Miss Macfarland attended the North Shore Country Day school in Winnetka and now are students at Sweetbriar college, to which they will return in the fall. Miss Hardy may have a second party, depending on world conditions. It would be an at home at Christmas time.

Mr. and Mrs. Hardy and their debutante will spend the summer in Ephraim, Wis. They will go north the middle of June.

Former Tudie Reid Finds Excitement in 1767 Home.

Of the many families that moved into new homes this spring none had more difficulties or excitement than the Russell T. Fosters [Tudie Reid], who moved from Cincinnati to Suffield, Mass., near Springfield. They considered themselves unusually lucky to find a charming and historic old house, built in 1767, to redecorate and furnish as their home. However, in quick succession, the painters accidentally set the house on fire with a blow torch; the oil heater blew up, and the radiators gave way to rust.

Consequently, the day after their arrival, Mr. and Mrs. Foster found that they had made the headlines of Hartford and Springfield newspapers. After six weeks of hard work the house has been overhauled, and the Fosters and their baby daughter, Faith, are comfortably installed.

Mrs. Foster's parents, the Bryan S. Reids, have taken Mrs. Alden B. Swift's house in Lake Forest for the summer, conveniently located next door to the Onwentsia club. Whether they move out June 15 or earlier depends on the return home of Bryan Jr., who is at Hotchkiss, and Miss Joan Reid, who attends Vassar.

Wrigley Offield's Arrival Completes Family Circle.

With the arrival of Wrigley Offield in his airplane Thursday afternoon, the James R. Offield family was reunited for the first time in several months. Young Bud Offield and a friend, Charles Huntington, of California, started for New York from San Francisco by plane three weeks ago. They went by way of Texas, Nassau, and Florida, but were forced

The Fate of the Darmenys

By Elizabeth York Miller

[Copyright: 1940: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

A TRUTH LESSON.
INSTALMENT I.

"Why don't I hear the piano, Shirley? Why isn't Betsy practicing?"

"I'm sorry, Mrs. Darmeny, but she's cut her finger again."

"What! Twice in one week?" demanded Betsy's great-aunt. "Is it the same finger? How did she do it?"

Shirley Westall looked uneasy. "It's the same hand. She broke her tooth glass this morning."

"And on Tuesday she caught herself on some barbed wire," Madge Darmeny said, meditatively. "Where is she, now?"

"Go and fetch her. I want to have a little chat with that child."

Shirley departed, and Madge Darmeny sat tapping nervously on the arm of her basket chair. She sighed deeply for all the worries she had on her mind this morning, altho Betsy was by far the least of them.

Any moment, now, she was expecting Alfred Barnes, her solicitor and lifelong friend, and that was one comforting thought. Alfred knew her affairs from A to Z, and he was wise and dependable. But there was one thing he could not help her about; one thing, grim and inevitable that she had to face alone. Thank God, she had no fear; not even of the last enemy. Mrs. Darmeny had asked Mr. Barnes to come as early as possible, for she wanted to get their talk over and him to be gone before Geoffry and Leda and Frank arrived for the week-end.

Summer was approaching, and Beechbourne Park, the lovely old estate Madge Darmeny had inherited from her father, was in full leaf and flower. Never had the herbaceous borders and rose alleys responded more abundantly. From where she sat on the sun-drenched terrace she could see the vista of clipped yews to the misty background of the water garden—all blue flowers there. And everywhere, shading the wide, rolling lawns, dotting the meadows, dominating even the woodland, towered the age-old copper beeches which some centuries dead ancestor had planted for the delight of unborn generations of his descendants.

She was old, now, and had been a widow fifteen years. Her husband, charming in his youth and dignified in his old age, had matched her great inherited wealth with more birth and breeding than money. During the great war, he rose to the rank of a general. He had been a distinguished man and Madge had loved him and been faithful during his lifetime and to his memory, altho as a beauty of the gay Edwardian era she must have been subjected to many temptations.

She had no children of her own, but there were her husband's nephews, Geoffry and Frank—not brothers but first cousins—and her own niece Leda, who was Frank's second wife, and Betsy, Frank's daughter, who stood to Madge Darmeny for children she had longed for but never possessed.

And life could have been very sweet now, if it weren't for all the worries that were hanging over her.

Amelia was also a relation, but further down in the social scale than the others. A spinster of uncertain age, she had a furtive manner and a lugubrious way of speaking that never failed to irritate. Miss Pennyfeather was a fetcher and carrier for her cousin, tolerated good humoredly but slightly despised.

"I thought you might like to have this," she said in her whining, don't-hit-me voice.

"Why?" Mrs. Darmeny asked blandly.

"I thought it seemed a little chilly this morning, dear Madge, and you've been feeling the cold lately."

"You must be mad. I'm suffocating as it is. Take that shawl away, dear Amelia, and ask Gibson to move the sun umbrella over here and bring a chair for Mr. Barnes, if you will be so kind. He hasn't come yet, has he?"

"No, dear, I'll send him out at once when he does."

"Certainly not, dear. It may not be convenient for me to receive him the moment he arrives. Come and find out first."

"Yes, dear," whined Amelia.

Baffled in her well-doing, as so often happened, Miss Pennyfeather scuttled away to give the order to the butler, and nearly collided with Shirley Westall, who was returning with Betsy in tow.

A tight-lipped, venomous expression trapped her features as she stood aside to let them pass. Amelia Pennyfeather hated many things, but there was nothing and nobody she hated quite so much in the whole wide world as Shirley Westall, who looked like superseding her not merely in Madge Darmeny's affections, but as a useful and really valued member of this household. Shirley had been engaged quite recently as a secretary, altho Mrs. Darmeny had never seemed to need one before, and now that Betsy had come to Beechbourne as usual for the summer holidays, she was supervising the care of the child, as well, whereas that previously had been Miss Pennyfeather's job.

They made a pleasant picture, the young girl with her honey-yellow hair and blue eyes, and the pig-tailed child in her riding kit. Betsy's eyes were dark and sparkling, and her skin had the delicate tint of a wild rose. But there was a smut on her nose, and her hands were frankly dirty, even to the bandage on the damaged finger.

Madge Darmeny was a mild mannered woman. That, indeed, was her strength, but even 10 year old Betsy, and perhaps more particularly Betsy, fathomed the granite which underlay her aunt's surface softness.

"Oh, Auntie, is it anything special? 'Cause Bob and Mary are waiting for me. We're going to ride across the downs to Monkshead to see the sheep-shearing, and it'll be quite safe, 'cause Mr. Mortgage is going with us."

Mr. Mortgage was the vicar of Crane's Wood, the village adjoining Beechbourne Park, and Bob and Mary were his children.

"On Tuesday it was the fair at Ashmartin that interfered with your piano practice. And this morning it's the sheep-shearing."

"Oh, no, Auntie, I hurt my finger."

"You could do exercises with your right hand, Betsy."

The child said nothing, but a speculative look misted her eyes. At her age one couldn't think of everything in advance.

"Did you cut your finger both times on purpose?"

"Oh, Auntie!" Betsy started and looked horrified at such a suggestion.

"Wait a minute before you answer me. Miss Westall and I both despise liars. If you cut yourself on purpose, it must have taken some courage, but it might take even more courage to tell the truth about it."

Betsy wriggled and turned scarlet.

"I did it the second time on purpose," she said, in a shamed whisper. "Oh, Auntie, I do so want to go to the sheep-shearing!" With a wail she flung herself into Shirley Westall's arms. "And it's really my holidays," she howled. "I don't see why I've got to practice all the time."

Madge Darmeny smiled wryly.

The child turned and faced her anxiously.

"Yes, Auntie?"

"That you don't ever have another 'accident'—oh, yes, and that you make up the time this afternoon, with right hand exercises."

"Oh, thank you, Auntie! Yes, I promise—I will, I truly will."

"Then off with you."

"What do you think about it, Shirley?" Mrs. Darmeny asked when Betsy was out of sight and hearing. "Was I weak minded?"

Shirley laughed. "I don't know. Only, I was hoping you would let her go, even tho she was so naughty. When you want to do something, you want to do it dreadfully, don't you? And children are always being thwarted, aren't they?"

Mrs. Darmeny nodded a little sadly. "That is true. . . . Well, her father and stepmother will be here this afternoon, and then you and I will have no further responsibility where Betsy is concerned."

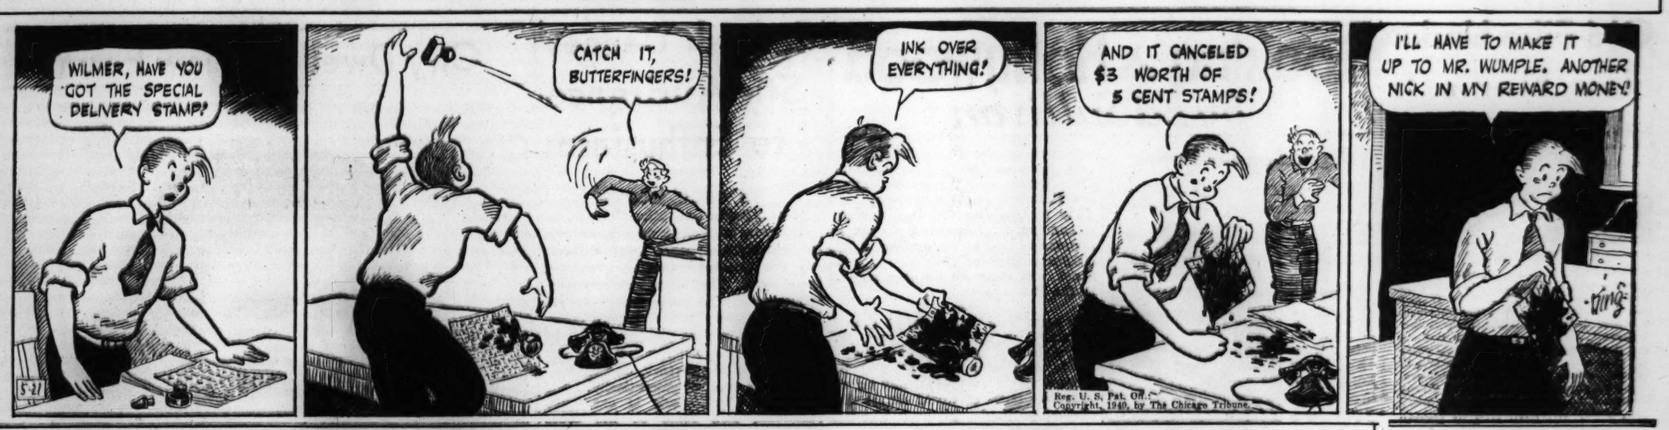
GASOLINE ALLEY—THE STAMP ACT



WINNIE WINKLE, THE BREADWINNER: Double or Nothing

Marry My Daughter

By Alice Duer Miller

NO GROUNDS FOR DIVORCE.
CONCLUSION.

Pelson looked at Dick narrowly, and something not so friendly and helpful crept into his expression. "Her husband, are you? Well, then you certainly don't want it to come out that your wife went up to Valley View Homestead?"

"I shouldn't mind at all."

"Not in that sense, Mr. Pelson."

"You shock me, Mr. Shard!"

"But I must add that I don't think it would be smeared on the front page. I don't think you will fight me. You see I am honest and powerful. You are crooked and your only power would come from my fear of publicity which I don't happen to feel. Did you ever hear of the duke of Wellington, Mr. Pelson?"

"Of course I've heard of the duke of Wellington. Who do you think I am?"

"Well, he said when some one tried to blackmail him, 'Print and be damned.' I say—my wife and I say the same thing."

Pelson slapped his hands together with a gesture of contempt: "Well, of the dirty—low lived . . . Why, I never heard of such a thing. A decent man setting a diamond ring above his wife's fair name! Why, I think better of that poor sap who came down to my office—he at least had some red blood in his veins." He put two fingers into his waistcoat pocket and brought out Millicent's ring. "There, take it—to hell with people like you—un-American, that's what I call it."

Millicent crept to the table and took up her ring: "You're wonderful, Dick," she said. "Was it really true what you said?"

"About my not caring about your reputation—or fair name as your friend prefers to call it? No, that was a lie."

It appeared after all that the first moment was not the only moment in which it was possible to take her in his arms. For a time words became unnecessary—indeed impossible. And then suddenly without preliminaries they were talking about whether they should go at once to Honolulu, Acapulco, Southern California, or Arizona, and then Millicent, wrenching herself out of Dick's arms, began rushing about the room like a mad woman:

"O, to think of my forgetting—what time is it? . . . and Doctor John arriving—and I said I'd be on the platform because he has no idea where I live—the dear lamb."

"Dr. John?"

"Yes, he's coming out, tho, of course, he oughtn't to, just because he thinks I shouldn't be alone in a place like this."

"O, Dick, you can't think I'm not trustworthy when I've never looked at another man but you—I mean not in my heart."

The discussion which arose on this was cut short by the sight of Dr. John standing at the end of the cement walk, paying his taxi driver. Dick opened the door, standing back to give Millicent a chance to greet her guest.

"O, Dr. John, I'm so sorry. I lost track of the time. How did you ever find me?"

"Well, that wasn't hard," said the doctor in a tone that had never quite lost the New England flavor of his forebears. He set his large straw bag down, took off his hat, and kissed her. "It seems you're a rather notorious character hereabouts—losing ten thousand dollars at roulette . . ."

"I'm glad you didn't—but that's what the taximan said. I'm disappointed in you, Milly. What the heck have you been doing out here? Everything I thought about you has been wrong. Maybe I'm not a fool. Maybe I'm not even such a smart doctor as I thought. I would have sworn that feller you married cared about you—I'd have sworn that if he didn't you could make him fall for you. I'd have sworn that you could be trusted. . . ." He sank into the mission chair, and as he did so he saw Dick and his brows contracted. "Who's that? Shard? What in thunder are you doing here?"

down en route to New York, where young Mr. Offield expected to join his parents.

Mr. Offield Sr. had gone east to bring back a new 65 foot yawl, formerly the Winsome Too, owned in New York. The yacht has been rechristened Cormorant II. and soon will be tied up at the foot of Monroe street. Mr. and Mrs. Offield will be at their Lake Geneva, Wis., home until June 15 or July 4, after which they will go to their Harbor Point, Mich., home for the summer. When they go to Michigan, their daughter, Mrs. Denis E. Sullivan Jr., and her family, will occupy the Lake Geneva house.

The junior Robert F. Carrs have gone to New Jersey to take delivery of a new 44 foot cruiser. They are sailing the boat home down inland lakes and canals, and are expected here June 5 or 6. Their boat will be kept along the north shore, for young Mr. and Mrs. Carr will spend the summer at the Lake Forest home of his father. Among their neighbors will be Mrs. Carr's brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Culbertson II., who will have a house in the village for the season. Mr. Culbertson is a student at the University of Virginia law school.

'Tootal' Linen Gives Summer Garb Gay Note

BY REA SEEGER.

A certain subdued hilarity marks the rural cottons making them a definite relief idea for tense city dwellers all ready for a trek to the calming countryside. Belligerence subsides into a mere murmur under the soothing influence of gay cotton seersucker clothes and no mortal can seethe convincingly, dressed in gay ginghams and plaids whether it be suits, play clothes or dresses.

Linen, that old smoothie, is back for the annual summer performance in new models fully capable of reviving a long lost serenity for those who wear it. Under a disarming name of "tootal" linen, this material promises everything. Some of the smartest of town clothes are made of this lovely stuff, while country wardrobes will feature it in dresses to wear from dawn till dark.

Sleek distinction is sewed into every inch of the daytime dresses cut with short or long sleeves with flared, gored, or plaited skirts. For town wear . . . the smartest of three piece suits, a fitted jacket and an under blouse of a third color. Speaking of colors, there has never been such an eye filling assortment. Such a display on the hangers appears like the bonbons in a candy shop, accented here and there with the snap of copper brown or black.

Tootal linen is a pampered pet of fashion . . . it's processed to lead a smooth and unruffled wardrobe career. The colors are not only perfect but numerous. Almond green, Quaker gray, copper, white, shell pink, and several shades of flattering blue sound pretty much as usual but see them and you'll succumb without a struggle.

Quaker gray linen is piped with white, a black linen suit has a snowy white underblouse and a scarlet boutonniere in the lapel. A simple green linen one piece dress buttons down the front with huge buttons. Otherwise most of the dresses are just miracles of smooth design and flawless detail. If you crave a calm flattering color, shop these tootal linens.

According to CULBERTSON

(Copyright: 1940: By Ely Culbertson.)

Players have a glib way of speaking about "key cards," but it is questionable whether this term is thoroly understood and appreciated. It cannot always be applied to an ace or a king. Sometimes as lowly an honor as a queen becomes the key card of a certain situation. That was the case in today's hand, played in a recent New York duplicate game.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 heart	Pass	1 spade	Pass
2 spades	Pass	4 diamonds	Pass
4 spades	Pass	5 clubs	Pass
5 hearts	Pass	6 spades	Pass
Pass	Pass

Obviously, there was nothing to the play, the entire question being whether or not a spade trick would have to be lost. Since the king was off side, North had to be content with making his contract and no doubt felt that he could expect a good match-point score for having reached the slam. His discomfiture must have been all the greater, then, when it finally developed that he was actually under average on this board. No North-South team in the room had failed to reach a slam, and altho five of the eight had selected spades, the other three, having chosen no trump, had garnered the lion share of match-points.

The crux of the situation was North's possession of the heart queen. Without that card, North would have had reason to feel that spades might offer considerably greater safety than no trump; that is, it might be necessary to establish South's heart suit by ruffing, which, of course, would demand a trump contract. From North's point of view [again assuming that he had only two small hearts instead of Q-8] there might be only four spade tricks, two top hearts, two or three top diamonds, and two clubs, and this total of 10 or 11 could best be augmented by ruffing out the heart suit and establishing low hearts for discards. The actual possession of the heart queen, however, should have put a different complexion on the matter. South had not only started with a heart bid, but after showing considerable strength by his jump to three spades, had later rebid his hearts at the five level. Hence it could be safely assumed that his suit must be at least as good as A K x x x. With North holding the ace-king of diamonds and the ace of clubs, South's three spade bid could scarcely be justified unless he held a high club honor. Hence North had nothing to fear in that department.

Dress with Summertime Chic

WOMAN'S AND MISS' TWO-PIECE FROCK.

Summertime chic is sewed into the seams of this two-piece frock! There's a precious air of girlishness about it, and it's the sort of outfit you can wear to the office and for a "date" afterward. The bodice fits snugly and is buttoned down the front. Topping it is a Peter Pan collar to contrast. Sleeves are short and puffed, and the hemline is peplum effect with just enough ripple to flatter slim waistlines. The skirt is gored for flare. You may prefer the other version, with no collar but with ruffling, lace or plaiting doing honors at square neckline and at the bottoms of the sleeves.

Style No. 2952 is designed for sizes 12, 14, and 16, and 36, 38, and 40 inch bust measurements. Size 16 requires 3½ yards of 39 inch material, ¼ yard of contrasting, and ¾ yard of ruffling for dress with collar; 3⅝ yards of 39 inch for collarless version.

Address orders for Clotilde patterns to Chicago Tribune, P. O. Box 537, Grand Central annex, NEW YORK CITY, including 10 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred—wrap carefully) for each pattern ordered. IMPORTANT! Be sure to state clearly the number of the pattern and the size desired, and write your name and address plainly.

For 15 cents buy the summer Chicago Tribune book of Clotilde Fashions, on sale at the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street and Tribune Tower; 10 cents if ordered with a pattern. Address mail orders to the New York address above.

Health Provisions Important in Choice of Children's Camp

[Copyright: 1940: News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

If your child is going to camp this year, you should check over the following requirements that have been set up by physicians and health authorities as necessary for a well conducted camp.

Health provisions:

1. Adequate medical and nursing service and supplies should be provided. The health program should be guided by a qualified person.

2. Services of an experienced physician should be available.

3. Inclusion of a registered nurse on the camp staff is increasingly considered essential.

4. Several staff members should have first aid training, and experience for meeting emergencies.

5. Infirmary facilities should include a suitable room for keeping first aid and medical supplies; for examination and application of dressings and treatment; separate room and one or more beds where campers can be isolated under supervision.

6. First aid supplies should be carried on overnight hikes.

Other standards for summer camps will be given tomorrow.

Hexagonal Holders and Mats

BY ELLEN BRUCE.

Hexagonal pot holders and hot plate mats lend themselves well to the Mexican theme with the use of stripes. Carpet warp is used for the pot holders, while a heavy, six ply cotton cord or carpet warp in two strands quickly creates the unusual hot plate mats for informal dining, and at this season of the year they are ideal for service mats for outdoor dining.

For instructions in crocheting the holder and mats, No. X-291, send 10 cents in stamps or coin to the Needlework bureau, Chicago Tribune, 220 54th avenue, New York City.

[Copyright: 1940: By The Chicago Tribune.]

Chilled creamy or fluffy fillings in graham cracker, cookie, or cornflake crusts make many of the best summertime pies. Crumb crusts are easy to make, and they do dress up a cream or chiffon filling.

Crumb crusts may be made out of any crisp cereal, cracker, or cookie. Some make better crusts than others, of course. These are some of the recipes I consider best.

Cornflakes Crust.
4 cups cornflakes
¼ cup sugar
1-3 cup melted butter

Roll cornflakes into fine crumbs and mix with sugar and butter. Press mixture evenly and firmly around sides and bottom of pie pan. Chill before adding filling. Other crisp cereals, such as rice krispies may be used in the same way.

Gingersnap or Cookie Pie Crust.
18 gingersnaps or chocolate or vanilla wafers
1-3 cup butter
1 tablespoon sugar

Crush cookies very fine and combine with butter and sugar. Pat firmly over sides and bottom of pie pan and chill.

Graham Cracker Pie Crust.
1½ cups crushed graham cracker crumbs
⅓ cup butter
1-3 cup sifted confectioners' sugar

Melt or cream butter and mix with other ingredients. Pat into a pie pan and chill, or bake in a 325 degree oven for 10 minutes. This makes enough mixture to allow for a few crumbs to sprinkle over the filling of the pie, if you like.

And now for several good fillings:

Cherry Chiffon Filling.
1 tablespoon plain gelatin
¼ cup cold water
4 eggs, separated
1 cup sugar
¼ teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons lemon juice
½ cup juice from canned red cherries
¾ cup chopped cherries

Soak gelatin in cold water for 5 minutes. Mix egg yolks with ¾ cup sugar and salt. Add fruit juice and cook to a smooth custard, stirring constantly, in the top of a double boiler. Add chopped cherries, gelatin mixture and cool until somewhat thickened. Whip egg whites to a stiff foam and beat in remaining ¼ cup sugar gradually. Fold into the rest of the filling. Fill pie crust and chill until firm. Top with sweetened whipped cream.

Mocha Nut Filling.
1 1-3 cups [1 can] sweetened condensed milk
½ cup strong, freshly brewed coffee
1 cup nuts, broken coarsely
½ cup cream to be whipped for pie topping
Cookie or cracker crumb crust

Melt chocolate in the top of a double boiler. Add sweetened condensed milk and stir over boiling water 5 minutes or until mixture thickens. Add hot coffee. Stir until blended. Remove from heat. Cool, add half the nuts, and pour into prepared pie crust. Cover with whipped cream and remaining nuts. Chill.

Chicago Group Gives Original Musical Show

"THE LADY IS RIGHT."

Musical comedy in a prolog, nine scenes and an epilog. Book and lyrics by David DeKoven and Maurice Lorber. Music by Sonny Vale. Directed by Donald Murray and Alan Peters. Dances staged by Quincy Burns. Settings by Isadore Markin and Lester Pine. Pianists, Raymond Ericson and Sonny Vale. Presented by the Chicago Repertory Group in Foresters theater, 1016 North Dearborn street, Saturday evening, May 25, 1940.

THE PLAYERS.

Wayne Davis, Sonya Himoff, Toni Kray, David DeKoven, Edward Allen, Jack L. Reed, and many others.

BY CECIL SMITH.

In its new home written, home staged musical comedy, the Chicago Repertory Group brings forward the most valuable and original local theatrical production since the swing version of "The Mikado" came to light 20 months ago. "The Lady Is Right" is the simple saga of Joe Jones of Anytown, looking for a job and casting about for a social idealism to which to pin his "naive faith."

The story, believable enough if you do not pry into its too facile symbolism, introduces Joe in bed in the morning, and carries him, with his friends, antagonists, and associates, thru a semi-fantastic cycle of experiences calculated to focus sympathetic attention on the plight of the underdog. After discouraging experiences, including work for a wicked business man who dupes him utterly, Joe finally brings his personal life into alignment with the workers' cause.

The ideology of the plot is oversimplified and on the whole not particularly convincing. But this is perhaps fortunate, for the musical aspect of the production is thus permitted to realize itself without the interference of too much ax grinding. Apart from the fact that it is a continuous tale rather than a revue, "The Lady Is Right" bears some resemblance to Labor Stage's celebrated "Pins and Needles." The musical score, however, is more ambitious.

Sonny Vale, the young composer, is distinguished by a natural and spontaneous gift for effective, easy theater music. This is certainly a better score at many points than at least three Broadway musicals of last season could boast. Much of Mr. Vale's material is frankly derivative, from Gershwin on down the line, but most of it has fresh quirks and appropriateness to the matter at hand. His songs are better than his more rhapsodic delineations of mood, where he often resorts to clichés of semimodernism. But he is decidedly a talent to be watched.

The ensemble scenes, all effectively lighted and directed, are uneven in projection and intrinsic quality. Perhaps the two best are a haywire psychiatric scene in which the doctors are the ones who are crazy [this scene needs cutting and better pointing] and an episode on a WPA project.

"The Lady Is Right" is recommended to those who like to scent out promising new ideas, who do not demand that their entertainment be plushy, and who do not mind a few random and harmless potshots at Big Business, the Repertory Group's favorite target. It will be presented June 1, 2, 8, and 9.

Corner Stone of New Wesley Hospital Is Laid

The corner stone of the Wesley Memorial hospital at Superior street and Fairbanks court was laid yesterday afternoon, marking the resumption of work on the first unit in the group of buildings planned as a community medical center on the near north side.

George Herbert Jones, vice president of the hospital's board of trustees, whose donations of more than three million dollars made the new building possible, officiated at the ceremonies. Bishop Ernest Lynn Waldorf read the ritual. The address was given by Dr. Franklyn Bliss Snyder, president of Northwestern university, whose downtown campus is adjacent to the new hospital.

A sealed copper box was placed inside the corner stone. It contained a list of the hospital's trustees and staff members, newspapers, and other information. About 1,000 persons occupied chairs placed around the entrance of the building or stood in the street to watch the ceremonies.

Work on the building was begun June 19, 1937, but was halted after the foundation and substructure were completed because of shrinkage in the value of the original stock donation. Last February, however, Jones added stock valued at more than $1,500,000 to his original gift, and the trustees immediately prepared to continue construction.

The hospital will be 20 stories high and will have approximately 525 beds, compared with the 250 beds in the present Wesley Memorial hospital at 25th and Dearborn streets.

Its equipment will be modern in every respect. The building is designed in the shape of an X, so every room will be an outside room. The group of buildings, when completed, will be known as the George Herbert Jones Hospital center.

The new hospital is to be affiliated with the university's medical group, which already includes the university's medical school and Passavant hospital. While there will be ample provision for charity and low cost treatment, there will also be three room apartments with kitchenettes for those desiring such accomodations.

F. J. Thielbar, president of the trustees, termed the new hospital a "cathedral of healing," in expressing the hope that it will be in the forefront of advances in medical science.

FOUR WINNERS PICKED AS GOLF SCHOOL CLOSES

Board of Five Pros Names Best.

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

Mrs. Josephine Willis, Gerry O'Neil, James Powers, and Don Rehfeldt yesterday were named the most apt pupils in the graduating exercises of the eighth annual free golf school conducted by THE TRIBUNE at the Columbus park course. This was the quartet chosen for the main prizes by the members of the Illinois section of the Professional Golfers' association, who have made up the faculty of this oldest and biggest plan of group instruction since it was founded in 1933.

The weather man, who has been at his meanest in this year's school, once forcing a double postponement of the opening lesson, was in a more fickle mood yesterday, turning on a spot of sun and then a light drizzle at intervals calculated to keep the school's officials wondering whether he would jinx the final, as he did last year, with a cloudburst. He relented at the last moment, however, and the closing exercises were conducted outdoors. He probably realized that even heavy showers would not have halted the final, since Chicago park district officials at Columbus park had arranged to hold the graduation indoors in the park refectory.

They Get Close Inspection.

The 1940 final probably was the best in the history of the school, particularly from a competitive standpoint. Each of the four groups—boys, girls, men, and women—was allowed to swing separately and often. While Lew Waldron, who has been head professor of the Columbus park classes since joining the Chicago pro colony, acted as master of ceremonies, five of his colleagues went thru each group, examining the swings of the 32 finalists. In none of the four groups was a unanimous decision made until each eight had been reduced to four or three, and finally to the winner. The P. G. A. members exercised particular care in their judgment, making the survivors in each group swing and swing until one showed his or her superiority.

This was particularly true in the concluding class—the women's division. This was reduced to four, and finally to two, before Mrs. Willis was given the decision. Mrs. Willis resides at 1848 South 55th court, Cicero, and took her regular instructions at Columbus park. She is 27 years old and the mother of a 7 months' old boy. This was her third attempt to win one of the major prizes in the school. She qualified for the finals in the 1938 school. Her first enrollment in the school moved her to take the game up steadily.

Southpaw Wins Boys' Title.

The five Illinois P. G. A. members who formed the final faculty were Tom Walsh of Westgate Valley, national P. G. A. president and one of the originators of the school; Harry Kinnell of Edgewood Valley, head instructor of the Marquette park classes; Matt Matteson of Ridge, Illinois P. G. A. secretary and head teacher at Jackson park; Joe Roseman of Pickwick, and Packy Walsh of Marquette park.

Thirteen year old Don Rehfeldt of 2255 Giddings street was named the winner in the boys' class. His victory marked him as the first southpaw in the history of the school to win a major prize. Don has batted around Rolling Green with his mother and father and brother for the last two years, but never took any lessons until this year's Tribune school at Columbus. He will be graduated from the McPherson grammar school next month, and plans to enter Lane Tech next fall.

Give Klinger Air Tight Support.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Pittsburgh, Pa., May 26.—Bill Lee, the one time Cub stalwart who by turn is either bad or out of luck, leaned toward the latter today. He fabricated a five hitter, his choicest job of the year, but his reward was a beating. He and his teammates tumbled, 3 to 2, before the Pirates, who are very happy over the fact that the Cubs are in the league. It was the Pirates' eighth triumph, five of which have been at the expense of Manager Gabby Hartnett's intermittent hitters.

Bill Lee.

As batsmen, the Cubs were only a bit better than their successful opponents. They turned in six hits, half of them doubles, against Bob Klinger and had the help of two passes to which safeties were coupled. Two of the doubles, one with none out, meant nothing, but one of the passes and the other double were converted into runs. Fielding was what made the difference in the final score. The Pirates, instead of blundering, were startling on defense at times. The Cubs were different. Pittsburgh acquired the deciding run without the aid of a base hit.

Lee Opposes Lee Occasionally.

Lee, who after nine starts now has a modest record of four victories and five defeats, was partly to blame for the fielding that voided his five hit pitching. There wasn't any question about a Pirate run in the first inning, altho it involved the first of several steals to which Lee's leisurely delivery contributed. Nor was any illegitimacy attached to a run by which the Pirates resumed leading on a triple by Bob Elliott in the sixth. But in the seventh, after walking a man, Lee made a throw for distance over first base. Glen Russell threw the same ball even farther, getting it to third, and that's how the Pirates put together their winning run.

The Cubs' failure to get runs and the raising of their left on base total for the year to 253 can be charged in part to Billy Nicholson. He had four chances against Klinger, who was foxy enough to employ a curve ball a good part of the afternoon. In the first and fourth innings Nicholson failed with a mate on base. In the sixth he fanned with one out. In the eighth he flied to the outfield for the first time, but there was nobody waiting. Russell also faded in two important spots.

First Inning, First Fadeout.

The Cubs' first inning could easily have been developed into something worthwhile if a hit had been applied after opportunity beckoned. Hack got the matinée under way by singling to left and stealing second while Herman was fanning. This put Hack's further progress in the hands of Leiber and Nicholson, but the former flied to Van Robays and Nicholson was tossed out by Gustine.

The Pirates' first half also opened with a hit, but this fellow got around to the plate. Handley singled to right and made away with the first of a series of stolen bases. He went to third on Elliott's grounder to Herman, and scored while P. Waner was being retired in the same fashion. Lee had another close call in the second. With two out Gustine singled and scooted to second when Russell erred throwing the ball back to Lee. Davis drove a low liner to right center and just about the time it ap-

1,136 Golfers Seek 139 Places Today in National Open Trials

A field of 150 players—102 professionals and 48 amateurs—will compete today in the Chicago district trials for the National Open golf tournament at Olympia Fields. This battalion, largest in the country this year, will travel 36 holes at medal play in a battle for the 17 places allotted to this section for the tournament proper, which will be decided at the Canterbury Golf club, near Cleveland, O., on June 6, 7, and 8.

Meanwhile, similar trials will be held in 24 other sections thruout the country. A total of 1,136 players—779 professionals and 357 amateurs—will be engaged in the fight for the 139 places in the main event which must be won thru sectional qualification. The other 31 places in the Cleveland edition of golf's world series go to the men who finished in the first 30 and ties in last year's tournament in Philadelphia and therefore are exempt by U. S. G. A. rules from earning their berths sectionally.

Chicago Leads Entrants.

By the time the tournament begins at Canterbury, Chicago will have the largest representation of any one section in the nation, since nine other men registering from here have been given a pass to the big show by virtue of their work in Philadelphia last June. This select detail includes Johnny Bulla, unattached; Ralph Guldahl, unattached; Dick Metz of Oak Park, Harry Cooper of Northmoor, Horton Smith of Oak Park, Wilford Wehrle of Tam O' Shanter, only amateur in the group; Tommy Armour of Medinah, Johnny Revolta of Evanston, and Jim Foulis of Ruth Lake.

Heading the list of 31 exemptions are Byron Nelson of Toledo, O., and Craig Wood of Mamaroneck, N. Y., who played 36 extra holes last year before Nelson won the championship. Denny Shute of Huntington, W. Va., who played thru the first portion of the double playoff with Nelson and Wood, is recuperating from an operation on his wrist and did not enter.

Among those who failed to make the first 30 and ties last year and who will have to work are Walter Hagen of Detroit, Gene Sarazen of Brookfield Centre, Conn., and Jimmy Thomson of Chicopee, Mass.

These three will qualify in other sections, but the Chicago struggle will have a number of stars working for spots in the main event in Cleveland. Play at Olympia Fields will be over the No. 1 and No. 4 courses, half of the field playing the first round on No. 1 and the other half reversing the procedure by starting out on No. 4.

This morning's leading threesome on No. 1 course will consist of Jim Ferrier of Sydney, Australia, holder of his country's open and amateur championships; Alvin [Butch] Krueger of Beloit, the versatile Wisconsin athlete who led the 1935 trials at Olympia Fields, and Dr. J. Earl Harris, Olympia's club champion and sports and pastimes chairman. They will start at 9:10 a. m. on No. 1 and at 1:40 p. m. on No. 4.

Little Competes Here.

The first 18 holes on No. 4 will see Lloyd Mangrum of Oak Park, runnerup for the 1940 Masters' title after a blazing first round of 64, going out with George Dawson of Glen Oak, state amateur champion, and Wilson Crain of Park Ridge. They tee off at 8:28 a. m. and at 12:58.

Lawson Little of Bretton Woods, N. H., former double holder of the American and British amateur titles, also will qualify at Olympia Fields.

Wisconsin Crews Take Both Races at Detroit

Detroit, Mich., May 26 (AP).—The University of Wisconsin swept to two easy victories today by winning the races for eights and fours in the Detroit Boat club's first regatta of the season. In the race for eights the Badgers churned the choppy waters of the Detroit river for the mile in 5:45 to finish five and a half lengths ahead of the Detroit Boat club and eight lengths in front of third place Ecorse. Two D. B. C. crews trailed Wisconsin across the finish line in the mile race for fours. The Badgers' time was 6:15.3.

CRAIG WOOD WINS METROPOLITAN OPEN WITH 264

Bloomfield, N. J., May 26 (AP).—Craig Wood, Mamaroneck, N. Y., veteran professional, won the Metropolitan Open golf championship at Forest Hill Country club today with the spectacular 72 hole total of 264 strokes. Wood, runnerup in the 1939 open championship, shot successive rounds of 64—66—68—66.

Wood's score was believed to have established a world record for four rounds of major tournament play over a full length course. The only better total recorded by the Golfer's Handbook, a British publication which attempts to round up world-wide statistics, was a 262 made by Percy Alliss in winning the 1935 Italian Open championship at San Remo, but the San Remo course is considered too short for a first class golfing test.

Fred Corcoran, Professional Golf association tournament manager, said tonight in Boston that Wood's score established a new all-time P. G. A. record.

Finishes 16 Under Par.

Starting with a six under par 64, Wood was 16 strokes under par. It was reduced from 71 to 70 just before the tournament. He slashed 14 strokes off the Metropolitan Open record, which had stood for 26 years.

Ben Hogan, the 27 year old Texan who plays out of White Plains, N Y., finished the 72 holes with 275.

Victor Ghezzi of Deal, N. J., New Jersey state P. G. A. champion, finished third with an even par total of 280. To his 142 for the first two rounds, Ghezzi added a pair of 69s today. A stroke behind Ghezzi was Jimmy Hines of Great Neck, N. Y.

Billows Leads Amateurs.

Ray Billows of Poughkeepsie, N. Y., runner up for the national amateur title two of the past three years, finished 10 strokes lower than any of the other amateurs when he tied Horton Smith of Chicopee Falls, Mass., for fifth place with 282. The first hole was the cause of Billows' downfall. He needed a seven this morning and six this afternoon on a comparatively easy par four hole.

YANKS UNLEASH POWER TO BEAT RED SOX, 7 TO 2

Keller Hits Double, Homer to Lead Attack.

Boston, Mass., May 26 (AP).—Boston's league leading Red Sox suffered a 7 to 2 defeat at the hands of the New York Yankees today before 14,800 drizzle-drenched spectators but retained their slim grip on first place as Cleveland split a double header with St. Louis.

Charley Keller emerged from his slump to pace the Yankee attack, getting a double and home run and batting in three runs.

Herb Hash, who has shone in relief roles for the Red Sox, was given his first starting assignment and held the champions well in hand until the sixth when he was chased after his control wobbled. Monte Pearson drew the Yankee starting task and was credited with the triumph, altho forced to withdraw in the seventh with a stomach disorder. Johnny Murphy took over. Emerson Dickman and Mickey Harris finished and were nicked for four runs. Score:

In the WAKE of the NEWS

BY ARCH WARD.

It is interesting to observe that while President Robert M. Hutchins of the University of Chicago abandoned intercollegiate football on the basis that it is a handicap to education, the other nine schools in the Western conference have expanded their gridiron activities. . . . Faculty representatives at their meeting in Evanston last week-end approved a resolution permitting each school in the conference to play nine games a season instead of eight, as has been the practice for many years. . . . The legislation was a direct slap at Mr. Hutchins' theories. . . . Leon Duray, veteran driver and race car builder at Indianapolis, recently was asked how he felt about a wreck. . . . His reply: "If you look up and see the sky, that's okay; but if you look up and see the bricks, that's bad." . . . The universal appeal baseball has had for years in this country is no better illustrated than the home towns of the famous old-time Cub double-play combination. . . . Johnny Evers was born in Troy, N. Y.; Joe Tinker in Muskoda, Kas., and Frank Chance in Fresno, Cal. . . . Notre Dame's graduating full back, Joe Thesing, is the son of a Cincinnati physician. . . . The youngest son of Dutch Ruether, former National league pitcher, recently hurled a one hit game for Hollywood, Cal., High school. . . . His dad, now a scout for the Cubs, hopes to land the boy a job with Gabby Hartnett in the not too distant future. . . . The Canterbury Golf club at Warrensville, O., is lengthening its course to 7,000 yards for the National Open, June 6 to 8. . . . The winds off Lake Erie are expected to be a handicap to the players, but par still will be 72. . . . Bill Hutchinson, Dartmouth half back, has taken up leather work as a hobby. . . . June 14 will be Flag day, but there will be no flags waving in Chicago's ball parks. . . .The Cubs will be in Boston and the White Sox will play their first 1940 night game, which will start several hours after retreat. . . Clyde [Bulldog] Turner, who is expected to join the Chicago Bears next season, is majoring in journalism at Hardin Simmons college down in Texas. . . . In addition to playing an outstanding game at center in football he shoots golf in the low eighties, but his ambition, above all things, is to become a sports writer.

The Brooklyn Chamber of Commerce, in urging that visiting National league clubs patronize Brooklyn hotels during series with the Dodgers, as none of them does, is not dealing with a new idea. . . . William Walker, president of the Cubs in 1934, arranged to billet the team in Brooklyn in 1935. . . . When he resigned, after a year's tenure, the arrangement was canceled. . . . Jim Logan, Indiana university's most valuable football player in 1939, will return to his alma mater next fall to complete a course in medicine. . . . Bernie Moore, Louisiana State track and football coach, thinks Billy Brown of L. S. U. could run 440 yards under 47 seconds if he specialized in that event. . . . Brown won the 100 and 220 yard sprints and the broad jump in the recent Southeastern conference meet. . . . His time for the hundred was 9.5 seconds, only one-tenth of a second off the world record. . . . John Siegal and Bill Osmanski, two of the Bears' 1939 prize rookies, borrowed some footballs from Owner George Halas the other day and they are working out nightly in an effort to condition themselves for the coming season. . . . Both attend dental school at Northwestern university. . . . Don't forget—this is Poppy day.

Misinterpretation.

"What lovely pigeons!" said an Irishman,
Seeing some white birds sweep in from the sea;
The while their bodies float majestic'lly!"
"Those birds are gulls," a passing sailor cried,
"I wish you'd call them by their proper name."
"They may be gulls," the Irishman replied,
"But gulls or boys, they're pigeons just the same."
And so it is in life. We often hear
Not what is said, but what is in our mind,
And wonder why our friends should think us queer
Because to their suggestions we are blind.
We'd get along much better than we do
If we would grasp our neighbor's point of view.

WAR, SCARCITY OF RIVALS MAKE BUDGE UNHAPPY

Loses $25,000 Because of European Hostilities.

New York, May 26 (AP).—Don Budge figures the war owes him about $25,000, that the golden days of the professional tennis tours will return, and that open tennis tournaments will be a fact in the hazy future.

Don Budge.

The gangling redhead sat in his hotel suite, breakfasting at noon on tea and bananas. He was surrounded by blue pajamas and an air of well-being. He had just arrived to open the Lido season with an exhibition, and he will remain here thru the summer.

"I had a $75,000 guarantee when I turned pro about a year and a half ago," he said. "I made more than that in my first tour of this country, and in England and France. Then we were going on a world tour which would have assured me $25,000 more, but the war came on and we had to hurry home.

Don Is Philosophic.

"I don't know what the future holds. I don't like to worry about things. I like to feel that everything happens for the best. If I can't go on any more tennis tours, I've always got my job in promotion work.

"Right now there's no sign of a return to successful touring, but I think the time will come. Maybe we need new life, new faces. The four of us who were going on the world tour have scattered. I'm here. Bill Tilden is running a tennis school in Los Angeles. Les Stoefen is teaching at Palm Springs or somewhere, and Ellsworth Vines has quit tennis for golf. I think we might still draw if Vines would play but he says he can't stand it any more. He's quite a bit heavier, about 190 pounds. He always gave everything he had in the matches.

He Plays for Keeps.

"That's one thing I definitely won't do—throw matches. When I joined the pros, Jack Harris, the manager, told me that if I could win 25 matches in a row, to go to it. I've had all kinds of honors, and have money enough, so there's one thing left for me to do, and that is to establish the fact that pro tennis is on the level."

Budge pointed out that when he started touring with Fred Perry he ran the match score to 12 to 0. There were extenuating circumstances, he admits. Vines had said that he believed Perry could beat Budge, and that needled the redhead no little and he thought of the statement every time he went on the court.

Predicts Open Tournament.

"I think that after the war," he continued, "we'll have open tournaments. I think that the first move will be a pro tournament at Wimbledon, and the fans will enjoy seeing the former amateurs in action. That will be the opening wedge for the open tournaments there, and the United States Lawn Tennis association will follow the example of the international federation. In fact, the international federation is the only thing holding the U. S. L. T. A. back now.

"Who is the best pro abroad?" Budge grinned and shook his head. "Hans Nusslein," he replied without hesitation. "Gosh, I don't know if I could beat him on a tour. He's terrific. I guess he's in the front line somewhere now."

STAPLERS WIN IN ONLY CONTEST OF ILLINOIS LEAGUE

Bill Frederick's homer in the fifth inning and his single scoring a teammate in the ninth gave the Ace Staplers a 2 to 1 victory over the Nabor A. Rescheduling of games postponed the last three Sundays because of bad weather is planned at 8 o'clock tonight at 127 North Dearborn street.

KENOSHA BIKE RIDERS TAKE TOP DERBY HONORS

Kenosha bike riders captured top honors yesterday in the season's opening Derby, sponsored by the Franklin Skating and Cycling club in Humboldt park. The Wisconsin club rolled up 90 points against the Catholic Youth organization team's 60 and the George Barrett A. C.'s 40.

The 15 mile handicap was won by Eddie Pelligrini of the Mazzini club, who started in the field of 3½ minute men. Most thrilling race, however, was a blanket finish of scratch riders. Mike Abt won the judge's decision with Ervin Pesek second and Noel Mortiere third.

Bob Farr, one of the Kenosha champions, was the victor in the four mile open event while another Kenosha rider, Lester Saroka, won the novice two mile race. Other winners were Bob Jackson of Edison Park Cycle club, who was first in the class C event over the two mile road course, and Charles Edwards of the George Barrett A. C., who defeated a large field in the boys' junior two mile race. Edwards last winter won the Chicago Tribune junior Silver Skates championship.

MOORE, CLARKE TIE IN HANDICAP OF STATE SHOOT

Chillicothe, Ill., May 26 (AP).—Joe Moore of Kewanee and Homer Clarke Jr. of Alton today won the Illinois state handicap purse, concluding event of the Illinois state trapshoot, both breaking 97 out of 100 targets.

Moore's exhibition today followed his winning second place Saturday in the state championship 200 target event. Clarke, however, captured the shootoff for the trophy. Eight were tied for second with scores of 95.

In the preliminary handicap purse, A. Hextel of Newark, Ill.; A. H. Davidson of Chicago, and J. A. Sabota of Davis City, Neb., tied for first place.

STRATTON VISITS A PAL WHO HAD TOUGH LUCK, TOO

Angelo Bruno Jr., 12 years old, has been feeling mighty blue since May 11. That was the day Dr. M. J. Mills was forced to amputate Angelo's right leg, injured May 6 when Angelo chased a baseball into the street at 76th street and Dorchester avenue and was hit by an automobile.

Yesterday, however, young Angelo felt better, because he had a visitor at the Jackson Park hospital—it was Monty Stratton, White Sox pitcher who lost his right leg in a hunting accident in November, 1938. Monty gave the boy a pencil with his name on it, and autographed the boy's baseball cap.

"I'm still in there pitching," Monty told Angelo, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Angelo Bruno of 7712 Dobson avenue. "Just the other day I was warming up at Comiskey park. And you'll get along fine, too."

And Angelo? He was too astonished and pleased to say anything.

PAUL DERRINGER YIELDS ONE HIT; BEATS CARDS, 4-0

Single in First Only Blow Red Ace Gives Up.

Cincinnati, O., May 26 (AP).—Paul Derringer, who has had trouble getting started this season, beat the St. Louis Cardinals on one hit today, 4 to 0. The big hurler, who won 25 games for Cincinnati last year, struck out seven men.

Paul Derringer.

The victory was fitting for the Reds' National league pennant raising ceremony conducted before the game in Crosley field in the presence of Commissioner Landis with the aid of 21 old fans who saw the champion Reds of 1869.

Third Baseman Stu Martin singled into center field in the first inning for the only St. Louis hit. After that, Derringer, who has won three and lost four games, went into high gear. It was up to the plate and back to the bench as far as the Cardinals were concerned.

Johnny Rizzo, recently obtained by Cincinnati from Pittsburgh, was hurt when he fell in left field after catching a fly ball but the injury was reported as not serious.

Despite the victory, the Reds remained a few percentage points behind the league leading Dodgers who won a 10 inning game in Philadelphia. Score:

Luke Hamlin pitched five hit ball, but Vito Tamulis replaced him in the eighth and was credited with the victory. Score:

New York, May 26 (AP).—The Giants spotted the Boston Bees five runs today, and then came back to club out a 10 to 8 victory with an attack featured by five home runs. This stretched their winning streak to four games.

A six run rally in the fifth driving Nick Strincevich to the showers enabled the Giants to go out in front to stay. Harry Danning paced the Giants' 11 hit attack with two homers, driving in four runs. One of these came in the fifth with two aboard. Score:

Weather Plays Lyons and Sox a Mean Trick

BY EDWARD BURNS.

The White Sox, feeling pretty confident and generally saucy, will arrive in St. Louis shortly after 7 o'clock this morning, ready to launch a six-city trip, which they expect to establish them firmly in the first division of the American league.

James Dykes and his boys had planned a triumphal farewell in Comiskey park yesterday afternoon, in the scheduled final of the Tigers-Sox series. The whole thing was called off on account of damp premises and otherwise ornery weather prospects. It was a sad blow to Ted Lyons, who was eager to accomplish his second victory over the Tigers. It also was the first Sunday in six that Ted hasn't pitched.

Knott to Pitch Today.

Ted soon will pitch on an ordinary weekday, the first time he will have been so commonplace all year. Jack Knott will pitch this afternoon, but Ted will team up with Johnny Rigney tomorrow when the Sox engage the Browns in the Chicagoans' first double header of the year. The Sox expect to hit against Jack Kramer today.

The Sox will have considerable inspiration in the vengeance department in their four game series with the Brownies. The Brownies have beaten the Sox three games out of four. The only other team in the league which has that good a record is the New York Yankees, who also have won three out of four. The St. Louis and New York records also are similar in that each has won two games in Comiskey park and split a two game series on its home lot.

Sox Split During Home Stand.

The Sox completed their home stand with a record of five victories and five defeats. That's not as good as their first eastern trip, on which they won seven and lost five, but satisfactory, everything considered. When they opened the home stand they had a record of five earlier losses at home, and no Comiskey park victories. In the first four games of the home stand just ended they lost one to Boston, two to the Yanks, and the opener of the Washington Senator series, to give them an unprecedented record of nine defeats in their first nine home games.

Then, as most fans know, they did an about face and grabbed themselves a string of five straight, including two successes over the Senators, two over the Athletics, and the opener of the Tiger series. Saturday they had no pitching worth talking about and blew what turned out to be the home finish, the Tigers winning, 10 to 4, in an encounter which was sloppy because of rain, among other reasons.

Hope for a Feller Detour.

After their four games in St. Louis, the Sox will stop off for a Memorial day double header in Cleveland, in which, thank goodness, they do not figure to suffer their third meeting with Bob Feller. This optimism is based on his normal turn with good weather for the Tiger-Cleveland series.

Thursday night the Sox will take off for Boston, arriving in the Hub Friday afternoon. They will play a single game with the Red Sox Saturday, a double header Sunday, and a single game Monday for the getaway.

On June 4, 5, and 6 they will be doing the best they can against the Yankees, then it's on to Washington for three games. After Washington the lads will drop off for an exhibition night game in Wilmington, Del., thence to Philadelphia for a night game on June 11. A single afternoon game will be played in Philadelphia. The Sox will make their next appearance in Comiskey park in their first home night game against the Red Sox on June 14.

Mills to Open Series with Coals on Thursday

The Mills will play the Spencer Coals in the first two of a six game series for the Chicago semipro baseball championship in Mills stadium Thursday afternoon. Next Sunday the Coals play the House of David nine in a double-header on Spencer field. Yesterday's Mills and Coals games were postponed because of wet grounds.

Cubs Come Home Today; Passeau to Face Cards

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Pittsburgh, Pa., May 26.—The Cubs will be back home tomorrow to open a three game series with the St. Louis Cardinals. Claude Passeau, who in eight starts has gathered only two victories, against four defeats, will greet the Cardinals. Max Lanier is expected to pitch for St. Louis.

Manager Gabby Hartnett did a pitching turn in batting practice today with painful results. He pulled a muscle in his back and had to hobble to the clubhouse for one of Trainer Doc Lotshaw's massage treatments.

Larry French's complaint that the bumping given him by the Pirates in the first inning yesterday was due to a sore arm didn't alarm his teammates. The soreness, probably temporary, was due to the fact that he worked pretty hard collecting his five victories, three of them shutouts.

When the 250th Cub runner of the season was left on base in the third inning the spectators were startled by a shrill blast from the press box. The baseball writers, to commemorate the occasion, had equipped themselves with police whistles. The whistles will not be used again until the 300 mark is reached.

Indians Win Second; Split with Browns

St. Louis, Mo., May 26 (AP).—What was sauce for the Browns was sauce for the Cleveland Indians in a doubleheader today. The Browns used a lefthanded pitcher, Rookie Emil Bildilli, and scored five runs in one inning to take the first game of a doubleheader from Cleveland today, 5 to 3. Cleveland came back with a southpaw, Al Milnar, started off with five runs in the first inning and ran away with the second game, 13 to 1.

Cleveland's five run rally was accomplished with only one hit, Ben Chapman's double. The Browns' winning spree against Mel Harder in the fourth inning of the first game was featured by Walter Judnich's home run. Scores:

peared as if it was going to land for an extra base hit, Gleeson came tearing along from nowhere and made the catch.

Fancy Dan Stuff Pays.

The Cubs suffered another attack of timidity in the fourth. They wouldn't even accept a gift run. Leiber led off with a high fly to left and the ball was almost in Van Robay's hand when he lost it in the sun. Leiber was credited with a double, but the next three men could not knock the ball past the infield. The home fourth also was somewhat disturbing, but fielding saved Lee. Vaughan walked and stole. With one out Van Robays singled, Vaughan having to stop at third because of his late start from second. Then Gustine cut loose a real drive, but Russell made a diving catch and doubled Van Robays off first.

If the Pirates hadn't turned a pair of Fancy Dan fielding stunts in the sixth, the Cubs would have accomplished a little more than the scoring of the tying run. The initial happening was a walk for Herman. Gleeson got a grounder past second base, but Vaughan, while on the run, made a one handed grab and threw him out at first. Leiber singled thru short and Herman scored. Strikes sent Nicholson back to the bench. Then Russell touched off a low liner to center, only to see it turned into the third out by a diving, somersaulting catch by Elliott.

Hooray! It's Christmas!

Elliott was the first man up in the Pirate sixth and in response to the prolonged whooping over his catch of Russell's drive, he tripled to right center, then scored on P. Waner's fly to Gleeson, giving the Pirates a 2 to 1 edge. They made it 3 to 1 in the seventh simply because they couldn't avoid it. Gustine walked with one out. Lee had him trapped off first, but threw wild to Russell, Gustine sliding into second. He jumped up and lit out for third, where he encountered more good news. Russell's throw was at least 20 feet over Hack's head, so Gustine just kept on going until he had reached the plate.

Herman enabled the Cubs to whittle off half of the Pirates' two run lead in the eighth. Capt. Billy opened with a double into right center and moved himself to third on Gleeson's fly to Elliott. He scored while Leiber was being retired. The Cubs didn't give even a semblance of being tough in the ninth. Russell flied to P. Waner. Galan batted for Todd and bounced to Fletcher. Dallessandro was given a club and ordered to bat for Mattick. He fanned for the final out.

Cancel Illinois, Arizona Polo Game Because of Rain

HOOSIER DRIVER QUALIFIES FOR 500 MILE RACE

Indianapolis, Ind., May 26 (AP).—Merrill [Doc] Williams, a Franklin, Ind., race enthusiast who sold pictures of himself and his car to help finance his entry in the 500 mile race here Thursday, today became the 19th qualifier for the contest.

Williams ran his 10 mile qualifying test between showers at an average of 122.963 miles an hour—the fastest he ever has driven on the 2½ mile brick and asphalt track. He was at the wheel of an eight cylinder front drive car which he bought last year.

Only two days now are left in which to fill the 14 places remaining in the 33 car starting field. Trials will be run again tomorrow.

START DRAFTING TRANSIT MERGER MEASURE TODAY

Expect Ordinance to Be Ready in 3 Weeks

City and transit company engineers will begin drafting a unified traction franchise ordinance this morning. Agreement on all points in the city's 13 year dispute with the companies was reached Saturday. Ald. James R. Quinn [50th], chairman of the city council special traction subcommittee, said city engineers have been instructed to start work at once on a synopsis of the agreement and the proposed franchise ordinance. This, he said, will be presented to his committee June 4.

Quinn predicted the proposed ordinance would be submitted to the city council in the next two or three weeks. After it is adopted by the council the ordinance will be placed before the voters for their approval in a special referendum. Mayor Kelly said he hoped to hold the referendum by Aug. 1.

Provisions of Plan.

The agreement between the city and the transit lines calls for a franchise ordinance for one new company—the Chicago Transit company. This company will operate all street car, bus, and elevated lines and will take over the $46,000,000 subway now being built.

The main provisions which will be incorporated in the ordinance are:

1. The franchise will be given to a new company—the Chicago Transit company — which will operate all street car, bus, and elevated lines and will take over the $46,000,000 city owned subway, now being built. Universal transfer privileges will be instituted as soon as the new company is created.

2. Chicago's transportation system will be overhauled and expanded at a cost of $102,000,000 in the next eight years.

3. The lines will maintain the present rates of fare until Jan. 1, 1942, with the right to ask for an 8 cent street car fare after that date.

City Compensation Set.

4. Compensation to the city for the use of the streets and subway will be paid by the company at the rate of 1½ per cent of gross revenue until Jan. 1, 1943, and at 3 per cent after that date. [It is estimated the 3 per cent will yield the city about $2,000,000 a year.] The first 1 per cent will be turned over before bond interest payments and the payment of the remainder will be contingent on earnings.

5. The cost of equipment for the new subway, such as tracks, turnstiles, plumbing, and accessories—estimated at $10,000,000—will be shared equally by the city and the company. Rolling stock will be bought by the company.

6. The company will establish a pension system for employés, a temporary plan to be used for two years until a permanent one can be prepared.

7. The company will pay $5,000 of the $16,000 a mile cost of repaving 225 miles of street car rights of way to be torn up for bus substitutions. The city will be responsible for the remaining $11,000 a mile.

Grain Markets Act Quickly to Guard Prices

Swift action was taken last week to prevent the demoralization of grain and other commodity markets as a result of war developments. International trade in commodities was expected to be drastically reduced.

American and Canadian grain futures markets established minimum prices below which no transactions were permitted, and the United States government, to bolster resistance to selling pressure, raised the loan rate to wheat farmers to an average of 64 cents a bushel on the 1940 harvest.

Loans of not more than 38 cents a bushel will be made on rye, and 35 cents will be advanced on barley. Government loans on new crops of corn, cotton, and tobacco are expected to be announced soon.

Big Lard Purchase Expected.

Reports in the market indicated that the Federal Surplus Commodities corporation, which has acquired vast quantities of various products in its price stabilization program, would buy about 60 million pounds of lard this week. It was understood the Chicago Board of Trade would be asked to establish minimum prices on that commodity, which was not covered by the schedule placed in effect on grains May 20.

Chicago grain statisticians reported this war has disrupted international trading in grains and other commodities to a far larger extent than did the first world war. The loss of large markets for American grain thru spread of the war to the Low Countries was declared the principal factor in the steep decline in futures markets which occured before the price minimums were adopted. Before the exchange acted to arrest the decline, wheat had fallen more than 30 cents a bushel.

Week's Grain Prices.

ELECTRIC POWER AND LIGHT EARNS LESS DURING 1939

Electric Power and Light corporation yesterday issued its annual report for the year ended Dec. 31, 1939, showing a sag in consolidated profit to $4,489,255, from $4,678,435 in 1938. The earnings last year were equal to $5.83 a share on the combined $7 and $6 preferred stocks, compared with $6.08 in the preceding year.

Joe H. Gill, president, said that his company is in accord with the integration plan which Electric Bond and Share filed with the Securities and Exchange commission in 1938, proposing coördination of public and private systems.

"In the light of the war crisis and the vital need for an expanding national defense program, the plan is particularly pertinent," Gill said.

URGES PURCHASE OF LARD STOCKS BY GOVERNMENT

Washington, D. C., May 26 (AP).—Representative Boykin [D., Ala.] proposed in an open letter to Secretary Wallace today that the agriculture department purchase all available stocks of lard in the United States as a means of stabilizing prices of lard, cottonseed oil, and other fats and oils.

Boykin said he made the proposal in behalf of a congressional group representing southern and mid-western states which asked Wallace last Wednesday to take steps toward bolstering declining prices of such products.

He suggested the purchasing be done thru the Federal Surplus Commodities corporation or the Commodity Credit corporation. He estimated the stocks on hands at 272,000,000 pounds and said they could be purchased for less than $15,000,000.

The officials, presenting 65 local unions thruout the country, did not decide on a date for the demonstration. They said members would travel to Washington by train, bus, airplane, and automobile.

WINCHESTER RIFLES.

What has become of the Winchester Arms company? Is it out of business? If it is still operating, where is its factory?—F. J.

Answer: The Winchester Repeating Arms company was purchased in 1931, when it was in receivership, by the Western Cartridge company. The Winchester properties are now operated as a division of Western Cartridge and are engaged in the manufacture of shotguns, rifles, shells, cartridges, flashlights, batteries, skates, cutlery, and other products in a factory in New Haven, Conn.

Western Cartridge has its plant at East Alton, Ill., and makes, among other things, shells, cartridges, traps and targets, skeet equipment, blasting caps and detonators, brass specialties, and highway signals. The company has received substantial army orders for rifles and ammunition.

SHIPBUILDER.

Because of the war I am interested in shipbuilding companies. I would like, therefore, some information about the New York Shipbuilding corporation. How is it connected with Aviation and Transportation corporation?—H. M.

Answer: The navy's expanded building program has benefited the New York Shipbuilding corporation, one of the country's leading ship construction companies. Among the vessels being built for the navy are the battleship South Dakota, the repair ship Vulcan, and two light cruisers. At the end of March the value of unfilled orders was about $146,000,000.

Net income of the company increased in 1939 to $928,264, equal after provision for preferred and participating stocks to $1.61 a founders' share, from $532,894, or 82 cents a founders' share in 1938. The company had a loss of $1,372,038 in 1937, a profit of $397,737 in 1936, a loss of $1,415,373 in 1935, and a loss of $257,965 in 1934.

The capital structure of the company is composed of $2,619,400 in first mortgage 5 per cent bonds which mature in 1946; 17,850 shares of 7 per cent cumulative preferred stock of $100 par value; 325,000 shares of $1 par participating stock, and 175,000 shares of $1 par founders' stock.

Aviation and Transportation corporation on Feb. 21, 1940, owned 87,800 shares of founders' stock and Aviation corporation, an affiliate, held 15,000 of the shares.

Dividends on the preferred stock were not paid after 1936 and arrears totaled $22.75 a share on Jan. 1, 1940. Nothing has been disbursed on the participating or founders' shares since 1935.

DENY 'ECONOMIC MATURITY' HAS BEEN REACHED

Study Reveals Need of Private Loans.

Washington, D. C., May 26 (AP).—The Brookings institution today disputed the contention that the United States had reached the age of "economic maturity," necessitating "extensive supplementing of private by public enterprise."

The research organization report said that the possibilities of further development of private enterprise were "adequate to absorb the nation's capital and labor resources for many years to come." Reëstablishment of "stable" conditions, it said, depended largely upon "the removal of impediments to the flow of funds into constructive capital developments and the restoration of confidence in the future of private enterprise."

Long Term Loans Required.

The institution reported that it had found no support for the argument that large industrial corporations had reached a point where they could finance their capital requirements from "internal" sources. Large plant additions, it said, would require long term borrowing.

The "stagnation of capital," the analysis said, could not be attributed to a lack of money or to policies of commercial banks.

"Altho money savings are much smaller than in the late '20s, they are greatly in excess of current market demands," it said. "Commercial banks, far from pursuing restrictive credit policies, have made unusual efforts to expand credit. Their failure to do so arises from lack of demand from credit-worthy enterprise.

Need of Small Firms.

"Many small corporations are under-financed, but their primary need is working capital, raised by the sale of stocks. Extension of short term loans or intermediate credit to companies deficient in working capital does not meet their problems.

"Taxation policies have tended to drive investors to high grade securities; regulation has raised the costs and increased the risks of capital flotations; the persistence of huge deficit spending has undermined confidence in public credit; and the development of a maze of government lending agencies has narrowed such private enterprise channels as remain."

CHICAGO AREA'S PLANT EXPANSION IS MORE ACTIVE

Industrial expansion and development programs totaling more than $3,500,000 have been launched in the Chicago area by 25 companies in the last 30 days, Oscar G. Mayer, president of the Chicago Association of Commerce, reported yesterday.

Mayer said the value of the projects was eight times the amount reported for the corresponding period last year.

During the last 30 days a new aviation enterprise, the Frankfort Sailplane company, was brought to the Chicago area. The Metal Thermit corporation moved its electrode welding division from New Jersey to East Chicago.

Disclose Stake of U. S. in Area Near War Zone

Washington, D. C., May 26 [Special].—The size of the United States stake in export markets and investments in Spain, southeastern Europe, and the far east, all of which remain outside the war zone, but may not be able to stay out for long, is indicated in statistics issued today by the bureau of foreign and domestic commerce.

A United States export market having a total value of $140,456,000 on the basis of 1939 trade, and long term investments totaling $438,600,000, are represented by Albania, Algeria, Bulgaria, Egypt, Greece, Hungary, Italy, Palestine, Rumania, Syria, Spain, Turkey, Tunisia, and Jugo-Slavia, according to the report.

Export Trade Rankings.

From a viewpoint of export trade value the most important countries in this list are Italy, which took $58,864,000 worth of American goods in 1939; Spain, with $26,743,000; Egypt, $12,967,000; Turkey, $8,313,000; and Palestine, $7,646,000.

As regards long term investments the United States has in Italy in direct or portfolio investments $143,800,000; in Spain, $80,000,000; Hungary, $52,100,000; Rumania, $46,300,000; Jugo-Slavia, $36,400,000; Turkey, $24,700,000; Greece, $23,300,000; Egypt, $8,300,000; Bulgaria, $6,800,000; Palestine, $3,100,000; Syria, $2,000,000.

Imports Are Important.

Import trade from these countries is in some cases more important for the United States than export trade. From Greece, for instance, $22,359,000 worth of such commodities as leaf tobacco, olive oil, olives, currants and cheese were imported in 1939.

From Turkey came $19,831,000 worth of cigaret leaf tobacco, licorice root, coffee, chrome ore, sausage casings, hides and skins and other products. From Bulgaria came $2,815,000 worth of carpets and rugs, rose oil, and goat and kid skins.

STEEL OUTPUT IS APPROACHING MILL CAPACITY

Inquiry by Foreign Buyers Heavy.

The steel industry is returning to its status of last fall, when the outbreak of the European war pushed mill operations nearly to capacity, it was indicated yesterday. A survey of the industry by the trade publication Steel reported last week's national production rate rose 5 points to 75 per cent of capacity, against 48 per cent at this time a year ago. Another boost was forecast for this week.

"While the expansion in steel making is comparable to that of last September," the magazine said, "domestic demand lately has been more restrained than at any time since the war's outbreak. However, foreign buying has been heavier than last fall, and mills are pushing operations in anticipation of sustained or more active needs of both the allies and neutrals, as well as a prospective increase in consumption for home defense."

Export Inquiries Large.

Demand for steel to build up United States armaments is not expected to have any material influence on mill operations for several months, the publication said. Export inquiries in the market are large, principally on behalf of the allies, but include an "impressive" total of prospective business from neutrals, the magazine said.

England and France were reported to have purchased 70,000 tons of shell steel last week.

Most of the increase in last week's production occurred in Pittsburgh and Chicago. The rate at the former city rose 8½ points to 73½ per cent of capacity. Chicago's rate gained 5 points at 75 per cent.

Pig Iron Buying Gains.

A general upturn in metalworking activity was credited for a sharp gain in pig iron buying, and prospects for revival of freight car building were seen in the wake of stimulated industrial activity, the review said.

Tin plate output registered its second successive weekly gain of three point sto reach 71 per cent of capacity.

Finish Corn Planting.

May 26, 1940.

CORN planting was finished yesterday at the Du Page county farm in weather much better suited for sowing oats in early April than for planting corn in late May. Workers are hoping for some warm days this week to give the corn a start. So far this spring there has been little weather warm enough for corn to grow well.

Fifty-two acres were planted. A few rows were planted in one field on May 14, but rains stopped the work until last week. Corn planting was finished on May 11 last year.

Seven acres of open pollinated corn, the old fashioned type that has largely given way to hybrid strains in recent years, have been planted for comparison with hybrids. Half of a 14 acre field was planted with Ried's yellow dent, the open pollinated variety, and the other half with hybrid No. G-114, a strain that produced good yields at the farm last year.

Old Seed Is Scarce.

Ten years ago few people had ever heard of hybrid corn. Now many farmers plant no other kind. The farm manager had difficulty finding seed of the Ried's yellow dent, formerly one of the most popular varieties in the corn belt. He finally got a bushel of the seed by placing a special order with a large seed house.

Comparisons of the open pollinated and hybrid corn are to include many factors other than yield. It is generally conceded that the better hybrid strains make higher yields than open pollinated varieties. That is why farmers have largely quit growing old fashioned corn.

The comparisons are to be made on stand, rate of growth, proportion of standing stalks at picking time, yields of both silage and grain, amounts of moisture in the ears, and keeping quality in storage. Finally will come feeding tests next fall on two similar groups of beef steers when comparative gains are to be tabulated.

Better Feeding Qualities.

No open pollinated corn has been grown at the farm since 1937 when there was one small patch of yellow dent. The workers hope the simple test being made this year will help to show the extent to which the high yields of hybrid corn may be offset by the better feeding qualities of open pollinated varieties. Since most hybrid strains are harder than old fashioned corn, many farmers prefer open pollinated for feeding cattle because they think it is more palatable than hybrid.

Six different hybrids were planted this year. In addition to the No. G-114 they are Nos. 66, G-20, G-15, G-8, and G-19. All the corn was drilled instead of being checked. This practice is followed each year at the farm because the men think drilled corn usually makes better yields than corn put in with a checkrow planter, provided it is kept free from grass and weeds.
